Kitimat Plans Not Threatened By New Project

Future Market Able To Support Alaska, B.C. Aluminum Plants

VANCOUVER, Aug. 23 (CP).—The projected $400,000,000 Alaska aluminum plant will have no adverse effect upon the $550,000,000 plant now in the construction stage at Kitimat, a spokesman for the Aluminum Company of Canada said here today.

He explained that there is a rapidly-expanding world market for aluminum.

The Aluminum Company of America announced plans Saturday for the Alaska plant with an annual production of 300,000 tons.

Development of an aluminum industry in Alaska, however, might be followed by huge developments of minerals and industries in the Alaska-British Columbia-Yukon area, it was reported. (See story on B.C. development, page 15.)

Proposed Pool Surveyed

Site of a warm-water swimming pool and recreation beach proposed by the Esquimalt Lions Club is here undergoing a preliminary survey by members. The cove, known as Fleming's Beach, is located at the foot of Lampson Street in Esquimalt. Officials says the area is sheltered on one side by a large rock hill and catches the sun all day. The pool would be about 45 feet by 90 feet and would have a shallow wading area for children and diving boards at the deep end. Looking over the site are Samuel Lane, Clr. William Dallaway, Clr. James Bryant and Don MacLeod, chairman of the sub-committee formed to start the project. Cost is estimated at about $15,000. Work may start this fall and the pool would be ready for use next spring.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

German Peace Talk Asked by Russians

Reds Suggest That Big Four Withdraw Occupation Forces

MOSCOW, Aug. 24 (Sunday) (AP).—Russia proposed today a big four-power meeting on a German peace treaty to be held not later than October.

The Soviet government called for the meeting with Britain, France and the United States to consider a peace treaty, formation of an all-German government, all-German elections, and a time limit for withdrawal of occupation forces by the Big Four powers.

The Soviets said they would discuss a German elections commission as proposed by the three western powers but only following the discussion of the peace treaty and formation of an all-German government.

The government newspaper Isvestia published the note in Sunday morning edition.

Moscow radio began broadcasting the note early Sunday.

At Washington, the state department said the note was coded in Moscow and was coming in slowly, but would have to be decoded before study and comment.

LIKE OTHERS

The proposals at first glance appeared to be similar to the ones delivered last March 10 to the western Big Three ambassadors and later rejected. There has been a series of exchanges since then.

The March 10 Soviet note demanded an end to the division of Germany, withdrawal of occupation forces from Germany by a year after a proposed draft peace treaty took effect, final establishment of Germany's frontiers in accordance with the Potsdam conference of 1945, and a pledge by Germany she would not enter any coalition aimed at any power which fought against Germany in the last war.

Germany has since promised to provide troops for the European defence community of the West.

The Soviet note outlined a lengthy serious objections to the western power proposals as contained in their notes of July 10 and concluded by declaring:

"Nevertheless the Soviet government is prepared to discuss at a meeting of the four powers the question proposed by the government of the three powers on a commission for investigation of conditions for carrying out free elections in all Germany."

Official Announces $400,000,000 Scheme

MT. McKINLEY NATIONAL PARK, Alaska, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Aluminum Company of America today announced details of its plan to build a $400,000,000 aluminum smelting plant in Alaska.

The company said the project hinges on the purchase of land by government interests.

Leon E. Hickman, vice-president and general counsel for Alcoa, said the plant initially will be capable of producing 200,000 tons of aluminum annually.

He said the plant will be built in the Talya Valley district, near Skagway. It will be financed entirely with private capital.

He estimated the Talya development will require about four years to complete and will eventually offer employment for approximately 4,000 workers.

Said Hickman:

"Alcoa is acutely aware of the long-range importance of such a program to the national defense effort and we have been advised by high level defense officials that a project of this type is highly desirable.

"This complete project—consisting of power facilities, aluminum smelting plant, transportation facilities and a new and modern community of 30,000 people serving the operations—will constitute a great national asset.

"It will not only of itself be of enormous benefit to the normal development of Alaska and the Canadian northwest, but will also point the way for other permanent industrial operations in the area.

Alcoa will need to acquire approximately a 100-square area of land in the Talya district.

Film Makers To View Site

VANCOUVER, Aug. 23 (CP).—British film producers may make a color adventure story at the Aluminum Co. of Canada's multi-million dollar aluminum project at Kemano in northcentral British Columbia.

The only British woman producer, 30-year-old Betty Box of the J. Arthur Rank organization, is coming to Canada to inspect several potential film locations, including the aluminum project.

She needs authentic scenic background for a forthcoming movie on Hammond Innes' book on the wonder oilfields, "Campbell's Kingdom."

Bakersfield Counts Cost Following Costly Quake

BAKERSFIELD, Calif., Aug. 23 (AP).—The quake-battered Bakersfield community began sifting the rubble today and counted damage estimated tentatively at $20,000,000 from Friday's sharp shock. Two lives were lost and 22 persons injured.

Meanwhile, the epicentre of a temblor which shook Los Angeles early today was placed at only 25 miles northeast of Pasadena. It caused no damage but woke thousands of persons in the middle of the night.

City Manager C. Leland Gunn said that the damage from the quake was greater than that of the July 21 quake. He placed Bakersfield's loss in the earlier shock at $15,000,000.

Other sources have placed it as high as $20,000,000. Conservative estimates of earthquake loss in the month following July 21 place total damage at $40,000,000. Friday's quake would boost that to $60,000,000 or more.

All stores and offices, scores of them in a six-block area of land in the central area of Bakersfield, were damaged and mortar-filled downtown section will remain closed until at least Monday.

Vancouver Hails (Mourns) Tourist Victory (Defeat)

Vancouver is winning the tourist race although Victoria is still well out in front, according to two sources in Vancouver.

The feat of winning and losing at the same time is reported by The Vancouver Sun and The Journal of Commerce.

Vancouver is "just a skipping stiff place for Victoria," the Journal said in a recent editorial. Tourists stay in Vancouver an average of 4.3 days, a figure which "outstrips Victoria's average tourist stay of 3.5 days," said the Sun in a news story.

"Tourists are staying twice as long in Vancouver this summer," said the Sun.

But Vancouver businessmen have fallen down badly in "selling the city," said the Journal.

Reason for this, said the Journal, is given by travel specialists as the 37 cents per capita spent by Victoria to sell its attractions as against "the miserable 14 cents doled out by Vancouver."

SALES TECHNIQUE

The Sun said, "The big Vancouver increase, which means tens of thousands more dollars in tourist money spent here, has resulted largely from the sales technique in which the girls at tourist association headquarters were trained early this year."

But Vancouver businessmen are in "a twilight sleep" which is costing Vancouver millions of tourist dollars every year, said the Journal.

"Facts justify the accusation," the Journal's editorial said.

"Local businessmen are only half awake in regard to tourist potentialities here.

"In 1937 the Vancouver Tourist Association obtained almost $46,000 in grants. Last year the association's total budget was about $56,000, an increase of only $12,000 in more than 14 years of rapid civic growth."

Rail Conciliation Boards Appointments Due Soon

BY TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA, Aug. 23. The federal labor department said today it expected to announce early next week the names of chairmen of three conciliation boards being set up in disputes between railway unions and Canadian railways.

Labor Minister Milton F. Gregg is now considering his choice of a chairman to head a board to deal with the disagreement involving 17 non-operating unions representing approximately 125,000 members. The unions are demanding a 45-cent-an-hour wage increase, a cost-of-living bonus of one cent an hour for each one-point rise in the living-cost index, the union shop and a check-off of union dues.

The minister said he would make his selection "in a few days" following failure of union and management nominees.

In the wage dispute between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and Canadian railways, separate conciliation boards are being established for two railways.

The department understands that union-management nominees on these boards have virtually come to an agreement on a chairman for both boards. Only who will be the same man.

In this dispute, the firemen and enginemen are demanding a wage increase of 35 cents an hour, plus two rest days for each five days in the cost of living.

Plumbers To Respect Carpenters' Pickets

Plumbers will not cross the picket lines of striking Victoria carpenters tomorrow morning.

Victor Midgley, international representative of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, said last night he was positive the plumbers would not cross picket lines at any picketed job.

The assertion came after reports plumbers might accept a Colonist-man's offer to cross the picket lines on local construction jobs to carry on business—held up pending settlement of the carpenters' strike.

The raise offer was termed a "bribe to get men to break our picket line," by Art Leam, secretary-manager of the Victoria local of the carpenters' union.

He made the charge after meeting with the Victoria Chamber of Commerce vice-president, said the plumbers "feel very bitter about being kept away through the picket lines of carpenters." He said the plumbers had signed an agreement to go through the picket lines Monday.

"Anybody would think Mr. Wheaton was speaking for the plumbers," Mr. Midgley commented last night. "The plumbers haven't said a thing themselves."

"DESPERATE ATTEMPT"

The 10-cent offer to the plumbers on condition they return to work immediately was termed "a desperate attempt by some employers to bribe the plumbers."

"It appears the Chamber of Commerce is being made a sounding board for disgruntled contractors," Mr. Leam said.

Late yesterday the carpenters were still holding fast to a demand for a 35-cent-an-hour raise to bring their wage up to the $2.10 an hour now general in Victoria and on the lower Mainland.

The contractors were still sticking to a 15-cent-an-hour offer which they said was the limit they could go under present circumstances.

Date of a meeting between the two parties with a conciliation board of the Labor Relations Board, was not inderstude, but it was believed it would be sometime this week.

Salem Team President Drowned

NEWPORT, Ore., Aug. 23 (AP).—At least two persons were drowned today in a series of marine mishaps along the Oregon and Washington coasts.

The worst was near Newport, Ore., where a 26-foot boat capsized in rough seas.

Donald A. Young, 58, Salem, attorney and president of the Salem Senators baseball team, was drowned. He was owner of the boat.

Identification was made by C. E. Armond, a former business associate who said he was scheduled to go on the trip, too, but used to go on the trip, too, but was ill.

Missing from the game boat was Edward Piaschka, 62, Salem, an attorney.

Killed in a boat collision at Astoria, Ore., was John Haglund, 67, Knappa, Ore. His gillnet fishing boat collided with one operated by Gregory Vlastelica, Astoria.

This Inflation Just for Birds

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (AP).—A Food and Drug Administration official told today about the break-up of a scheme by which he said frozen turkeys were "pumped up" with water and retail dealers lost money when the birds thawed and the water ran out.

"In this inflation we're all getting tourist stay of 3.5 days," said

'Object' Blasts Ball of Fire

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Aug. 23 (CP).—A deputy sheriff and two Boy Scouts added details to a newspaper story of his encounter with a strange object over rural wooded area Tuesday night.

They told of scorched grass, strange lights and showers of sparks in the area where D. S. Davergers said he was "blasted by a ball of fire" from the object when he investigated flashes of light near a country road.

Davergers, 30-year-old hardware salesman and a former Marine, said he was questioned Friday night by officers from Washington whom he refused to identify.

The scoutmaster has described the object as "a cigar-shaped, flat-shaped 'like half a rubber ball,' about three feet thick at the edges and high enough at the centre for men to stand erect inside.

He told a Palm Beach reporter today that he thought the flying object was, but added "it's better for me not to say what it was for the public good because it might cause a panic."

He reported he was taking three Scouts home Tuesday night when he stopped to investigate the lights in nearby woods. He said when he flashed his light on the object, he was blasted by the ball of fire and overcome.

Deputy Sheriff Mott N. Partin, summoned by the Scouts, said the hair was singed off the arms and three tiny holes were burned in the cap.

One of the Scouts, Charles Stevens, said the flying saucer was "big glowing white light come down out of the sky" and "there were sheets of flames shooting around it when it neared the ground."

Bombers Smear Yards

SEOUL, Aug. 24 (Sunday) (AP).—Eleven Big B-29 Superforts roared through flak and Red fighter planes Saturday night and dumped their bombs on a sprawling railyard only one mile from the Yalu River border of Manchuria, the Far East Air Forces announced today.

Ten other Superforts, carrying on the campaign to "hit 'em where it hurts," pounded a 55-acre supply area in the northwest sector of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital. Three others hit the Communist front lines.

Pilots reported "good results" against the rail target at Sunchong in the first attack of the war on that city. It is 33 miles northeast of Sinuiju in northwest Korea.

All Superforts returned to their bases, the air force reported.

Some Are Spoiled When You Get Them

How To Tenderize Husbands

Not all recipes, The Colonist's social department has found, lead to successful dishes for the table. They may have entirely different objectives.

Quite rightly, too.

Noah Webster's biggest dictionary has three definitions of the word "recipe":

A formula for compounding a medicine or remedy; a formula for making a dish in cookery; a means prescribed for producing a desired result.

So perhaps the social department shouldn't have been too surprised to read the following response to its request for favorite recipes (they still hope for your favorite), to be printed in this paper and later compiled in a cook book with the names of each contributor:

"In a very old cook book I found this recipe," writes Mrs. Agnes Cowan, 1900 Haultain.

"HUSBANDS:

"A good many husbands are spoiled by mismanagement. Some women go about it as though their husbands were balloons and blow them up; others keep them constantly in hot water; while others let them freeze by indifference and carelessness. Some keep them in a stew by irritating ways and wearing them out on them; others keep them in a pickle all their lives.

"It cannot be supposed that any husband will be tender and good if managed in this way, but they are really delicious when properly treated.

"In selecting your husband, do not go to market for him, as the best are always brought to your door. It is far better to have none unless you will patiently learn how to govern him.

"See that the linen in which you wrap him is properly washed and mended with the required number of buttons and strings tightly sewed on. The him in the kettle by a strong silk cord called "conduct," as the one called "duty" is apt to be weak.

"They are apt fall out of the kettle and to be burned and crusty on the edges, also like crabs and lobsters, you have to cook them while alive. If he sputters and fusses, do not be anxious as some husbands do this until they done.

"Add a little sugar in the form of what the confectioners call kisses, but no vinegar or pepper on any account. A little spice improves him, but it must be used with judgment."

"FOR ORDERLY MANAGEMENT:

"Take two pounds self control, one-and-a-half pounds of justice, one pound considerations, five pounde patience and one pound charity.

"Mix all together and simmer well. This should be taken in daily doses, or in extreme need take a large dose hourly. It should be kept constantly on hand and will insure the smooth running of the domestic machinery.

"FOR KISSES:

"To one piece of dark veranda add a large portion of humor granted two people alone.

"Press in two strong hands and stir well together.

"Sift lightly two ounces of attraction and one ounce of romance. Add a large measure of frolly. Stir in one or two floating ruffles and one or two whispers. Dissolve one-half dozen glances in a well of silence. Dust in a small quantity of hesitaties and one ounce of resistance. Place the kisses on a flushed cheek or two lips. Flavor with a little scream. Set aside to cool."

Legendary Atlantis Believed Discovered

HAMBURG, Germany, Aug. 24 (AP).—A German clergyman scientist said today he has found what he believes to be a king's castle and a temple of legendary Atlantis on the bottom of the North Sea off Helgoland.

Rev. Juergen Spanuth of Bordesum said a diver of his expedition, closely following directions contained in the writings of the ancient Greek philosopher, Plato, descended 30 feet and stood on a man-made wall. Spanuth said this wall apparently encircled the fabled kingdom.

He plans to publish a book about his findings.

Rev. Spanuth drew largely on Egyptian legends, said Atlantis was larger than Asia Minor and Libya put together. Spanuth says Atlantis lie (sic)ks Atlantis was only a small island.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica says Atlantis was a legendary island in the Atlantic Ocean. It adds that Plato describes in his writings how Egyptian priests represented the island as being situated just beyond the Pillars of Hercules. These are two promontories at the Rock of Gibraltar.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Automobile men were so simple-minded 42 years ago that they merely told you they had a good car, described it plainly, and let you make up your own mind.

A souvenir booklet put out by Ford in 1910 has fallen into my hands. The meat of it is the following noble fragment of prose:

"The Model T Touring car is a four-cylinder, 20-horsepower, five-passenger car of pleasing appearance."

What more does a car-buyer want to know?

Today's advertisements contain more words and tell the buyer much less.

"Rest while you ride For the treat of a lifetime, test-drive the new Mattress Sedan, guaranteed to put you to sleep in 10 minutes! The new Mattress Sedan is big, big, big. Stretch out full length and RE-LAX as you drive. Man, what comfort! It's soft, soft, soft. Only Mattress has the special Fluffomatic Liquid Drive and Pussycatomatic Suspension for SM-OOO-TH going! Drive the new Mattress Sedan and you will swear that you are not moving at all.

"As a matter of fact, you are not moving. The Mattress Sedan has no wheels. No other car in the medium price range can make this claim."

Disdaining all this helpful and informative sales talk, the naive Ford people of 1910 gave you the facts with only a little seasoning, taking time out now and then for a smudge of dirty innuendo about rival machines.

"Some of the distinct advantages outside of the reliable everyday usefulness of the Model T are those referring to economy of maintenance. The Model T car will average from 25 to 30 miles on a gallon of gasoline, will run as high as 15,000 miles on a set of tires . . . and will require fewer replacements at a lower price than any other car. This is the car that does not require a $5,000 bank account to buy, a $10,000 income to maintain and a technical education in order to keep it in order.

"The rumble seat is get-at-able, and when occupied provides sufficient room for the knees of the passengers. Mean of business, whether they follow vocations, mercantile, professional or engineering, will find this car a dignified appearing and entirely satisfactory assistance in the fulfillment of their engagements, both business and social.

"If you have every tried to climb into the rear seats of some of the single or double rumble-seated cars, you will appreciate the accessibility and roominess of the rumble seat in the Model T. The rear seat passenger steps into the car by way of the running board instead of climbing over the fender or the gasoline tanks. Some cars should carry a ladder for the convenience of the man behind."

I can just imagine the devilish grin that lighted the face of the copy-writer as he penned that last sentence.

"Every advantage possessed by the automobile, when used on bright, pleasant summer days, when streets are clean and roads are dry, is multiplied if the car can be used during the winter months, when the cold, and the wet, and the disagreeable conditions underfoot offer so many discomforts to all other methods of travel. How much better it is to step into a Ford Coupe or Town Car and drive, warm and dry, and in less time than by street car under most favorable conditions, than to get wet and cold, walking to and waiting for this trolley car, and then stand up in the crowded car on the wet floor while the cold breezes chase the dangerous chillsup and down your back every time the door opens.

"Having used the enclosed car all winter, as the season changes, if an open type of body is wanted, a nominal expense, the price of a new body and an hour's labor changes the Coupe or Town Car into a Touring Car, a Roadster or a Tourabout . . ."

The booklet opens with these deathless words:

"There is but one car built in the immense Ford factory, and all the energy, ability and knowledge of the entire organization is directed to the perfection of this one car, the Model T four-cylinder, 20-horsepower, low-priced car of high priced quality. The result is a car that Mr. Ford can well be and is proud of, one that, at the end of 12 months, showed no sign of a waning popularity, a car good enough to warrant its continuance as the 1910 product of the Ford Motor Company."

In other words the 1909 model was so good that they were going to keep right on making the same car. Prices ranged from $900 to $1,200. The last part of the book was devoted to a description of the mechanical parts. The Model T had no Fluffomatic Drive. It was just a car, thank goodness.

Four Cabarets Seek Permits

BURNABY, B.C., Aug. 24 (BUP)—The new Social Credit government of British Columbia next week will be asked to issue permits allowing the serving of liquor by glass in four cabarets in Burnaby, a Vancouver suburb, the first such request since the province voted "yes" in the June 12 liquor plebiscite.

Prospective hotel owners who had dropped options on hotel sites will join in the request, saying they must obtain permission to operate licensed premises before they can plan to build the hotels.

Sicily, big Mediterranean island off the toe of Italy, was infested with bandits from ancient times.

Volunteers Wanted For Frontiersmen

A start will be made in the near future in forming the first unit of a 200-man force which may brighten up Victoria, according to L. G. Hatcher, civil defense director.

About 20 men have volunteered so far for service in a reorganization of the wartime Legion of Frontiersmen, he reported.

A force of 200 is anticipated, according to Mr. Hatcher.

Duties of such a force would include much more than acting as civilian auxiliary police, Mr Hatcher said.

"The Frontiersmen are well known all over the empire," he said. They have units in England and Australia."

When the force is organized again in Victoria, he said, they should be used to add color to civic and government functions.

"They should be in attendance at the opening of the legislature, and should attend the Lieutenant-Governor," he said.

"Victoria is a fairly drab capital city. It should be brightened up with something like this. The Mounties in their red coats are all right but the 'Frontiersmen would add a lot."

Frontiersmen dress in black riding uniforms, with high boots and sombreros.

It is hoped that local livery stables will "lend" horses to Frontiersmen units for practice, Mr Hatcher said.

He said anyone wishing to join the force could obtain information by calling at civil defense headquarters or phoning B 7533.

Snipe Class Becalmed In Poor Race

Lack of wind made poor sailing for 10 Snipe Class boats at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club yesterday.

Joyce Roberts, skippering Wee Joe, led the race, with Robert Leckie in Stormy Petrel second, and Stephen Wood third in P.D.Q.

Others in the race were Betty Dawson in Cee Bee, Lysle Russell in Ishkoodah, A. Prentice in Wart, D. McNeill in Ra-K, T. Richardson in Marcion, Peter Sinclair in Nova and A. Satchwell in Roughrider.

The HAGUE, Aug. 23 (AP)—Premier Eamon de Valera of the Republic of Ireland, whose eyesight has been failing, was operated on Friday. Prof. H. J. M. Wave, one of Europe's outstanding eye doctors, performed the operation. An informed source said it will be several weeks before the outcome can be determined. De Valera is 70.

Noted Legal Man Dies in Wales

CONWAY, Wales, Aug 23 (AP)—Dr George Harry Blair Kenrick, 80, distinguished lawyer and from 1910 to 1916 member of the Legislative Council of the Viceroy of India, died Friday night.

Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld of Washington, D.C., entertained the Christian ministers of the American capital at a luncheon, at which Professor Jacob Marcus of Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, delivered two lectures on "The Education of the Young Jesus."

Vancouver Islanders Share P.N.E. Prizes

Vancouver Islanders are well represented in the display sections of the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver and have brought home a good share of prizes.

High winner for the Island is Kathie Porter of Victoria, who took firsts in articles made from wool, including a purse with hand woven lining, an apron, material for wearing apparel, towels in linen, luncheon set and card weaving.

She was second in exhibits of material for skirt or suits, neck scarf and towels in cotton.

Mrs. E. Hammond of Victoria took first prizes for a knee rug, flax spinning and novelty yarn, and second in one and two-ply spinning yarn and a shopping bag without lining.

For a child's knitted sweater, Suzanne Lang of Victoria took a first prize, and Mrs. Frances Clark was first with a bath mat and second with an apron and luncheon cloth.

Mrs. A. Adams took a first for her crochet doily and second prizes for a crochet centrepiece and filet lace cloth.

FANCY DESIGN

The Eaglecrest Women's Institute was first with fancy design knitted socks.

In the horticultural exhibition, Young R. Rhodes of 508 William took second prizes with his early white potatoes, Nantes carrots and celery.

Robert Simpson took a first in the fruit exhibit for his display of English walnuts and seconds for Duchess apples, Bartlett pears, Clapps favorite pears and the specialty of the garden.

In the sheep exhibits, Arrowsmith took first place with Dorsets and second with Suffolks and fat sheep. Ian Sibbald of Qualicum was fourth with his entry of fat sheep.

Harry Dawson and Son of Nanoose Bay took a first with their bull, Grandview Jaunon Fifth.

Five-Month-Old On Last Stomach

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 23 (AP)—Five-month-old Deborah Pfeifer is down to one stomach. Children's hospital here discovered Deborah had two stomachs after her mother, Mrs. Norman Pfeifer of St. Louis, reported the baby cried every time she lay on her stomach. The second stomach, which wasn't functioning, was removed in an operation.

City To See First Premiere Since Days of Local Production

Neglected by film moguls for quite some time, Victoria will see the Canadian premiere of a new moving picture next week when the Twentieth Century-Fox comedy "Dreamboat" slides into this port.

Premiere showing of the film here will mark the first time in 20 years Victoria movie-goers got in on the ground floor. And the last time the picture had to be filmed in this locale.

Oldtimers say that last premiere was of a picture called "The Crimson West," though some of them vote for "Crimson Paradise," which sounds like even more fun.

Crimson whatsit, filmed in the lumber mill at Chemainus and partly in the Sooke Hills, was the work of a British Columbia author.

The hero was a prize fighter, and studios were at the old Willows Park. Producer was a local resident, Kenneth Bishop. Local talent got into the picture as extras and in some parts.

Now, 20 years after the Crimson epic, "Dreamboat" comes to town, just to show how times have changed since the cry of the director was heard on the hills over Sooke.

"Dreamboat," which starts next Friday at the Dominion Theatre stars Ginger Rogers and Clifton Webb, he of "Mr Belvedere" fame.

Described as a lampoon on antiquated television film fare, "Dreamboat" satirizes the "ancient and fuzzy movies" used on TV of which even "The Crimson West" may have been one.

Scenes modeled on actual films of the silent era include re-enactments of old-style French Foreign Legion stuff and swash-bucklers featuring a roof jumping hero.

Webb is cast as the one-time silent screen lover jolted out of his new respectability as a college professor when his antique films are revived on television.

Clifton Webb casts a suspicious eye in lovely Ginger Rogers' direction in "Dreamboat."

Alumnus Knows Woe Of Vacant Library

An ex-student and boxer of Victoria College fully appreciates the school's plight of a library without books.

Air Vice-Marshal John L. Plant, R.C.A.F., recently appointed deputy chief of staff of the Allied Air Forces in Europe, was able to appreciate, from personal experience, the problem of the new Memorial Library Building at the college, that has lots of shelf space, but no books.

In a letter to a member of the college library fund committee, he sympathized with the committee in trying to get enough books to fill the shelves, and told them of a similar instance in the house where he is billeted in Fontainebleau, France.

ALL GONE

"I am in a house with a magnificent library," his letter said, "but when I moved in the landlord took away all the books."

His contribution to the fund will help to raise the minimum of $5,000 needed to purchase enough books for the new building.

Books purchased from the fund will be inscribed with the name of the teacher or professor whose influence on the former student buying them was most felt.

The fund drive will coincide with the 50th anniversary of the college, to be celebrated within the next few weeks.

Mr. Stoneson and his brother, Henry, came here in 1922. They organized a firm which, in the last 30 years, has erected nearly 10,000 buildings in this area.

Their latest development is Stonestown, a 65-acre project with buildings containing 683 apartments and a business centre.

Four Youths Rescued From Lake

Exhausted after their overnight ordeal on Lake Simcoe, Ont., 19-year-old Billy Graham, left, and 17-year-old Don Duggan, both of Toronto, emerge from plane which rescued them from choppy water in which they had spent 18 hours fighting for their lives against exhaustion, cramps. The boys were among a party of four who were hurled into lake after a collision between two speeding boats in darkness about 10 miles south of Atherley, Ont.

In a six-hour hunt during which time other two members of party, Jack Graham, 21, and Mike Cox, also from Toronto, were rescued, scores of police, tourists, pilots and boatowners searched the lake continuously for missing boys. Finally about to abandon all hope of finding remaining two, searchers learned that a doctor had spotted them from his little seaplane and taken them aboard between two islands. Worn out from drifting so long, and desperately grasping an air cushion, a tiny piece of board from one of the damaged boats, seen above, and each other, they were on the point of slipping beneath the rippling waves when found.—(Central Press Canadian photos.)

Parliament May Break Tradition

OTTAWA, Aug 24 (CP)—Parliament may be asked to break with tradition soon by debating legislation concurrently with the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

The government is understood to be considering this as one way to speed parliament's work which has been keeping members in long sessions.

Canada has followed the tradition that the throne-speech debate be completed before the Commons studies bills implementing the government's legislative program. The legislation is forecast in the speech from the throne, read by the governor-general at the opening of parliament.

Parliament approves this general outline of adopting an address reply to the speech from the throne. Debate on the address generally stretches over a six or eight-week period.

However, a complete break may be in the offing. It is understood that the government has laid down a deadline at which all legislation must be ready to go before parliament.

This deadline is reported to be one month before parliament assembles, scheduled for November 20.

If the deadline is met, the government might bring down its full legislative program a day or two after the throne speech is read by the governor-general.

Another method of coping with the work in parliamentary business is to split the session, calling parliament together in November. After an adjournment for Christmas and New Year's, members probably could wind up business by the end of May.

Parliament will follow that plan this year. The present session, adjourned since early July, will be prorogued Nov. 20 and a new session started the following day.

Baker Boy

When it comes to baking nine-year-old Ross Dickson of the Ottawa suburb of City View can top them all including housewives. Ross (who delivers papers when not in school or doing the family baking) won first prizes at the Central Canada Exhibition at Ottawa for his fruit and brown breads. He also took third prize with a white loaf in open-class competitions. But he also enjoys bread and jam when he relaxes. What boy doesn't? (CP photo.)

Health Plan Revision Under Fire

VANCOUVER, Aug 23 (CP)—Harold Winch charged today that the Social Credit government's halting of prosecutions for non-payment of British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service premiums was "deliberately calculated [illegible] principle in British Columbia."

In a press release the C.C.F. leader condemned the policy as a negation of parliamentary democracy which would put B.C.H.I.S. and the hospitals in the red.

Mr. Winch, who was a member of the legislative inquiry board which recommended strict enforcement of hospital insurance payments, said the move would do "calamitous damage to one of the most progressive measures ever introduced in B.C."

His statement followed an announcement by Health Minister Eric Martin that no prosecutions for non-payment had been made since the Social Credit government took office.

The minister denied categorically, however, that he has ordered an end to all prosecutions. He called the measure a "temporary suspension."

Mr. Winch declared the government had acted by "bureaucratic cabinet policy" because it knew "the majority of members of the new legislature would not endorse changing B.C.H.I.S. to a voluntary basis."

"This policy of the minister will return all hospitals to the position of financial jeopardy that they were in prior to the inauguration of hospital insurance," he said. "It will also jeopardize the finances of the service itself.

"It denies the principle of social responsibility to assist those unfortunate enough to be in ill health and requiring hospitalization."

Mr. Winch said it was "pure sophistry" for the minister to say the intent of the government is not to penalize those unable to pay.

"This policy has always been in effect," he went on. "From my own personal experience I know that on every occasion that I drew cases to the attention of B.C.H.I.S. where people were not in a position to afford the premium, no prosecutions were instituted."

Setback to C.C.L.

T.L.C. Shuns Labor Unity

WINNIPEG, Aug 23 (CP)—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada Saturday knocked out the idea of a consolidation of Canadian labor's forces.

The largest and oldest labor group in the country, at its annual convention, flatly turned down a move to renew an association with other central bodies. [illegible] hopes of the Canadian Congress of Labor for a unification of Canada's 1,000,000-odd workers.

Percy Bengough, president of the 502,000-member T.L.C., charged Saturday that the C.C.L., which has about 350,000 members, was just trying to use the committee to "undermine" the Trades and Labor Congress.

"They only wanted to co-operate on the basis of how much they could take away from this congress," he said.

All of the president's complaints about the association with other labor groups were directed at the C.C.L. He said there was no complaint against the committee activities of the 90,000-member Catholic syndicates from Quebec or of the railway running trades brotherhoods of about 40,000 members.

However, Jack Bruce of Toronto, Canadian chief of the plumbers' union, lashed out against the Quebec body.

He taxed the Catholic confederation with raiding TLC international union membership "with the aid of the clergy."

"We sat in conference with them, and they were betraying us," Bruce said.

The debate developed over a resolution that would have put the congress on record as telling [illegible] C.C.L. and the Catholic unions with a view to setting up a general council for co-ordinating activities in the interests of "greater unity" in the labor movement.

New Weapon May Assist Worm Battle

VANCOUVER, Aug. 23 (CP)—British Columbia research council thinks it has discovered a way to combat teredo. The marine worm that bores into logs and pilings.

The teredo or ship worm has been costing lumbermen a large amount of money lately. Davis rafts that were in salt water for two months during the woodworkers strike were infested with the worm.

The council has found a solution of arsenic too weak to harm fish—will kill the teredo. He can detect any other poison.

The trouble is the arsenic solution will kill the teredo in 24 hours but takes only 25 minutes to work through a Davis raft, not touching the teredo long enough to kill him.

The council is working on a way to keep the poison acting on the teredo longer.

Polio Claims 15th Victim

VANCOUVER, Aug 23 (CP)—Polio claimed its 15th victim in British Columbia today when a 37-year-old suburban West Vancouver woman died at her home before the arrival of a doctor.

The disease struck so suddenly the woman, mother of three children, could not be moved to hospital. She had been in excellent health until two days ago.

She was the second woman to die from polio within 24 hours. A 35-year-old Kimberley mother died Friday, bringing the toll for the disease-ridden mining town to eight.

Four more cases were admitted to the Vancouver General Hospital today, bringing the province's 1952 total to 129.

Ceylon was known to the ancient Romans as "Taprobane," meaning "copper-colored."

Oddities

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho, Aug 23 (AP)—Everett Haggart, wanted in Bonneville County on a non-support charge, is eager to return to Idaho Falls no matter the consequences.

Haggart was apprehended in Bakersfield, Calif., Friday just before the earthquake struck.

From Bakersfield, Haggart shouted over a telephone to the Bonneville County sheriff's office:

"Hurry, come get me and bring your pen. I'll sign any waiver. I want to get out of here fast."

Deputy Sheriff A. E. Heslop will leave here Sunday to return with Haggart.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Aug. 23 (AP)—A package of 39 tattered $25 defense bonds arrived by mail yesterday for Mrs. Arthur Gallagher.

Along with the package came a letter of apology from the State Highway Department, which said the bonds had been chewed up by a grass-cutting machine off a highway near Hightstown.

Mrs. Gallagher said the bonds had been taken from her home while she was away on vacation.

Negotiations Will Resume

VANCOUVER, Aug 23 (CP)—Negotiations between 6,000 workers and the pulp and paper industry will be reopened shortly.

Under mutual agreement between the Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers (A.F.L.) and International Brotherhood and Paper Makers (A.F.L.) and employers, negotiations were shelved two months ago when the labor and business outlook was not good.

Under the agreement either party could reopen talks at "any time."

Freedom for Killer Sought by Friends

VANCOUVER, Aug 23 (CP)—Friends of Melville Wilkie, Ontario's "mad killer" captured here last April, will renew attempts to free him—at least temporarily so he can marry his sweetheart here.

Wilkie, who was convicted in 1933 of burning his wife and child to death in their home at Owen Sound, Ont., now is in solitary confinement in the criminally insane prison at Penetanguishene, Ont. He was captured here after his fifth escape from prison.

Friends here have learned that the 20-year-old girl who lived here with Wilkie for more than a year is expecting a child in December. They plan an appeal to federal and Ontario authorities, seeking a review of Wilkie's case.

"We will do everything we possibly can to see if he could be released, at least temporarily, to marry the girl," said A. Harrison, who was Wilkie's landlord in Vancouver.

"Surely the man is entitled to a review of the case after 19 years in custody," said Harrison.

Britain To Boost Arms, Coal Sales

LONDON, Aug 23 (Reuters).—Britain will step up exports of coal and armaments by the end of the year, the treasury announced today. A monthly economic survey said only that Britain expected to improve her industrial production and achieve a balance for sterling currency in the second half of the year.

CARTHAGE, Mo., Aug 23 (AP)—Sidney Clyde Davis, 55-year-old truck driver, has been charged with an attempt to extort $1,000 from movie star James Stewart. Davis was identified by police as the man who wrote a letter to the actor threatening him or his family and demanded the money in small bills.

World Citizen Invisibility Ray By David Low

The Uncommon Virtues

SOME qualities in human nature will stand until the skies fall. Kindness will always be in short supply; there can never be enough of it to go once all the way around. Honesty is by no means so common that it passes anywhere unremarked. Patience is like a beacon in troubled waters. Tolerance, the mere abstention from decrying others, how rare it is. These are the uncommon virtues of today. The world could do with more of them, but can never do without them. All men walk the same short road, that brief and conscious interlude between two eternities.

It is an argumentative, quarrelsome age, when every head put up attracts the cudgels of a disturbed and irritated society. Yet head-cracking never got the human race anywhere: never did assist clearer heads or human understanding. Merely to refrain from blame in these times is something of an uncommon virtue. The saving thought is where might any of us be if we had our just desserts in precisely similar circumstances? That way lies charity. It would be a gain if even the disputations were ended. Tossing words backwards and forwards never leads to much. Far better to remain silent and to listen, than to indulge in that. A merchant at Vancouver built a fortune once on the slogan "Don't Argue." It graced a chain of small stores, and everywhere that people read it they smiled in friendly recognition. It is still the best advice.

What if times are out of joint, the world has known such days before. They will come right in their own time and in their own way; but not through disputation, suspicion, conflict. A little more of the simple virtues earnestly applied would do wonders in the human fold. Nobody chafes at kindness, sympathy, and that fellow-feeling which is the birth of riper understanding. The parable of the beam and the mote is much in point these days. We are so concerned over the defects that we think we see in others. How about our own? Life is a give and take proposition. It goes best when we learn to give a little, for the good of our own souls. As with individuals, so with nations. There will be a road back to better times when we each help to build one, and not one moment sooner.

Supports That Don't

INFLATED toys and floats improvised from automobile inner tubes can provide a lot of harmless fun and pleasure, but they may be a death trap as well unless their users can swim or are under the supervision of others who can. Parents who think their children are safe because they have something to hold them up in the water should take warning from a recent misfortune in Ontario. There two boys, one aged five years, the other a year younger, drowned when inner tubes with which they were playing in a lake were carried away by an offshore wind.

It is tragically easy for young children and even adult non-swimmers to become separated from floats of this kind in deep water, or to be carried into difficulty by wind or current. Inflated toys invite horseplay, and often danger is not realized until too late. Lifesaving organizations at many of Ontario's beaches will not allow unsupervised children to play in the water with inner tubes and similar toys, because numerous accidents have shown how easy it is for a child to be blown out of his depth and not realize it until he tries to touch bottom.

In addition to automobile tubes, numerous inflatable beach toys are sold for children's use. It would be a pity to spoil the pleasure that these can provide, but the need for safety dictates certain precautions. Unless under constant observation, children who cannot swim should not be permitted to rely on inflated supports except in shallow water where there is not the slightest chance of them drifting into danger. The safest precaution of all, of course, is to teach children to swim proficiently before introducing them to the fun of inner tubes and rubber horses.

Public Health Scares

FOR all that some countries have practiced it for more than a century, public health service is still comparatively new in the field of preventive care. Rightly conceived, it has a tremendous contribution to make to the common lot of every man. It is harmed, however, when press-agented with public health scares. There is no "polio epidemic" in British Columbia today, if the ordinary and normal meaning of language is given to the term. Out of a population bordering upon 1,200,000, there are some isolated occurrences sufficient to require direct and immediate attention, but not in any sense more than is average for this province at this time of the year, if that. One small community has unfortunately had more than its share of these cases, and its need was for more nurses.

From this small, quite normal and perhaps rather less than usual degree of suspected polio cases, not all of which are being confirmed by any manner of means, has been blown up a public health scare that is both unjustified by the ascertained facts and unfair to the physicians and others whose duty it is to apply the remedy. The immediate result has been unfortunate. Not a few visitors have turned back at the British Columbia border, especially where there were children in their parties; and the impression has gone abroad that this province is in the grip of an epidemic. Nothing could be further from the facts. While there has been, and still is, the usual volume of polio occurrences that seem to go with the mid-summer season, the incidence of the disease is being reduced, rather than increased, by contrast with other years.

One of the encouraging features of the matter is that through the operation of public health services, filling in the gaps between what was once uncorrelated effort, a good deal more is being learned about this and other forms of disease which not long ago received but scant attention. It overdoes the remedy, however, to exaggerate the facts, and in connection with polio, a normal condition has been magnified out of its true proportions.

BANDED BLUE GROUSE

Sir,—For the past three summers the department of zoology in the University of British Columbia has conducted a study of the blue grouse at Lower Quinsam Lake on Vancouver Island. This work has been supported by grants from the National Research Council of Canada.

One phase of the field work has been the banding of 300 young and adult grouse with marked bands stamped "B.C. Game Dept." When a banded bird is shot, it is most important that the hunter should return the band and indicate when and where the bird was taken. This information can be given to any game official on Vancouver Island or sent to me at the department of zoology, the University of British Columbia.

From these returns I hope to be able to determine how heavily the grouse at Quinsam Lake are being shot; when and where they migrate; and how fast and how far they migrate.

Obviously, the success of this phase of the work depends upon the co-operation of the hunters in returning bands. I would appreciate any effort you might make in bringing this to the attention of your readers prior to the opening day of the season, September 13.

DOLLAR EXCHANGE

Sir,—The average American from the vicinity of Washington, D.C., as well as thousands from south of the 49th parallel, suffer the pangs of nostalgia when entangled in the pentagonic maze of pedestrians crossings at the intersection of Douglas and the former Kanaka Road, now called Humboldt Street.

In close proximity to said entanglement is a very fair replica of the famous Washington Monument, and only a few paces south is to be found a watering place, second only the famous "bains" of Atlantic City, and still a few steps farther south may be seen a whole flock of totem poles, some in actual process of carving by a native expert, which obviates the necessity of journeying to northern B.C. or to far-off Alaska, all of which gives the average Democrat more time to enjoy the hospitality of the Queen City, the beauties of her heavenly surroundings.

The only fly in the ointment being the deduction of a nickel per dollar of our good old U.S.A. currency.

Our memories are short, but never the less we think, speaking for the Yanks, that the audacity of the get-rich-quick Canadians, in inflicting that penalty on us, is not at all in accordance with the usual British hospitality.

Pardon the intrusion, and trusting that the rain holds off until the end of the tourist season.

BENEDICT BANTLY,
Hotel Strathcona, Victoria, B.C.

Editor's note—Our correspondent, being an old-time resident of Victoria, will no doubt recall the days when American store clerks would throw Canadian money back across the counter, not always with a smile. Canadians were advised to "go to the bank." It is still good advice, although today it operates just the other way around. Sorry, but there is the record.

LIME BAY CABINS

Sir,—Observing that the city council are adamant to proceed with the eviction of the inhabitants of Lime Bay, and the only excuse seems to be health and sanitation. The veterans, who are trying to end their days in peaceful relaxation, were not questioned about their health or sanitary habits in the trenches of the First World War. Why not leave these men in peace, what they fought for. They are probably not as fortunate as others who can afford to keep nice homes and mix in the right society. I do not dispute that the old man's home is not a desirable place to have these old chaps, but independence and the right to live their own life should at least be granted to them.

To those who support the action for eviction, remember, these were the men whom they called heroes when they answered the call to protect those who did not serve.

JOHN E. CAREY,

Television And the Home

(From The London Times)

THE untidy forest of aerials which began to be visible a year or so ago growing on the roofs of houses—of even the most modest houses—becomes steadily thicker. The view from a train window as a London terminus is approached is now aerials, aerials all the way, and the same revolutionary sight is familiar over large parts of the country.

Television, for good or evil, is a giant, comparable in stature to the cinema. It crossed the Scottish border earlier this year and today, when the station at Wenvoe will be opened by the postmaster-general, it strides across the Severn.

* * *

The social and cultural consequences of this invasion of the home have not, and may never be, so far-reaching as they already are in America. It remains true to say that Caxton was scarcely a more effective revolutionary than Baird and other pioneers of television may appear to have been by the turn of the century.

As has so often happened, when science plays another of its tricks on the world, thoughtful people are left in a state of considerable bewilderment. Here and there, a hard-boiled reactionary, proud of being out of step with the times, declares he would rather die than let a television set intrude itself into his living room. He has never seen the thing at work and he never wants to—not even for the coronation or the most exciting sporting event. If he cannot be present he is prepared to cut his loss.

* * *

The friends of this stout-hearted die-hard—and even more his family, who mean to wear him down—recollect that he or others of his way of thinking vowed once upon a time that, if they had a free evening, they would go to the real theatre, but never to the pictures, and that sound wireless would never be heard blaring in their homes. Time has wrought havoc in that old guard and it may be seen regularly in the two and tenpenny seats watching the program round. It sets its watch by wireless time signal and it is furious if it cannot listen to a favorite program because the rest of the family insists on another.

Soon the same tolerance, ripening into affection, will convert the old guard into viewers to a man. We shall all be television fans before the Victorian saying comes true and we are all Socialists.

* * *

Children—it is an awful thought in the strict sense of that adjective—are now growing up who cannot remember teatime without television. To belittle the effects of this on education is an ostrich policy, and to pretend, as some optimists do, that the new medium will have a healthy effect on the intellectual life of the nation is to put forward a highly controversial proposition.

It is easier to listen than to read and easier still to look and listen than to listen by itself. Sound wireless, in spite of the B.B.C.'s disapproval, can be used as a stimulating background to reading or writing. The spell of television rings its votaries round with a circle from which there is no escape into any other mental exercise. Conversation—a lost art, anyway, say the pessimists—is silenced by it. The power of concentration—that disagreeable but necessary accomplishment of an orderly mind—is not acquired by viewing.

Television at worst is an opiate; at second best it is a means of being brought into contact with actuality. What it might be at its best has yet to be discovered.

Quiet Work

One lesson, Nature, let me learn of thee,
One lesson which in every wind is blown,
One lesson of two duties kept at one
Though the loud world proclaim their enmity—
Of toil unsevered from tranquility!
Of labor, that in lasting fruit outgrows
Far noisier schemes, accomplished in repose,
Too great for haste, too high for rivalry!
Yes, while on earth a thousand discords ring,
Man's fitful uproar mingling with his toil,
Still do thy sleepless ministers move on,
Their glorious tasks in silence perfecting;
Still working, blaming still our vain turmoil,
Laborers that shall not fail, when man is gone.

'Forty-Niners, Modern Style

By PATRICK NICHOLSON

THERE'S another "gold rush" on to the frozen north—one that looks like outdoing the fabulous stampede to the Klondyke.

The rewards for those who strike it rich will make the fortunes dug up by the bearded 'Forty-Niners look like pin money.

For this time the lure isn't gold. It's the key to power in this atomic age—uranium. Instead of Dawson City, the mecca for hundreds of men rushing across Canada is Uranium City, near Lake Athabaska.

"It's a madhouse around Uranium City. There must be 2,000 guys struggling to swap a few days' discomfort for a lifetime of riches." That was the verdict of Don McGree, first prospector to come back to civilization from the world's first uranium rush. He told the graphic story of his search for riches when he reached Edmonton airport.

This 28-year-old carpenter who may already be a millionaire, had taken time off from his building job to try his luck in the northland where he works.

His hands bore witness to the northland's hungry black flies—more vicious than mosquitoes.

The concession thrown open by the government for this rush covers an area on the northern shore of Lake Athabaska astride the frontier of the Northwest Territories, and nearer to Russia than to Canada's capital. It is 500 miles north of Edmonton.

* * *

Uranium prospectors have been working over the general district for two years, but the newly opened land which attracted history's first uranium rush is centred around the new Beaver Lodge Lake mine of the Eldorado Company.

This rocky hump is the "hottest" square mile in the world, though it is blanketed by snow for seven months in the year. Its wealth of uranium will triple Canada's output next year.

"Some of us will have wasted our time," says Don. "It's like the Irish Sweep, but Beaver Lodge offers more winners than Dublin. One tiny borehole there recently struck a body of pitchblende—the mother substance of uranium—worth $112,000."

Pitchblende is found in cracks in the 2,000,000-year-old rocks of Canada's northern wilderness. Rich veins of the dark, brittle substance, looking like coal with the gloss gone, may be only a few inches wide, but hundreds of feet long.

"Any amateur can become a uranium hunter," says Don. "All you need is a pair of stout boots, a Geiger counter for locating uranium, and enough wits to keep yourself alive in the bush."

* * *

The news of the huge uranium find spotlights the remarkable growth of Canada, in power and prosperity, since the turn of the century.

In 1900 the 5,250,000 Canadians who nestled along the lengthy frontier did not know they were sitting on the world's richest treasure field.

They could not guess that their prospecting sons would not discount a single square mile of the Europe-sized northland which they themselves despised and abandoned to the half-breed fur trappers and hardy gold-rush adventurers.

Now, a population matching that of Greater London has seen its own dollar acclaimed by the world's financiers at the expense of the once almighty U.S. dollar.

For Canada, with a total work force of only 5,300,000 adults, rivals France as the third largest trading nation of the world, while her per capita foreign trade exceeds even that of the U.S.

Reason for Canada's phenomenal production is abundant cheap electric power, harnessed from the innumerable thundering waterfalls. Only one-fifth of this power has yet been tamed, but it is already yielding 13,340,000 horsepower of energy daily.

Cheap power has enabled Canadians to become the world's second richest people, with a national income per average family of four of $3,864 and earning average factory wages of $56 a week. They have an achievable ambition of a car in every garage, a washing machine in every kitchen, and a lake-shore summer cottage.

Canada's small labor force leads the world in the production of platinum, nickel and asbestos. It ranks second in gold and zinc; third in silver; fourth in copper. An intelligent guess at secret figures is that it ranks second in the output of uranium and radium.

She is the world's largest exporter of newsprint. Three out of every five papers read in the free world are printed on Canadian paper. She grows enough wheat to feed 100,000,000 people and is the largest exporter of fish and the second largest of wheat and cattle.

This country could provide her undiminished living standards for a population of 100,000,000 or six times the present number.

Some of her new cities certainly will spring up as mining towns in the Arctic. Their inhabitants, enjoying the midnight sun in summer and the mid-day moon in winter, will live in central-heated homes, with kitchens containing every electrical gadget which can convert the rich miner's wife from chore girl to clean-fingered switch operator.

Aesop by Telephone

(From The Christian Science Monitor)

ACCORDING to one school of modern folklore, America is the land of all that is novel, original, and progressive in the way of business enterprise. Another, less reliable, has it that every important device from the submarine to the telephone was invented by a Russian.

But wait till they hear about Vienna. In Vienna the telephones are operated by the Austrian post office. And in that ancient capital of the Hapsburgs one may dial a selected number for a recorded report of the skiing conditions, as your American telephone subscriber does for the weather forecast. Or where a patient New York voice says, "The correct time now is 5.37½." Vienna's dialing system will provide bus and train schedules, football results, or a recipe for dinner.

To all this now is to be added (on September 1) a number from which a nonplussed parent can obtain a recorded bedtime fairy tale for children. But the service distinctly Viennese—which proves that after two wars Vienna is still the city of Mozart and Strauss—is this: a true A-tone for musicians.

After all these unusual telephone services, will one of our Austrian readers please tell us: Do you ever get a wrong number in Vienna?

Victoria in Beard and Crinoline

From Files of The Daily British Colonist of August, 1865

By G. E. MORTIMORE

ARRIVAL of a new warship in Victoria was followed by a race between certain civilians to see who would reach the ship first. The runners were not girls seeking naval husbands, but merchants with the gleam of future profit in their eyes.

"H.M.S. Clio, Captain Turnour, arrived yesterday afternoon in Esquimalt, forty-five days out from Panama direct," The Daily British Colonist reported. "The Clio is a steam corvette carrying twenty-two guns with a complement of 290 men. She brings a number of supernumeraries for this station. We understand that she was off Rare Rocks at 9 o'clock on Wednesday night, but owing to a thick fog was unable to make her destination."

In another column of the same issue, the Colonist reported "a race between two Gilpins, members of the City Council, and vendors of tea, coffee and other spices, for the first chance of offering to supply the messes of a newly-arrived ship of war."

"After a devil-take-the-hindmost scamper down to Esquimalt, the ponderous Yates street dealer having the most powerful quadruped beat him off the Burlington Arcade and succeeded in getting on board the ship first, but to his great surprise found that with all his speed another rival dealer, partner in a well-known establishment on Fort Street, had beaten him and was already on board complacently soliciting orders.

"On returning ashore the purveyor of Government Street was met going off, having constrained to wait for a boat, but solacing himself with the conviction that a certain mysterious document which he carried in his breast pocket would suffice to work the miracle."

What the document was, and whether or not it worked, the Colonist did not say.

* * *

Evan Walters, charged by Sgt. Blake of the city police with being a deserter from H.M.S. Sutlej, blamed the devil for his action.

"The officer informed the magistrate that Walters had gone into a saloon, and representing himself to be specially authorized to assist the police in apprehending deserters, succeeded in obtaining a change of clothes.

"Walters, on being asked if he had anything to say to the charge, thus addressed the magistrate: 'I had no intention of deserting, but the devil had a strong hold of me, and put me into these clothes, sir. I should like to shift this rig as soon as I can, sir' (laughter). He was ordered to be handed over to the naval authorities."

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

IT is a gruesome thought, but the migration of the birds southward has already begun. From the Arctic and sub-Arctic regions where they mostly nest, the shore birds have begun their trek. And numerous other species like the martins and the swallows are lining the telephone wires and doing their final engine tests in miniature aerobatics before their take-off across the wide Missouri.

A tremendous part of the migration occurs at night; and in recent years, by watching the full moon through medium powered telescopes that can be fixed in position, field naturalists have begun a curious count of the night migration of a great many species of birds. You can actually see the birds passing across the moon and count them. Two watchers, a few miles apart, seeing of course, different birds crossing the moon's face, get about the same count per hour, and the same increase and decrease as the midnight hour passes and the dawn approaches. Over 200 ornithologists and astronomers have organized a systematic watching system on the passage of birds across the moon's disc. And now a continent-wide program is being organized by Louisiana State University. They are inviting anybody and everybody who has access to a small telescope to join in the voluntary work of counting birds across the moon and by writing to Robert J. Newman at the Museum of Zoology, Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, La. they will be sent the particulars of the enterprise, the forms to fill out and details of how to proceed with the business of watching and making a count.

By enlisting people all over the continent this fall a mass of particulars especially referring to the hours of passage of the heaviest numbers, together with weather on the particular night, and so forth, will add very important material to the understanding of the most mysterious of all aspects of birds—their migration.

With the naked eye you can often see the southward flying birds against the moon. But with a low power telescope or binoculars, you may sometimes see what appears to be a blizzard of small birds soundlessly plunging through the night. They are going from us, by the millions every hour.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

A syndicated authority on grammar discusses the tenses of verbs but does nothing to clear up the situation in which a woman, at 5.15, says: "I'm due at the hairdresser's at 4.30."

Now the Russians claim they discovered North America. But, as the Englishman said after four days on one of our transcontinental trains, how could they miss?

Poker-Faced Peer Now Busiest Briton

LONDON, Aug 24 (Reuters)—A poker-faced millionaire peer who inherited almost 50,000 acres of land and a magnificent castle at the age of nine now is one of the busiest men in Britain.

He is the Duke of Norfolk Earl Marshal of England, the man who directed the funerals of the last two kings, the coronation of the last king and the wedding of the present queen.

This summer he began the biggest job of his career—planning the coronation of the Queen, the great pageant which next June 2 will be witnessed by hundreds of millions of people through most of the civilized world via radio, television or films if not in person.

The job falls to him, Britain's premier duke, because King Richard III nearly 500 years ago took a warm liking to an ancestor, a young Earl of Arundel and made him Duke of Norfolk and Earl Marshal with the honor of standing at the royal right hand at the coronation and assisting in placing the crown on the royal head.

Although the weddings, funerals and coronations he manages are closely associated with the Church of England and the nation is constitutionally sworn to accept only a Protestant monarch, the present duke like his forebears is a staunch Roman Catholic.

As deputy chairman and supreme ceremonial authority of the coronation commission—the Duke of Edinburgh, husband of the Queen is chairman. Norfolk is custodian of centuries of hallowed royal tradition.

Spectators in Westminster Abbey will see him only as a braided dignitary carrying the gold baton of office and looking magnificently important next to the Queen but every stately manoeuvre during the august drama of the coronation will have been planned by him in detail months before.

Preserving historical precedents and ceremonial privileges of lesser peers should come as second nature to the 44-year-old duke. When he was 27 years old he had charge of the elaborate funeral of George V.

He succeeded to his title at the age of nine. When he came of age he inherited 49,900 acres of land country seats in Yorkshire and Derbyshire, several square miles of real estate in Sheffield and the whole seaside town of Littlehampton, plus beautiful Arundel Castle in southern England, second in size and splendor only to Windsor itself.

Suave Art Thief Gone But Doors Still Locked

NEW YORK, Aug 24 (AP). That glamour aristocrat of yesterday's underworld, the suave art thief—is dead duck today. But that doesn't mean the museums, dealers and private collectors are leaving windows unlocked at night.

The art world made it so difficult for professional thieves that a hot old master is one of the least negotiable pieces of loot imaginable. As the pros turned elsewhere for a fast buck, a different type of criminal, the crank and fumbling amateur, moved in to give owners of objects d'art a headache. Occasionally the new crooks succeed in snatching valuable paintings.

TOO TRACEABLE

Not much stealing of art has been going on the the last 15 years explains J. R. Beisel of the Travelers' Insurance Company, which handles considerable old master business in this country. "Those things are too traceable. Anyone who buys such things doesn't want to put them in vaults out of sight. They want to hang them for their own pleasure and that of friends. Almost every art treasure today is pretty well catalogued and people know where they are."

Probably the most celebrated theft of a famous painting was that of Da Vinci's "Mona Lisa" from the Louvre in 1911. The thief was an Italian, Vincenzo Perugia, a workman for the picture-cleaning firm at the museum. Arrested two years later when he offered it for sale to a dealer, Perugia explained he'd done it as revenge against Napoleon I, who had raided Italy's art treasures as a conquering general.

In 1939, a Russian-born artist in Paris received a two-year jail sentence for old master stealing. He slipped Watteau's "L'Indifferent," valued at $200,000—from its frame. He returned it two months later, explaining he was "disgusted" with the museum's restoration methods and had taken the painting to do the job himself in his attic studio.

HIDDEN 25 YEARS

The famous Gainsborough "Duchess of Devonshire" was stolen from a London gallery before the turn of the century by an American thief, Adam Worth. He smuggled it out of the country in a false-bottomed trunk and hid it 25 years.

Sometimes cranks destroy art. Early in 1945 a 29-year-old man mutilated nine valuable paintings in the Yale University art gallery because the faces in the paintings resembled persons who had threatened to do harm to his mother.

Nowadays it's even hard for the spur-of-the-moment thief or vandal to get his hands on art treasures. Most museums and galleries have a maximum of guards, electric eyes and a complicated electric alarm system designed to go off when there is any tampering.

Missionary Dies in North

WRANGELL, Alaska, Aug. 23 (UP)—Presbyterians of Alaska paid homage here today to Mrs. William Tamaree, for nearly [illegible] years a missionary of the Presbyterian Church. She died Wednesday at the age of 90.

Scores of persons attended funeral services for the woman who had been the first female elder of the church in the United States after the board of missions had authorized woman elders.

Mrs. Tamaree was born in Victoria but had been in Alaska since the age of three. She went through the Indian uprising of 1869 when the guns of old Fort Wrangell were turned on the Indians after the killing of a white man by Scutdoo, an Indian of high rank.

She was commissioned a missionary with her first husband, Louis Paul, and served at Klukwan, Alaska. He died in 1886. She married William Tamaree in 1905.

VANCOUVER, Aug 23 (BUP)—Pert Dorothy Hall tonight was named Miss Vancouver of 1952 at the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver—the big city's choice to compete in the Miss P.N.E. contest at the fair beginning Monday.

Dorothy, an 18-year-old U.B.C. student, entered the contest as Miss Kitsilano and won out over five lovely contestants in a close competition.

The new queen of Vancouver who wouldn't say yes or no to the question of whether there was a boy friend out front cheering, plans to enter the St. Paul's Hospital nursing school after her university days are over and study to become an X-ray technician.

She is the daughter of well known Vancouver dentist Dr. F. M. Hall of 4276 Quesnelle Drive and attended Kitsilano High School.

Dorothy competes Monday against beauties from 13 other communities throughout the province, including Victoria's Gayle Webster.

Bruce has been delivering The Colonist since July 1. It takes him three-quarters of an hour to deliver to 77 customers.

He hasn't decided what sort of job he'd like to do when he leaves school. In September he will start at Central Junior High School.

Asked if he was going to be a newspaperman when he graduated, he said, "No, and that's for sure."

Even watching Colonist photographer, Jim Ryan, develop his picture did not incline Bruce towards the life of a newspaperman.

Mystifying, Maiming Malady Adds More Victims Yearly

Every year more and more Victorians are being struck down by a mysterious medical crippler that chains them to beds and wheelchairs with no hope of release.

This latent destroyer that preys on the young and healthy goes under the impressive name of multiple sclerosis, a nerve disease that has mystified the medical [illegible] cause and cure are still a mystery.

As deadly as polio or cancer, but with no known or suspected cause, multiple sclerosis strikes, for no apparent reason, at healthy young people between the ages of 20 and 45.

In this city alone there are at least 88 known cases of this mystifying ailment. An association, a branch of a national association, the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada, has been formed.

It is the aim of this local group to build or have built, a clinic that will not only benefit those stricken with multiple sclerosis but all sufferers of neurological diseases.

THOUSANDS YEARLY

Few people realize the significance of this obscure disease despite the fact that thousands of people all over the world are attacked by it every year.

Basically, nerve impulses cease being transmitted with the strength of normal healthy nerves and an effect, not unlike a short circuit in electricity, takes place. Where this damage occurs, the insulation around the nerve is destroyed and is replaced by a scar tissue that blocks the passage of the nerve impulses and causes a crippling effect.

As the scar tissue grows denser the nerve impulses are stopped altogether and the victim loses all use of that part of the body.

The final result is the destruction of all nerve tissue in the body, with scar tissue taking its place. Being a progressive disease, it first damages individual sensory and muscular activities, such as the sense of touch and the power of locomotion, and moves on to maim the rest of the body.

MORE INTENSITY

It recedes and re-occurs with more intensity at each attack until the person afflicted is a helpless cripple. In some cases it reaches a certain stage and stops, leaving the body only partially crippled. Such people consider themselves more fortunate than other sufferers.

One of the most tragic aspects of the disease is that it attacks only healthy persons between the ages of 20 and 45, sometimes crippling and blinding completely within a few months.

The first recorded case of multiple sclerosis known to medical men was discovered in London during the war in a scrap paper drive.

It was the handwritten account of Augustus d'Este, a grandson of George III, and dated 1828. The paper outlined his own case known at that time as "disseminated sclerosis" and described a pattern of symptoms well known to doctors and researchers of the present day.

The account, written in the form of a diary, was published [illegible]

TRAGIC CASE

A startling example of how this terrible malady will suddenly strike is the tragic case of Lou Gehrig, one of professional baseball's most famous and beloved players.

A man who neither smoked nor drank and who lived under a routine of constant training and supervised diet, he was without doubt a fine physical specimen when he first noticed that something was wrong with his arm.

The first symptom to show itself was the steady decline of his playing ability. Gradually he slipped to the stage where he could no longer stay in the Yankee line-up and finally, he was unable to play baseball at all.

After a heartrending, and now famous farewell from the game he loved so much, Gehrig took a job as one of New York's parole commissioners but it was not long before even this type of work proved too much for him.

As the disease grew worse he was not able to dress or feed himself, and he eventually became bedridden. Just two years after he had left baseball he was dead.

UNKNOWN ORIGIN

Nothing could be done to stay the tragic death of Lou Gehrig nor the death and maiming of thousands of others preyed upon by this disease of unknown origin.

Surveys conducted by researchers, doctors and scientists have done little to uncover the cause of multiple sclerosis, but they have brought to light some interesting factors that will no doubt play an important role in the final uncovering of the cause.

One of the observed features is that the number of persons afflicted by multiple sclerosis decreases closer to the equator, tending to show that a warm, sunny climate might have the effect of staying the attacks.

Two surveys have shown that multiple sclerosis cripples more persons than polio and there has been some indication that it is on the increase. None of the surveys has drawn any definite conclusions, but enough has been found to show that little progress has been made toward finding a cure.

One survey, conducted in Europe by Dr. Roy Swank, who has been for many years one of the leading figures in the fight again multiple sclerosis, has shown that economic conditions of any given country play a vital part in the increase and decrease of the sickness.

INCIDENCE DECREASED

For example, hospital records from several countries indicated that during the period 1931-35, while there was a depression, the incidence of multiple sclerosis decreased. From 1936-39 during the recovery from the depression there was an increase of the disease. There was another decrease during the war years and after the war, from 1946-48, there was again a great increase.

But in Sweden, where there was a fairly stable diet throughout the same period, there was little or no change in the incidence of multiple sclerosis.

In the United States an association for the study of multiple sclerosis was formed in 1946, and in 1948 the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada was organized in Montreal under the guidance of Dr. C. K. Russell. During the past four years, 13 chapters across Canada have sprung up.

The Victoria Chapter was organized in 1949, and now has a standing membership of 88. One [illegible] local chapter is to stimulate public interest in the disease and stress the need for more research.

Two of the people instrumental in getting the Victoria group organized were Col. R. R. Longridge and Mrs. Mary P. Jennings, who is herself a sufferer from multiple sclerosis.

One of the activities of the local chapter is a once-a-month social evening, the first of which was held at Red Cross House, July 30.

This social gathering was the first opportunity for some to get out and meet others suffering the same disease. In some cases it was the first time in months that they had been outside their own rooms.

The parent body in Montreal publishes a bulletin designed to keep all sufferers up to date on what is being accomplished in their cause by research. Besides the case histories and data on present research being conducted, it offers a ray of hope to all Canadian sufferers of this strange malady.

In the field of medical disabilities there are many types of criminals still at large, but the one most uncontrolled, uncontrollable, mysterious and inexplicable is still multiple sclerosis.

Despite its hardness, a diamond is brittle and may be chipped by a fall.

Winter Program Planned

City Red Cross Corps To Step Up Recruiting

Recruiting for Victoria's Red Cross Corps will be stepped up September 8 when the unit opens its winter program, officials of the Victoria and District Red Cross Society announced yesterday.

Young women between the ages of 18 and 45 may apply for membership in the unit which provides instruction in a number of useful skills and furnishes opportunities for constructive leisure time activity.

At present members of the corps are undergoing instruction in motor transport, a course given by Major Green at the Bay Street Armories.

Similar classes will be conducted later in the season as the winter schedule gets under way.

Training starts on Monday, September 8, with a roll call at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort Street at 7.30 in the evening. Women between the prescribed ages are invited to attend and hear guest speakers describe the activities of the corps.

At that meeting Miss Helen Gowen, recruiting officer, will accept the names of applicants either before roll call, or following the session which concludes at 9.30.

Meetings will follow each Monday evening from 7.30 to 9.30 at which recruits will be given basic training in First Aid, elementary drill and instruction in Civilian Defense and Disaster Training, Home Nursing and other departments.

In addition to such instructional courses, the corps is active in all other branches of Red Cross work.

Sockeye Pack Best in Years

SEATTLE, Aug. 23 (CP)—The Puget Sound sockeye salmon pack reached 216,000 cases, worth $1,500,000 wholesale, this week for the best season during the current four-year cycle since 1912, the State Department of Fisheries announced today.

Fishing fleets reported more than 1,000,000 fish taken by midweek in this cycle's run. Salmon run more thickly at a certain period once every four years, which is the average life-cycle for this type of fish.

The current season's take is about 25 per cent above the previous high in 1948.

Deputy Files Debt Petition

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Aug. 23 (CP)—Clive Planta, appointed deputy fisheries minister for Newfoundland two years ago, Tuesday filed a petition in Supreme Court asking that he be declared bankrupt.

He listed liabilities at $13,570, including an amount due a bank and guaranteed by Liberal Premier Joseph Smallwood and Senator Ray Petten.

Listed creditors included firms and individuals from St. John's to British Columbia.

Britain Expects 750,000 Visitors, Is Finding Out What Pleases Them

LONDON, Aug. 22 (CP).—Britain expects 750,000 visitors from other countries during 1952 and she hopes they will spend some £120,000,000 while they are here.

The British Travel and Holiday Association, which sets out these estimates, meanwhile is trying to find out what pleases or dis- [illegible]

With this in mind, it has devised a system of stamped and addressed cards to be filled out by tourists when they leave.

Thousands of replies have been received from people of many nationalities but the association says that Canadians do not send many.

On the basis of replies received it appears that most Canadians spent about six weeks in the country and generally liked what they found. Complaints were few [illegible] used to spend most of their time in the United Kingdom now go to the continent to get away from Britain's austerity.

Their trip, fares included, cost them about $1,000. They found the prices of food, drink and commodities what they had expected, if not cheaper. Their general impression was that the cost of living is lower in Britain on many items, though they did not comment on the scale of wages and salaries.

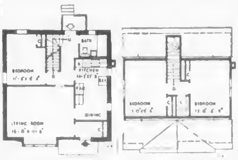
[illegible] found hotel rooms too cold. A Toronto man said he thought the food much better than he had been led to believe from newspapers. A Halifax school teacher said she found the price of a cup of coffee much higher than in Canada and a Newfoundland visitor said he could think of better countries in which to have his shirts laundered.

Most Canadians indicated they were anxious to return to Britain—particularly for the coronation. One Ottawa visitor was critical about tipping and a woman from Winnipeg deplored the lack of coat hangers in hotels. Various opinions concerning the courtesy and lack of same in cab drivers was evident. And a Toronto man wanted to know why he couldn't have water served with his meals.

An official of the Travel and Holidays Association said the most critical visitors are the French. The most complimentary are Americans. Asked if the Americans didn't offer any chilly observations about Britain's coffee, he said: "Well, yes, but usually in a light-hearted manner. One man from Kansas City told us we ought to make the sale of bad coffee an offense punishable by death." Asked how he felt about this, the official said: "Well . . . as a matter of fact, old boy, I agree."

House Has Economy Without Severity

This five-room house was designed by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for economy without severity. The compact arrangement of the kitchen-dining room permits a good-sized living room which is made more attractive by a bay window. The bay also adds to the exterior appearance of the house. Ample closet space is provided in the two upstairs bedrooms as well as the smaller one on the ground floor.



The exterior dimensions of the house are 25' 8" by 25' 4" and the area is 1,034 square feet. The cubic measure is 11,950 cubic feet. Working drawings may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at a minimum cost.

Loan Finances Home Up to 80 Per Cent

Contemplating building a house can be akin to living in a dream world until the moment the prospective home owner is faced with the problem of financing the project. It is then that hopes and plans are put on a business basis.

Many home owners have found the facilities of the National Housing Act useful at this time. An N.H.A. loan provides financial assistance which may be as high as 80 per cent of the estimated cost of the house and land. However, if you are proposing to borrow money it is well to remember that annual mortgage payments plus taxes and insurance should not exceed 23 per cent of your gross annual income.

A system of joint loans entered into by the Crown company, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, and approved lending institutions is the method used to provide financial aid under the N.H.A. They are called joint loans because 75 per cent of the money is furnished by a lending institution (approved life insurance and trust and loan companies) and the remaining 25 per cent by C.M.H.C. A list of approved lending institutions is available from any office of C.M.H.C.

However, you are not required to deal with two organizations to obtain a loan. You apply for a loan through the lending company you select and they forward the necessary forms to C.M.H.C. for approval.

Completion of a preliminary questionnaire form is the first step and three copies of this form are required. It gives the lending company general information, an outline of your proposed building plans and the amount of loan requested.

If your proposal seems satisfactory you will receive a Borrower's Application for Loan form which, when completed, should be returned to the lending institution. Full details of your lot, the plans and specifications of the house and a breakdown of the cost of construction must be submitted.

If your loan application is approved you will be informed in writing by the lending institution and the way is then clear for you to start construction. You must own the lot before construction is started and building operations must be under way not later than three months after the date of loan approval.

No application for a loan can be approved where work has proceeded beyond the bare excavation stage.

If the total estimated cost to the homeowner does not exceed the corporation's lending value the loan will be made on an 80-per-cent basis with maximums of $10,000 for a one family dwelling and $13,200 for a duplex. If the total estimated cost exceeds the corporation's lending value the loan is made on a 66⅔ per cent basis with maximums of $8,500 for a one family dwelling and $11,600 for a duplex.

Adequate Insulation Requisite For Home Economy, Comfort

Adequate insulation, correctly installed, is a requisite in a Canadian home for economical year round comfort. Experts estimate that proper insulation may save a home-owner as much as 35 per cent of his fuel costs for each heating season.

In the summer months, insulation is just as desirable: cooler, more comfortable temperatures [illegible] to retard the flow of heat into the house. Insulation saves money because the smaller heat loss from a house means less fuel required, and smaller heating equipment can be used. Less cleaning of walls and ceilings is usually required because dust and dirt are not attracted to warm surfaces as much as they are to cold surfaces.

The best location of insulation depends on the design of the house and the use to be made of the roof or attic space. When the space above the ceiling is not to be used as living space, the ceiling itself should be insulated and the space between the insulation and the roof should be well ventilated. This is particularly desirable for comfort during the summer months as much of the heat reaches the interior of the house through the roof. If there is no separate ceiling construction, the roof should be insulated.

In the one and one-half story type of house, insulation is generally installed between the ceiling joists from the top of the outside walls to the knee walls or dwarf partitions of the second floor bedrooms, up between the studs of the dwarf partitions, then between the roof rafters over the sloping part of the second floor bedroom ceilings and across the flat part of the bedroom ceilings. This method provides an insulating air space in the triangle formed by the first floor ceiling, the dwarf partitions and the roof, and another air space over the second floor bedrooms. These air spaces should be well ventilated.

All exterior walls, and all walls adjacent to unheated areas such as attached garages and attic stairs should be insulated. To prevent heat loss, any floor over a cold space should be insulated.

Controlling the heat loss through the floor for basementless houses requires special insulation. If the construction is slab on ground, insulation should be installed at the perimeter. If the construction is on a foundation which leaves a crawl space the floor should be insulated and the crawl space should be ventilated.

B.C. Golfers Win Willingdon Cup; McElroy Brilliant

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 23. (BUP)—British Columbia's favored Willingdon Cup foursome staged a desperate uphill drive in the last 18 holes today to wrest the famed inter-provincial golf trophy from Ontario at Vancouvers' Capilano course.

Down nine strokes after the first 18 holes, the host squad played near par golf the rest of the way to wind up with a 36-hole total of 587 strokes, six less than Ontario's 593 total.

The Willingdon Cup record is 578, nine less than the B.C. figure.

The most brilliant showing of the day was by young Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener, Ont., who tied the course 36 hole record with a sizzling four-under-par 138, made up of two 69's.

British Columbia's break came when Nick Weslock of Ontario faltered on the last 18 and Bill Mawhinney of Vancouver, favoring an injured back gained nine strokes on the Windsor shotmaker.

AGGRAVATES INJURY

British Columbia's victory was marred by an aggravation of Mawhinney's back injury while he played on the 17th fairway. The big Vancouver ace just back from the U.S. amateur semi-finals, barely managed to finish the match. Despite his pain, he birdied the last hole.

Royal Canadian Golf Association officials then ordered Mawhinney taken to hospital for an examination. It was not known if Mawhinney could take part in the Canadian amateur tournament, which starts at Capilano Monday.

Quebec, in strong contention after the first round, when it trailed first-place Ontario by 296 to 299, faded badly in the stretch and wound up third with 599.

In fourth place was Manitoba, whose contingent posted 604. The other scores were Alberta fifth with 624, Nova Scotia sixth with 632, New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island seventh with 638 and Saskatchewan, out of contention from the start, eighth and last with a monumental 661, 74 strokes back of British Columbia.

Vancouver's Walt McElroy came second to Kesselring in individual performances with 139, one stroke behind the Kitchener ace. McElroy had rounds of 67, best of the day, and 72.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

What to Do?

Doug Peden must have been doing some mental wrestling for the past few days. Both Doug and Mrs. Peden qualified for today's ladder derby fish-off but Doug happens to be playing manager of the Chinooks, who play the last games of the city amateur baseball final this afternoon. If Doug gives up a chance to win that coveted Chris-Craft it will be quite a sacrifice . . . Don Fracchia, who will be remembered as the hard-throwing third-baseman of the 1950 Wenatchee Chiefs, has switched to the pitching mound with considerable success. Latest available figures show him with an 11-11 record in the class "A" Western League . . . Cec Garriott disdains the use of the intentional base on balls and no one can be critical with the results he has obtained from the Tyees this season . . . Vancouver Caps, who won 40 and lost 36 under Bill Schuster, have a 20-23 record under Edo Vanni and a 2-1 record for Ray Tran, who handled the club in the series which concluded here last night . . . Seattle Ironmen are thinking of a new name and hockey fans have been asked to submit suggestions.

Results in the U.S. Amateur Golf Championship gave the sport a great boost in the Pacific Northwest, which had the two finalists and three of the semi-finalists. The victory for smooth-swinging Jack Westland bore out earlier predictions that the Everett veteran was a definite threat . . . Mangement of the Victoria Tyees, thinking of ways to boost attendance for the last home games, might give "Radio Appreciation Night" a thought. It's usually a success in other cities . . . Steve Mesner, the veteran ex-major leaguer who handled the shortstop duties for Spokane last season, is leading the Pioneer League in hitting with .356 in the latest averages . . . And wasn't that a disgraceful display of officiating at last night's game? It may or may not have lost the Tyees the decision, for the Caps suffered too, but it was certainly inept.

W.I.L. Rumblings

One hears that Dick Richards, who has already operated teams at Wenatchee and Yakima, is now anxious to move his franchise from Tri-City to a fourth town. And while this is only one of many rumors, the statement from Wenatchee that the Chiefs would definitely be back next season makes it probable that there won't be any changes or, at the most, one. The W.I.L. would dearly love to have Calgary and Edmonton in but a 10-team league is hardly feasible and Edmonton's John Ducey, "Mr. Baseball" in the Alberta capital, says he wants no part of the W.I.L. while Lewiston and Salem are league members because of the traveling involved. Lewiston may be only a two-year proposition but the Broncs have done well enough this season to stick around for a second and Salem is getting by under enthusiastic home ownership. However, the death of club-president Donald Young in that tragic fishing accident off the Oregon coast yesterday is a body blow to the club. There is also the possibility Calgary and Edmonton may become part of a Western Canada league. The semi-pro circuit in operation this season—Saskatoon, North Battleford, Moose Jaw, Regina and Estevan—did well at Saskatoon, North Battleford and Moose Jaw and the addition of the two big Alberta cities and, perhaps, Lethbridge, could make a fine class "C" professional league . . . aside to Dan (Tacoma News-Tribune) Walton: It's good to see you back . . . Frank Stranahan, the millionaire amateur golf star, is reported to have bet $5,000 with crooner Don Cherry in their match in the U.S. Amateur. Stranahan lost.

Bush-League Action

This chronicler's loyalty to the New York Yankees was rudely put in the test last week when manager Casey Stengel refused the use of Yankee Stadium to the Chicago White Sox and offered as a feeble excuse that it would cost the multi-millionaire Yanks money to keep the groundskeepers on for extra duty and that batting practice for two of the Sox would mess up the outfield grass. If that was big league so are the Little League champions . . . Saskatoon Quakers sell season tickets on the installment plan of $2 down and $2 weekly. The cost for the 35 games is $38.40 or $45, depending on whether or not the purchaser wants a $1.20 or a $1.50 seat, effecting a saving of $3.60 and $4.50, respectively . . . Overlooked in the report of the Wednesday night lacrosse game was the presentation of a trainer's kit to Shamrock-trainers Deans Blackstock and Dusty Mole by Tom Gray, acting on behalf of the Shamrock fans in the D.V.A. Hospital. The veterans enjoy their sports and are probably the city's best fans . . . Casey Stengel, who can be as wrong as anybody despite his record, blorted, "why those Philadelphia guys must be crazy" when told last year the price on Bobby Shantz was $125,000. The Yanks would jump at the chance to pay twice that now.

* * * *

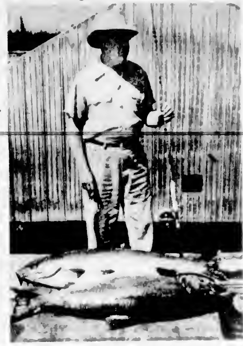
Springs, Tyees Lure Anglers

Two more boosters for Vancouver Island fishing are Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hill of Denver, Colorado. Mrs. Hill had beginner's luck and is shown with 25½-pound spring salmon which she landed at Cowichan Bay Thursday. Her husband was not so successful and had to be content with five-pounder which he holds at right.—(Colonist photo by Bud Kinsman.)



Undisputed king of Tyee anglers is Wallace H. McMcMillan of Victoria. He caught these two, weighing 50 and 51½ pounds, at Campbell River this week, boosting his lifetime total to 255. He was Tyee Man in 1943 with 60½-pounder and again in 1951 with 67-pounder.—(Photo by The Baldwins, Campbell River.)

Special to the Colonist

NANAIMO, Aug. 23.—Archie Browning equaled the season's scoring record in the Inter-City Lacrosse League here tonight as he sparked Victoria Shamrocks to a 19-10 triumph over Nanaimo Native Sons.

Browning scored nine goals to equal the record established last Tuesday by Vancouver's Ernie Smith. He would undoubtedly have set a new mark but was forced to sit out five minutes of the final period after a fight with Nanaimo's Paddy Patterson.

Also cashing in in the point race was teammate Whitey Severson, who scored three goals and set up four more. Severson's effort was not enough to protect his lead in the individual scoring race, however, and Browning moved in front by one point with one game remaining.

Shamrocks were without Norm Baker, Tommy Druce and Jackie Northup but had little trouble after the first period. They trailed 3-4 at the quarter, went ahead 7-6 at the half and scored seven straight goals in the third period before Nanaimo countered to leave the count at 14-8 at three-quarters.

Baker is in hospital with a ruptured blood vessel in his leg and may be lost for the rest of the season. Druce has a sprained ligament in his leg but should be ready to resume action in the playoffs. Northup was out of town. Bob Long and Ed Popham were used as replacements.

Coach Arnie Ferguson and Bob Monaghan shared the spotlight with Browning and Severson, and Jim Hetherington turned in another creditable performance in goal. Spud Morelli and Jake Trotzuk were the pick of Nanaimo.

Play-Off Games Highlight Sports Card

Play-offs for city championships in amateur baseball and softball highlight today's sports program.

Chinooks and Farmer's Construction will settle the amateur baseball title when they meet at Royal Athletic Park at 1.30. Chinese Students and B.C. Forest Products meet in the fourth game of the senior "A" men's softball final at Upper Central at 2.30.

The league-champion Farmers currently trail Chinooks, two games to one in the best-of-five final. Norm Forbes will likely get the starting mound assignment for the Construction crew in an attempt to square the series. If Farmers win the opener, the deciding game will be played as the second half of a doubleheader, beginning at approximately 4 p.m.

B.C. Forest Products will be out to wrap up the softball crown. They have two victories and a tie for the three games to date and will likely throw ace Bud Ross in an attempt to end the series. Students will probably counter with Bill Oliver.

Holes-in-One Snap From Either Side

ABILENE, Tex., Aug. 23 (AP)—Ever hear of a golfer getting a hole-in-one righthanded and another lefthanded?

Foy Fanning, professional at Abilene municipal course, has just done it.

In January, 1950, he shot the righthanded hole-in-one. This week he registered one lefthanded, using a nine iron for a 128-yard shot on hole No. 16.

Fanning has a theory that if a man is righthanded he should play golf lefthanded. He says the right arm is the master arm.

Turnesa Takes Stroke Lead

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Aug. 23 (AP)—Jim Turnesa, the P.G.A. champion, stroked his fifth consecutive nine-hole 34 today and added a 33 to take over the lead in the Fort Wayne open golf tournament.

His 203 total was 13 under par for the 54 holes. The final round is Sunday.

The steady Turnesa was the last man off the Fort Wayne Elks course and his eight-foot birdie putt on No. 17 took the three-quarter lead away from Julius Boros, the national open champ, and Ted Kroll, the half-way leader.

The muscular Boros, in a six-way tie for fifth place Friday, matched Turnesa's 67 today and Kroll took a 69. That gave them 204 totals.

Toppers Drop Opening Game

Toppers dropped the first game of the B.C. junior girls' softball championship to Collingwood, 6-5, at Central Park last night.

Second game in the best-of-five series will be played at 1.30 today with the third game, if necessary, following immediately.

Toppers did all their scoring in the fourth inning when Chris Boyd's three-run triple set off the rally. They were held to a lone hit in the other seven innings as Boles of the visitors outpitched Marguarita Shaw.

Ontario Girls Top Canadian Women's Swim

TORONTO, Aug. 23 (CP)—Two Ontario girls won the top spots in the Canadian women's amateur one-mile swim at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto tonight. Sixteen-year-old Shirley Campbell placed first in 26 minutes 44 seconds.

Fifteen-year-old Doreen Howat was second. Both swim for the Fergus, Ont., swimming club. It was the first try at the championship swim for both Fergus girls.

The winner of the C.N.E. men's two-mile swim today was Hart Devenney of Toronto and formerly of Winnipeg. His time was 50 minutes and 45 seconds.

Second was George Park of Hamilton, third Bernard Serresteg of Dearborn, Mich., fourth Gordon Brockie of Toronto, fifth Charles Scott of West Virginia, and sixth Edward Grinstead of Windsor.

Trail To Meet City Winners

TRAIL, B.C., Aug. 23 (CP).—Trail Pontiacs moved into the semi-finals of the British Columbia senior men's softball play-offs tonight when they eliminated Castlegar Cubs 1-0 in the fifth game of the Trail and district finals.

The individual star of the series was Trail ace Elsio Vanelli, who pitched 45 scoreless innings of play-off ball for the club.

Pontiacs leave Monday for Victoria and the best-of-three provincial semi-finals, the winner to meet Vancouver in the final.

Dallas Owner Hits Majors

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 23 (AP).—Owner Dick Burnett of the Texas League Dallas Eagles today charged the major leagues with violating contracts and rules in maintaining a monopoly over minor league baseball.

Burnett's charges were contained in a 17-page statement which he planned to mail early next week to presidents of every minor league club, baseball commissioner Ford Frick, and George Trautman, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (the minors.)

Burnett also declared that if corrective measures are not taken, independent owners of minor league clubs "will be left with no alternative except to file appropriate proceedings in the courts."

Bing Too Busy, Cancels Entry

VANCOUVER, Aug. 23 (CP).—Bing Crosby today canceled his entry in the Canadian amateur golf tournament, opening Monday.

He telephoned Capilano Pro Jock McKinnon to say he was too busy to make the trip. "He was terribly sorry he couldn't make it, but he's just too tied up," McKinnon said.

Absence of Crosby is expected to reduce the gallery sharply.

Bob Abel, president of the W.I.L., had his sleep interrupted last night by a telephone call from irate officials of the Victoria Tyees and he will find a telegram waiting for him when he reaches his office tomorrow morning.

The Tyees officially protested the umpiring of Herman Ziruolo during last night's game with Vancouver Capilanos and no one in the crowd of 1,600 who saw the travesty will doubt their justification.

GOOD EARS

Ziruolo, who has had his troubles this season, ran into a sackful last night mainly because he appears to spend more attention listening for dugout remarks than he does to his umpiring.

He was at odds with players of both teams in the two series games he worked behind the plate for his ball and strike calls. His first trouble last night was with the Caps, who objected to some of his decisions from the dugout and were threatened with mass banishment.

PAINFUL FOUL

It started with the Tyees in the third inning when it appeared Don Pries was hit on the hand by a pitched ball and Ziruolo ruled the ball had hit the bat first.

Disagreement became more obvious in the eighth when Vancouver pitcher Tom Lovrich, attempting to score on a single standing up was blocked off the plate by catcher Ron Bottler but called safe.

Bottler protested sturdily to no avail but didn't get the thumb until the inning was over. His banishment caused a near riot with Ben Lorino, who had to be held back by teammates, leading the mass protest and finally joining Bottler in the clubhouse on orders from Ziruolo.

EMPTY BENCH

With the Tyees at bat in the ninth, Ziruolo cleared the Victoria dugout and there was another prolonged upheaval. There was more to come.

Trailing 10-6 going into their last turn at the plate the Tyees had scored a run and had two runners on the bags with two out. Carl Gunnarson, who relieved Jehosie Heard, had to bat for himself and he was the victim of Ziruolo's last two disputed decisions.

Gunnarson first hit a ball to left field which Victoria manager Cec Garriott, coaching at third, declared landed right on the foul line. Ziruolo called it a foul, then ended the game on the next pitch by calling Gunnarson out on a pitch which appeared [illegible].

The Tyees again stormed in and fans rushed to the scene, along with four sturdy policemen, who stood guard outside the umpires dressing room. It was lucky they were on hand.

Abel is reported to be going to Vancouver to have a talk with Ziruolo Monday and if nothing else, the strongly worded Victoria protest should result in a reshuffling of assignments and prevent Ziruolo and partner Red Eiler from returning on Thursday for the Salem series.

RED SAVED

Eiler incidentally escaped the storm but he was guilty of the most glaring call of all when he waved Granny Gladstone out at first base in the seventh with Jim Wert taking the shortstop's throw several feet off the bag at first base. That one took the Tyees out of an inning in which they managed to score three runs anyway.

The final score in the night game was 10-7, giving the Caps a series split and a 12-12 stand-off with the league leaders for the season. The loss went to Jehosie Heard and it was the fifth in a row for the little southpaw who now has an 18-11 record.

Ben Lorino won his 22nd in the afternoon 8-2 when he received the benefit of three timely double plays. The big lefthander was not in his usual form and was tagged for 11 hits, but he was tough in the pinches.

SPOKES LOSE TWO

The split enabled the Tyees to again stretch their lead to 11 games. Spokane Indians were stopped twice, 9-6 and 4-0, by the Lewiston Broncs as their dim pennant hopes flickered almost out. With only about 30 games left for each club the Spokes are 14 out on the losing side.

Other games saw the battle for third and fourth places get closer with only seven games separating the third-place Caps from the seventh-spot Tri-City Braves who took a pair from Wenatchee. Yakima moved in on fourth-place Salem by blanking the Solons 3-0, for their second straight win.

Moniz Bids for Bat Crown But Tyee Averages Slump

Victoria Tyee individual batting marks took a decided slump on their recent road trip.

As a result, only Bob Moniz, who is waging a strong bid for the league batting title, and Don Pries, who missed several games with a split finger, now boast averages above .300 among the regulars.

Moniz has picked up 21 hits in his last 54 trips to the plate, boosting his season's average to .342. It leaves him only eight points behind Wenatchee's Walt Pocekay who tops the league with a .350 mark.

Biggest slumps are shown by Jim Clark with seven for 55; Chuck Abernathy, eight for 41; John Treece, four for 44; Cec Garriott, six for 48, and Milt Martin, five for 37. Lu Branham is 12 for 44 and Granny Gladstone 14 for 54.

E. C. Manning Bests Salmon

Alberta premier E. C. Manning received the thrill of a lifetime at Qualicum Beach yesterday.

Out with guide Mike Gorick, who numbers Phil Harris among his customers, Mr. Manning hooked a lively 19½-pound spring salmon on a bucktail fly and brought his prize to gaff after a tense struggle.

He is one of many who have hooked springs on flys at the popular up-Island vacation centre, which has been one of the favored fishing spots for coho this season. An unnamed Californian also scored yesterday with a 17-pounder.

Victoria Combines junior soccer team will hold a workout at Central Junior High School at 10.30 this morning.

Track Stars Of U.S. Win In Scotland

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Aug. 23 (AP)—Led by Mal Whitfield of Columbus, O., and the U.S. Air Force, American Olympic track stars won four events today in an international meet before 50,000 spectators.

Whitfield, Olympic 800-metre titleholder, won the half mile in 1.56.7, then captured the 220-yard dash in 22.2 seconds.

Olympic high jump champion Walt Davis of Texas A. & M. hurt his leg but not before he won his event with a leap of 6 feet, 2 inches.

Jerry Biffle, Olympic broad jump champion from Denver, took his event with a leap of 23 feet 1½ inches. Parry O'Brien, Olympic shot put winner from Santa Monica, Calif., captured his event with a toss of 56 feet 2 inches—a Scottish record.

For some time the ancient game of golf has been looking for a new name on the big time.

No one had wearied of such leading stars as Ben Hogan, Sammy Snead, Lloyd Mangrum and Cary Middlecoff, the youngest of the group. But as long as variety is an important detail, what about entering the name of Julius Boros?

Here is a young golfer—especially young in the headlines. He is an extremely sound golfer. He has practically all of the shots—wood, iron and putter.

So far, Boros has won two of the year's biggest tournaments [illegible] the Open and the so-called "world" championship.

The Open is always the top choice. The May's "world" championship is worth $25,000 to the winner—just 10 times as much as other big ($2,500) tournaments bring. A crack golfer can play all year, win a lot of fancy shows, and still fall well below the $25,000 turn.

Middlecoff has been the best of the newcomers for the last few years. He has won an Open and many other big engagements.

But Boros beat Hogan in the Open and Middlecoff in the "world," which is sufficient testimony for the moment.

Hogan and Snead are close to 40. They will continue to be star golfers for some years to come. But, hot weather and 36-holes-a-day matches are beginning to take their toll. Neither is likely to get much better, although either one can still be as dangerous as a cobra at almost any start.

Snead still has the best swing in golf. Hogan still has the greatest combination of mental-physical ability. His swing almost matches Snead's.

But Ben is well ahead of them all when it comes to the two most important factors—concentration and determination. He is the most determined golfer I ever saw, and no one else has that steel-curtain concentration, with his entire idea focused on the next shot to be played.

Hogan keeps himself beyond any form of distraction, and distraction is one of the black sins of the old game.

Mass Improvement

"There is one angle you overlook," writes a bystander. "There is far more golf played today than there was from 1920 to 1930. That should mean there are many more fine golfers today. The field is tougher. Those years of competition that lead from coast to coast have developed many more fine players and many more strong competitors. Look at the scores. The better condition of most courses, steel shafts and the wedge can't be responsible for the great difference in scores. Scores that won big tournaments 20 or 30 years ago wouldn't be in the first 15 today."

This is partly true. Scores are far lower. The long span of hard competition has developed many great players. But look back to the 1920-1930 period. Among our best golfers then were Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Tommy Armour, Jim Barnes, Macdonald Smith, Jock Hutchison, Harry Cooper, Bobby Cruickshank, Bill Mehlhorn, Jacke Burke, George Von Elm and Johnny Farrell. Craig Wood, Lawson Little and Ralph Guldahl came on at a later period. Chick Evans, Jerry Travers and Francis Ouimet came before.

But here was a magnificent crop of fine players. They had to play without the steel shaft—without the wedge—without the better manicured courses.

Look at their records in British Opens in a day when England and Scotland had many stars on hand, although Harry Vardon, J. H. Taylor and James Braid were over the hill.

It must be taken for granted that golf has improved, although the absence of the game-learning caddie has been sadly felt lately. The field is full of fine golfers today. You might look over one of those P.G.A. tournaments some time.

Roughriders, Stampeders Win Opening Grid Games

REGINA, Aug. 23 (CP).—The defending football champions, Saskatchewan Roughriders started in where they left off last year by drubbing Edmonton Eskimos 25-5 today in the opening game of the 1952 W.I.F.U. season.

The Riders jumped off to 7-0 lead in the first quarter and stretched it to 13-0 at half time. They scored a converted touchdown in each of the third and fourth quarters while Edmonton got its only points with an unconverted major late in the game.

Holland Aplin led the Rider scorers by catching two touchdown passes. Tony Hungle and Wayne Anderson did honors for the other Saskatchewan majors. Del Wardien converted four touchdowns. Butch Avenger added the other point on a kick to the deadline.

RECORD CROWD

A capacity crowd of 12,000 fans—the largest opening day crowd on record—was on hand to watch the opener.

Young Glen McWhinney led the Esks to their only score. The former Winnipegger—Taking over at quarterback from Arnold—fired a 30-yard pass to Jim Chambers who lateralled to Prather on the five yard line and the big end ambled for the goal-line.

Edmonton played without the services of Coach Frank Filchock—out with a rib injury—and star halfback Rollie Miles.

BRIGHT STAR

WINNIPEG, Aug. 23 (CP).—Spearheaded by the running and passing of import Johny Bright, Calgary Stampeders upset the favored Winnipeg Blue Bombers 12-8 tonight in their opening game of the 1952 Western Inter-Provincial Football Union.

About 10,000 shirt-sleeved fans—the temperature was around 96 at kick-off time—saw Bright throw a 30-yard touchdown pass to and Paul Salata and crash through the heavy Winnipeg line for several good gains.

However, Stamps—tail-enders the last two years in the W.I.F.U.—had to take advantage of a fumble by rookie halfback Jerry James to gain their victory. Davey West scored the winning touchdown, after Bill Puller picked up the miscue. Bob Shaw, lanky end and leading scorer last year, booted both converts.

JACOBS CHECKED

Bombers' lone touchdown was scored by Bud Korchak on pass from Jack Jacobs, who had a tough time getting passes away most of the night. Korchak also kicked the convert. Bombers' other two points came on a blocked kick. Keith Spaith was caught behind the goal line on the play for a safety touch.

Stampeders had 11 first downs to Winnipeg's nine and gained 110 yards rushing to Bombers' 77. Stan Heath and Bright combined on 18 passes, completing seven for 111 yards. Jacobs completed 13 out of 28 for 158 yards. Two Winnipeg passes were intercepted.

Bombers led 8-0 at the end of the first quarter and were ahead 8-6 at the half. After a scoreless third quarter, Stampeders scored a converted touchdown for the only scoring in the final quarter.

Big Bill Blackburn, centre, and Bob Mike, tackle, were standouts in the Calgary line.

A.H.L. Team To Remain At Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 23 (AP).—Pittsburgh Hornets will remain in the American Hockey League this coming season despite a recent league ruling that will cut into its player roster, a club spokesman reports.

The league regulation prohibits the National Hockey League from calling up players from the American League once the season gets under way October 11.

Pittsburgh has served as a farm club for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League. Previously Toronto sent players to Pittsburgh and recalled them at will.

Connie Smythe, Maple Leaf president, said yesterday the new American League rule will make the Pittsburgh team useless as a farm club. Some of Pittsburgh's top players last year were the property of Toronto.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP)—The New York Yankees regained the upper band in the dramatic American League pennant race today while the surging St. Louis Cardinals took over second place in the National League.

Vic Raschi won a sparkling 1-0 pitching duel from Cleveland's Early Wynn to enable the Yanks to pull one game ahead of the Indians.

CARDS MOVE UP

The rampaging Cardinals stretched their winning streak to eight games and replaced New York in the runner-up slot by beating the Giants 3-1. The Redbirds top the Giants by five percentage points and trail the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers by 7½ games. The Dodgers clipped Pittsburgh, 3-2. In other National League games, Cincinnati tripped Philadelphia, 3-2, and Boston nosed out Chicago, 2-1.

Boston's third-place Red Sox remained 4½ games off the pace in the American League race by [illegible] 4-3, on Sam White's two-run homer.

The Philadelphia Athletics lost an 12-11 11-inning decision to St. Louis, when Jim Dyck's single scored Dick Kryhoski from second. Detroit, behind Hal Newhouser, whipped Washington, 6-3.

GREAT SUPPORT

Raschi allowed only six hits, fanned seven and walked one in posting his 15th victory against three setbacks. Wynn, winner of 16 games, was charged with his 11th loss. Back-to-back doubles in the fourth inning by Gene Woodling and Joe Collins produced the game's only run.

Brilliant fielding in the eighth inning prevented the Indians from tying the score. Bill Glynn attempted to score from first on Dale Mitchell's two-out double to right centre but he was nailed at the plate on a Hank Bauer-to-Billy Martin-to-Yogi Berra relay.

Al Brazle, 37-year-old relief ace of the Cards, made his fifth start of the season and limited the Giants to seven hits in bagging his 10th conquest. The Cards jumped on their former buddy, Max Lanier, for all of their runs in the fourth inning on consecutive singles by Peanuts Lowrey, Del Rice, Tommy Glaviano and Dick Sisler and Brazle's long fly.

BLACK SAVES LEAD

Clem Labine, making his first start since his recall from St. Paul, gained his eighth victory for Brooklyn. He bowed out for a pinch-hitter during a game-winning, two-run rally in the eighth and workhorse Joe Black finished up. Jackie Robinson singled home the tying run and George Shuba drove in the winning marker.

Willard Marshall, with a double and home run, batted in all three of Cincinnati's runs in its triumph over Philadelphia.

Savitt, Neilsen Triumph In Marathon Net Match

TORONTO, Aug. 23 (CP).—In a tremendous match Dick Savitt, of Orange, N.J., and Kurt Neilsen of Denmark today defeated Henri Rochon of Montreal and Ed Moyland of Trenton, N.J., 14-16, 12-10, 9-7 in the semi-finals of the Ontario Lawn Tennis championships.

The 68-game match lasted three hours. Exhausted by the length of the first two sets and worried by the failing light, both officials and players agreed at the end of the second set to a sudden-death game. That was instead of the customary three-out-of-five species.

For the large crowd in attendance the change meant no decrease in excitement. Both twosomes continued to play a brilliant net and baseline game. However, Rochon and Moyland tired rapidly after the 14th game of the third set and Savitt and Neilsen came on to victory.

The other semi-final match was won by Americans Art Larsen and Noel Brown, who whipped defending champions Brendan Macken of Montreal and Lorne Main of Vancouver, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.

The mixed doubles crown goes to Mexico. Melita Ramirez and Gustavo Palafox downed Doris Poppel of Des Moines and Rafael Ortega of Mexico, 6-1, 6-2, in today's final.

Miss Popple and Lucille Davidson of Lee Summitt, Mo., were upset in the women's doubles final by Miss Ramirez and Doris Ell of Toronto, 6-4, 6-4.

Laughs at Death

British speed king Col. A. T. (Goldie) Gardner laughed at death and came back to smash 13 world speed records on Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah last week after cracking up at 160 miles per hour. He had set eight records before accident, giving him total of 21 ranging from one to 100 kilometres for classes E and F cars. Gardner is shown (right) mopping blood from his face after accident while mechanics attend to his ultra-streamlined MG Midget Special.

Oak Bay took the lead in the Victoria and District Cricket Association race for the Colonist Cup yesterday by defeating Five C's by five runs. Albion, former co-leader, dropped two points off the pace when it was upset by Incogs by 10 wickets.

But for the bowling of Jim Richards, Oak Bay's victory would have been far more decisive. Oak Bay batted first and ran up 98 all out with Richards taking nine wickets for 16 runs in 15.3 overs. Bob Colquhoun, with 31, and Alan Wright, with 22, were the outstanding batsmen.

Richards was also a star with the bat as the Churchman replied with 93 before being dismissed. Richards contributed 26 runs to the total while George Payne set the pace with 34.

BOWLERS IN CHARGE

Albion could do nothing with the bowling of Reg Wenman and Jim Sherratt in the other match and was all out for only 31 runs. Wenman took six wickets for 10 runs and Sharratt claimed four for 20.

Derek Hyde-Lay and Wenman formed a strong opening partnership for Incogs and passed the Albion total without losing a wicket. They carried the total to 49 before being separated and Incogs completed their innings with a total of 110.

Snead Equals Brazilian Mark

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Aug. 23 (AP).—Sam Snead equalled the Anterior Club record today as he shot 18 holes in 64 strokes to take the half-way lead in the Brazilian Open golf tournament with a 36-hole total of 135.

The sub-par performance gave Snead a one-stroke lead over Ricardo Rossi. Antonio Cerda was third with 137.

The tournament ends tomorrow with 36 holes of play.

McINTOSH, Ont., Aug. 23 (CP)—Father Albert John, 41-year-old member of the Oblate Order, yesterday was found in the dense bush near McIntosh, Ont., after being missing for three days. The Roman Catholic priest was on an expedition into the bush country in the vicinity of Horseshoe Lake, eight miles west of this Kenora-Rainy River district town.

Victory Over Mengert Gives Westland Crown

SEATTLE, Aug. 23 (AP).—Jack Westland, a beaten finalist 21 years ago, became United States amateur golf champion today.

The 47-year-old Everett, Wash., insurance man, who took time [illegible] to play in the title tournament, turned back the repeated challenges of young Al Mengert of Spokane, Wash., to win 3 and 2, in the 36-hole all-northwest final.

Westland, the oldest man ever to win the U.S. Amateur title, shot superb, rock-steady golf through the entire 34 holes of the final match.

He had a couple of unsteady moments on the first nine of the afternoon round, when he let the 23-year-old Mengert catch him for the second time, but on the crucial closing holes it was Westland who remained cool as an ice cube, shooting a steady string of pars to win.

He played superb golf today, finishing 34 holes just one stroke over par.

Mengert, who was a hotshot junior player only five years ago, also played a sound game.

Par for the hilly, tree-lined 6,632-yard Seattle Golf Club course is 35-36—71 and Westland matched that total with 34-37—71 on the morning round. He slipped one stroke over par on the front nine in the afternoon. Mengert had a morning 72 and a 35 going out in the afternoon, but on the payoff holes he went over par four times.

Westland was the obvious favorite of the orderly gallery of nearly 10,000. In 51 previous championships, the oldest winner had been 42-year-old Harold Hilton in 1911, and the fans figured this probably would be Jack's last [illegible]

Westland's Golf Talents Put To Use by U.S. Navy

BY JACK HEWINS

SEATTLE, Aug. 23 (AP).—A moment he has been dreaming of for nigh onto 40 years arrived this afternoon for quiet Jack Westland of Everett, Wash., on the sun-washed first tee of the Seattle Golf Club.

From the hands of Totten P. Heffelfinger, president of the United States Golf Association, he accepted the tall gold trophy which is the coveted emblem of the nation's amateur championship.

"You'll never know," Heffelfinger told the 47-year-old insurance man, "what an inspiration you have been to us old coots."

For a man who is running for congress in his home district, Westland was very reserved in the talk he made to his friends in the crowding gallery of nearly 10,000 golf fans.

"I WAS LUCKY"

"I was lucky," he said, "to beat a fellow like Al Mengert, a great competitor. This is a day I've dreamed about since I was eight years old."

Many a par has clicked from the clubs of this man with the satiny swing between the day he was eight and the moment he beat the youthful Mengert, 3 and 2, for the top prize in amateur golf.

He came close long ago. It was so long ago when he lost to Francis Ouimet in the 1931 finals that Mengert was only two years old. After that Jack slipped from the national spotlight, but always was a factor in northwest golf, winning the regional amateur title four times.

During the war he was a lieutenant-commander in the navy aboard the carrier Independence and put his golfing ability to good use.

NO PROBLEM AT ALL

Attaching a piece of twine to a golf ball, he would drive the pellet across to a tanker so the refueling line could be hauled in. Targeting an immovable golf green became a small problem for a man who had poked a ball aboard a moving ship through a sharp cross wind.

Jack is a twice-a-week golfer with a natural swing that never seems to suffer from lack of practice. He took a vacation—from insurance—to play in the tourney, but squeezed in political talks in the evening after his matches and will attend a Second Congressional District Republican picnic tomorrow.

Asked if he'd rather be champion or congressman, Jack chuckled: "I'm already champion!" Although he said he had attained his life's desire, Westland added he hoped to continue playing tournament golf all his life—"like Chick Evans," the Chicagoan who won the title many years ago and plays in every national tourney.

Mengert, an unemployed ex-air force sergeant from Spokane, bowed his head in weariness and disappointment when Westland sank the last short putt that decided the match. But at the ceremony he told the crowd:

"I tried my best, but I was up against one of the country's finest players, Jack Westland."

Heffelfinger, who said today's gallery was the largest ever to see the tourney's climax, told Al confidently that "some day you will step up to accept this cup."

Poll Names Hogan, Jones Top Golfers

Bobby Jones was selected as top amateur.

Hogan received 522 votes, three more than Walter Hagen. Gene Sarazen was third with 504.

In the amateur group, Chick Evans was second with 477 to 515 for Jones. Then came Francis Ouimet with 446.

Newcastle Held to Draw By Newly-Promoted Club

LONDON, Aug. 23 (Reuters).—Sheffield Wednesday, newly promoted to the first division from division two, provided the biggest shock at the opening of the British soccer season today by holding mighty Newcastle United to a 2-2 tie.

Newcastle, winners of the Football Association Cup for the last two years, scored the first goal of the season 25 seconds after the opening whistle and had a two-goal lead at half-time. But the newly-promoted team, champion of division II last season, fought back and finally equalized.

Cardiff, the other second division team promoted, was narrowly beaten 1-0 by Wolverhampton Wanderers, sixth from the bottom of division one last season.

PLYMOUTH WINS

In the second division, Plymouth Argyle, promoted from division III, defeated Luton Town 2-1 but the other promoted team, Lincoln City, went down to a 1-0 defeat by Brentford.

Demoted Huddersfield and Fulham both won their games today on the first rung of the ladder they hope will carry them back to the first division. Huddersfield beat Leeds United 1-0 and Fulham beat Bury 2-0.

Coventry and Queen's Park Rangers, relegated to the third division last season, failed to win their games. Coventry was beaten 2-1 by Swindon Town and Queen's Park was held to a 2-2 draw by Exeter City.

Rebuilt Stampeders Seek To Regain Lost Prestige

(This is the last of a series of pre-season prospects of teams in the W.I.F.U. Today's story is about Calgary Stampeders.)

CALGARY, Aug. 23 (CP).—Calgary's once-vaunted Stampeders—cellar-dwellers in the Western Inter-provincial Football Union for the last two years—this season are out to regain the lofty position they once held in the football world.

Stampeders, rulers of the roost in 1948 when they defeated Ottawa Roughriders to bring Calgary its first and only Grey Cup, are embarking on something of a "make-or-break" campaign.

After gaining the final in 1949 only to lose to Montreal Alouettes, Stampeders have fallen on hard times and have nothing but a dismal record and a hefty financial burden to show for their last two years.

NEW EXECUTIVE

Signs of better things to come were noticed last fall when the team executive was completely re-organized. New and younger blood took over important positions on the board of governors and Les Lear was given a vote of confidence and a contract for his fifth season as coach.

For Lear, now batting .500, the 1952 campaign provides an opportunity to prove himself.

Stampeders' 30-11 victory over Montreal in pre-season play indicates they'll be contenders in the west this year. The team, with 12 imports and a host of new Canadians, showed a fine, all-round effort. However, Coach Lear was not entirely satisfied with the outcome.

MUST DO BETTER

"We can do better and will have to if we expect to go anywhere this year," he said.

Stampeders open their regular schedule in Winnipeg today against Blue Bombers. Monday they meet Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina.

Heading the list of new imports is Johnny Bright, Negro halfback who set a U.S. college ground-gaining record with Drake University the last three years.

The others are linemen who play tackle or guard with equal success. They are Paul Lea from Pittsburgh Steelers, Guy Way from the University of California; Bob Mike from U.C.L.A. and San Francisco 49ers; Bob Bryant from Texas Tech and the 49ers; Dick Bradley from Louisiana State College, and Gus Knickerehm from the University of Oregon.

HOLDOVER IMPORTS

Ends Bob Shaw, top W.I.F.U. scorer in 1951, Sugarfoot Anderson and Paul Salata top the list of holdover imports. Bill Blackburn, second all-star team centre, is back for another season as is Stan Heath, who will share signal calling with Keith Spaith, now considered a Canadian.

Backfielders Harry Hood, Dave West, Stan Kalyznick and Brian Mulhern along with linemen Roy Jenson, Gil Steer and Ken Keir head the Canadian holdovers.

Halfback Pete Thodos, with Montreal since 1949, and tackle Bill Pullar from McGill University are back in Stampeders' camp. Both played with the Grey Cup team of 1948.

Bob Westlake, a Toronto fullback, and many other eastern and western Canadians have joined the 1952 edition of the red and whites.

Golf— Here's How

By SAM SNEAD
Golf's Greatest Player-Teacher

As today's illustration shows our player has started the last important action of the down-swing. This is the uncocking of the wrists. This action should not start until the hands are hip-high in the downswing. From there on you pour the power stored up in the cocked wrists into the shot, accelerating smoothly into the ball. Thus, at impact, the clubhead will be traveling at its maximum, rythmic speed. If you uncock your hands higher up in the downswing the speed they should add to the clubhead will have been expanded in the air and not on the ball. Club speed counts only at impact. There's a world of golf in today's picture.

Bonus Money Enriches Pot For Hopkins Trophy Match

MONTREAL, Aug. 23 (CP).—Bonus money, plus the $750 each player will receive anyway, was tossed into the pot today for the golfers who will compete next week in the first official team contest between Canadian and American professionals.

The six-man teams will play three four-ball matches Tuesday and six singles Wednesday—36 holes each day—over the Moat-[...] winning team goes the International Golf Trophy, donated by John Jay Hopkins, American and Canadian industrialist connected with the Professional Golfers' Associations in both countries.

Match play governs through out but every hole will be played out because bonuses are based on medal scores.

There will be $300 for the player with low medal for the two days' 72 holes. $75 for low medal on each 18 holes and $400 to be shared among players scoring eagles and birdies at holes to be named. In addition, any hole in one will mean $250 for the sharpshooter.

LOCKE TO PLAY

The presence of Bobby Locke will add a lot of strength to the [...] South African star, winner of the 1952 British Open, was due in Montreal by plane today from England.

Bobby hasn't played in a major competition in Canada since 1947 when he won the Canadian Open at Toronto Scarboro. Under the competition rules he is eligible to play for Canada.

His mates on the Canadian team are Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon, who won the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship at Winnipeg last month; Stan Leonard of Vancouver Marine Drive, Gordie Brydson of Toronto Mississauga, Jules Huot of Montreal Laval Sur-le-Lac, Stan Horne of Montreal Islesmere, and Bill Kerr of the Beaconsfield host club who is captain and alternate.

STRONG TEAM

The American team was named more than a month ago and was chosen from among the top money winners at that time. It is made up of Julius Boros, U.S. Open champion; Cary Middlecoff, Doug Ford, Ted Kroll, Dave Douglas and Jack Burke, Jr., who will captain the U.S. team.

The team championship will be decided on a modified Nassau system: One point for each 18 holes and one for 36 holes of each match. There will be a total of 27 points. The team scoring 14 or more will be the winner.

Remember When . .

"Long Count" Dave Barry, who gained fame as referee of the second heavyweight title bout between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney in 1927, died in Chicago 18 years ago tonight. Barry, native of Montreal, was criticized because he refused to count over Tunney until Dempsey retired to a neutral corner.

Detroit Straw-Hat Riot High on List Of Baseball Tales That Are Classics

By British United Press

The history of baseball is full of funny stories. Many have become classics, like Dizzy Dean lighting a bonfire on the field and Rube Waddell calling in his outfield.

There was the time the Chicago Cubs lost a pennant when they grounded into a triple play. Another time Waddell smashed his catcher in the mouth with a fast ball and laughed so hard he broke a blood vessel.

High on the list of zany stories is the Detroit straw hat riot in 1922.

The Tigers were playing the St. Louis Browns in the final game of the season. St. Louis already had clinched second place but Detroit was battling with Cleveland for third. A Detroit victory that day meant the difference between a third and fourth-place finish.

The St. Louis pitcher was a young fellow named Ray Kolp. Ray was a pretty good pitcher, except for a bad habit of nervousness. When he got really rattled, Kolp was likely to throw the ball out of the park.

STARTED QUIETLY

The game started quietly enough with umpire George Moriarty behind the plate. St. Louis didn't do anything in the top of the first and the Tigers came to bat.

Kolp got the first two men, one of them on a bounder to George Sisler at first and the other on a liner to Baby-Doll Jacobson. That brought up Ty Cobb. Kolp was wide with his first pitch, then stopped and rubbed his eyes. He seemed to be focused beyond the hitter, back toward the stands.

Shaking his head, Kolp wound up again and was a mile outside. Again he looked at the stands. A pleased murmur went up from the Detroit partisans as he finished walking Cobb on two wild pitches.

The next hitter also drew a walk. So did the next. That loaded the bases and Kolp was getting wilder. There was a frantic look on his face. Finally, he threw down the resin bag and came stomping toward the plate, waving at umpire Moriarty.

"Hey, Mr. Umpire," the pitcher said, "You gotta quit making them guys wave them straw hats at me."

NOT THE TIME

If Moriarty looked at Kolp as if the kid were crazy, it was understandable. It certainly was not the time for straw hats. It was October, and the umpire had just been thinking he should have worn a heavy sweater. So he thumbed Kolp back to the mound, figuring it was a gag.

The pitcher went back and finally got one over. John Bassler hoisted it to centre and the side was retired.

In the second, Kolp started all over again. He walked the first man on four pitches and came storming off the mound. "Look here," he yelled at Moriarty, "are you gonna make them guys quit waving them straw hats or aintcha. They're drivin' me crazy."

The umpire ordered him back to the mound, told him to quit stalling.

The next batter drew a walk, down came Kolp. "Do somethin' they're ruinin' me," he screamed at the umpire.

Moriarty, figuring Kolp had cracked at last, patiently turned to the stands. They were serene, almost too quiet. There was no sign of straw hats.

PICKED UP TWO

This time, Detroit picked up a couple of runs before the side could be retired. St. Louis got one back in the top of third and Kolp went to the mound once more.

By now, it was plain to see that Kolp was on the verge of hysteria. High, low and wide, he threw. Finally he rushed off the mound, came all the way to the umpire and grabbed him by the lapels.

"You gotta stop them guys," he shrieked. "If you don't, I'm gonna walk off here. I can't stand it . . . they're driving me crazy."

Moriarty wheeled in the stands . . . nothing. Just a bunch of quiet fellows, all bareheaded . . . no signs of straw hats. But he made a deal with Kolp. "Next time you start to pitch," he told the young hurler, "stop your motion. I'll turn and look."

STRAW HATS

Kolp took the mound, went through his windup and stopped. Moriarty whirled—and there they were a thousand strong, the Detroit fans were armed with straw hats, waving them slowly back and forth in perfect unison.

A fan club had gotten together and bought out the seats directly back of the plate. They all came with hats.

The umpire ordered the police into the stands and there was a near-riot as the officers collected hats, to be reclaimed at the box office. When the last hat was seized, the game resumed.

But Kolp was so far gone then he never regained his stuff. The Tigers went on to win on what old timers still call the "Straw Hat Game"—in October.

Flycaster Sets World Mark

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 23 (AP).—Charles Schwall of St. Louis set a world record at the 44th annual tournament of the National Association of Angling and Casting Clubs for combination distance casts in four events.

Schall's four-event total was 3,213 feet, beating the mark of 3,145 feet set by Earl Osten of San Diego in 1949.

The old record also was bettered by Clem Forecade of St. Louis, whose total was 3,197 feet.

Jack Crossfield of San Francisco placed first in both salmon and trout fly casting.

In the salmon fly cast Crossman had a long cast of 185 feet, a three-cast total of 533 feet, and an average cast of 177⅔ feet. Schall was second with marks of 177, 524, and 174⅔. Third was Forcade with 178, 521, and 173⅔.

Crossman's first in the trout fly cast was achieved with marks of 165, 466, and 155⅓. Bill Lovely of St. Louis was second, with 164, 464, and 154⅔, and Donald Carlisle of Indianapolis was third, with 152, 446, and 148⅔.

Eddie Arcaro Rides 31st Stakes Winner

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP).—Mr. Paradise, with Eddie Arcaro aboard, today won the $107,120 Washington Park Futurity, beating his Arlington Futurity conqueror, Mr. Good, by a length and a half.

Arcaro recorded his 31st stakes victory of the season and raised to $994,722.50 the amount of money his stakes triumphs have earned.

In all, this year, Arcaro has ridden 659 horses and has finished first 153 times, his total earnings being $1,866,516.

Thirty daily double players in the crowd of 26,034 were rewarded with $3,092.60, the largest combination payoff in Chicago's racing season, when Howard A. Jones' Riskall won the first race at $186 for $2 and E. C. Roth's Gold Boots the second at $49.40.

The daily double record of $10,772 was set in Washington Park in 1939.

Uncle Wiggily Story

By Howard Garis

SOMETHING IS CHASING

Blown along by a strong wind Uncle Wiggily's raft was soon well out in Frog Pond, sailing away from Puppy Dog Island. The sun was shining brightly in a blue sky in which there were many white clouds as if the birds had put their washing out on the line to dry.

"Is everything aboard your raft all right, Cap'n Wiggily, sir?" asked Bosun. The jolly old sea dog had been making sure that the sail would not blow away. "Is everything O.K., sir?"

"I think so, Bosun," answered Mr. Longears as he twinkled his nose at Bunty, the orphan rabbit who was singing her doll Priscilla to sleep in a clam shell cradle. "We shall soon be home again in Woodland if this wind keeps up."

"I think the wind will last," barked Bosun. "Shall I start the Merry Go Round and give the boys and girls a ride?"

"Yes, Bosun, do that, if you please. They will like it."

The old sea dog, who had charge of the sail as well as being skipper of the Merry-Go-Round, soon started the machinery and turned on the music.

"Come on, Bunty, let's go for a ride," called Buster.

"Oh, thank you, I can't go now," answered the orphan rabbit. "My doll Priscilla won't go to sleep. I think there must be something the matter with her. I wish I could take her to Dr. Possum."

"Take Priscilla to Pat Butter, the goat," suggested Buster. "Mr. Butter sells medicine in his grocery store. Maybe he would have something you could give Priscilla to make her go to sleep. Then you could come for a ride on the Merry-Go-Round."

"Thank you, Buster," answered Bunty. "I will take Priscilla to Mr. Butter. Maybe he can doctor her."

When the orphan rabbit told the jolly old goat gentleman about Priscilla not going to sleep, even when rocked in her clam shell cradle, Mr. Butter waggled his chin whiskers as he stood at the steering helm. Then he said:

"What your doll needs, Bunty, is some Swiss cheese with big holes in each slice. Here! give her this!" Mr. Butter took from the pocket of his coat a fine slice of Swiss cheese. It had many holes in it.

"Will this put Priscilla to sleep?" Bunty wanted to know.

"It sure will!" bleated the goat gentleman. "Whenever I can't sleep, I get up, eat some Swiss cheese and I drift right off to dreamland. Give Priscilla this cheese."

"I will," said the orphan rabbit. And when Priscilla had eaten the slice of cheese, holes and all, and when Bunty had rocked her doll once more in the clam shell cradle, and had sung a slumber song, Priscilla closed her eyes and was soon asleep. Then Bunty went to join Buster on the merry-go-round and they had fine rides. Buster sat on a wooden elephant and Bunty sat on a wooden camel. The other boys and girls rode other wooden animals and the music played a merry tune.

On and on over Frog Pond sailed Uncle Wiggily's raft. Nurse Jane was busy in her kitchen making a popcorn pudding. Mr. Longears walked around on deck and then stood still near the stern, or back part of the raft and looked at something.

"Avast and belay, Cap'n Wiggily, sir!" called Bosun. "Do you see anything across Frog Pond? What are you looking at?"

"I was looking at Puppy Dog Island," answered Mr. Longears. "But I can't see it."

"We are too far away, Cap'n Wiggily. Was there any special reason why you wanted to see Puppy Dog Island?"

"Here give her this"

"I thought I might wave to Mr. Towser and perhaps Mrs. Whimper, the mother of Wulf Wulf," answered Uncle Wiggily. "We came away in such a hurry that we forgot to say goodbye."

"Yes, we did, Cap'n Wiggily. But you can write them a letter." Then Bosun looked at something in the water astern and said in a low bark: "I think we are being chased, Cap'n Wiggily, sir. Something is chasing us!"

I can tell you more on Monday if the bumble bee will give the cricket a ride down to the candy store to buy a lollypop for the June bug.

BRIDGE QUIZ

Responding to an overcall is quite different from responding to an opening bid. You have two important pieces of information to guide you: Partner was not strong enough, or did not have a properly distributed hand to make a takeout double. The suit in which he overcalled is stronger in playing tricks than it would need to be for an opening bid.

With neither side vulnerable dealer bids one heart, partner overcalls with two clubs, next player passes. What do you bid with each of the following hands?

♠ K Q J 10
♥ 2

♣ A 7 6 4

(b)

♣ Q 9 7 4

♠ K 9 8 5 4

(f)

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

(a) Bid two hearts. This cue-bid tells a lie about first-round control of the heart suit, but you aren't making it for the purpose of getting to a slam. You want to get to game somewhere and while that somewhere is probably clubs there is a possibility that partner will have a double stopper in hearts and wish to play at no trumps.

(b) Pass. If partner wanted to hear about spades, he'd have doubled the one heart bid. Your chance of game is remote with partner having a mere overcall, but if opponents rebid you may collect a good penalty.

(c) Pass. Although your spades are stronger, your fit with partner is probably worse than in hand (b). There is an even greater likelihood partner will rebid three clubs. Remember there is a strong presumption, from the fact he did not double, that he cannot support spades.

(d) Bid three clubs. The spade suit is good for tricks at clubs or no trump, but is not a suitable trump suit.

(e) Bid three clubs. Although your hand is weaker in high cards than (d) your purpose is to indicate a possible save and perhaps it will keep the opening bidder quiet.

(f) Bid three no trump. Your hand is too strong to compromise with a two no trump bid which partner may pass. The jump in no trump strongly hints that you hold a fitting honor in clubs. If you bid two no trump and partner bid three clubs, a three no trump rebid might still leave him in doubt that he can stand a double with nothing but six or seven clubs headed by the ace-queen-jack.

Car Freight Rates May Be Reduced

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Possibility that the railways may reduce the freight rate to the west coast on automobiles is forecast by freight rate experts.

At the moment automobiles because of their bulk and high value are in the highest freight classification. It costs an average of $300 to bring a new car by rail from Eastern Canada to the Pacific Coast.

Automobile dealers on the coast long have protested that the high freight coupled with federal taxation has affected seriously the sale of new cars in this area.

To combat the high freight dealers are having cars shipped out by special trucks and recently they have been offering free transportation to the west to anyone willing to drive out a car from the manufacturing centres in Ontario.

By this means dealers are able to save their customers not only about $200 in freight rates, but also a saving in the provincial sales tax.

Freight rate experts believe that it is this competition which will encourage the railway companies to reduce their rates on cars.

If they drop automobiles from Class 1 to Class 2, it would save about $50 on each car.

NO SUSCEPTIBILITIES HERE

To those who are still diffident about discounting the U.S. dollar this may be of interest.

The firm of merchants in Victoria which is toughest on this point, and demands more than the bank rate of exchange before it will handle U.S. currency, is a Canadian subsidiary of one of the largest grocery chains in the United States.

This proves that U.S. firms are not above "insulting" their own citizens about the deflated value of their own dollar.

EXPLODED IDEAS

When the Victoria city council in paring its annual budget decided to save money by reducing the amount of water it would use on its sewers and on its boulevard grass, it may not have realized that the water board could retaliate by rising the price of water.

This is now threatened and local economists are critical not only of the city council, but of the water board for what might be termed the use of exploded ideas such as the "economy of scarcity" and European cartelization.

If the water rates to Victoria are raised what will happen is that the citizens of Victoria will pay more for their water and will end up by paying for their green parks, but will not get them.

The situation is that the Greater Victoria Water Board supplies water to the municipalities in the area, and the reduced consumption means that it has to make up the deficit somehow in order to meet its annual $500,000 interest charges on bonds and debentures.

This can either be done by apportioning more from forestry operations in the watershed area, or by making a general increase in price of the water charge to the municipalities.

About half the total water to the district is used by Victoria, so that if an increase in water rates is necessary then Victoria presumably will have to pay about half of what it saved on the roundabouts to pay for what it should get from the swings.

The real unfortunates of the business, however, are the residents of Oak Bay and Saanich who through no fault of their own may have to pay a higher rate for water because of Victoria's economy policy.

What makes it all the more galling to these municipalities is that they would love to be able to use the extra water that Victoria is spurning. But inadequate mains and distribution pipes makes it necessary to apply restrictions so far as irrigation is concerned in these areas.

In other words there is scarcity in the midst of plenty. Those who are critical of the water board policy declare that to encourage the use of water the price should be reduced rather than raised, but here again the chief sinners are not the water board who have been selling their water to the municipalities at 8 cents a unit, but to the municipalities themselves who add more than 100 per cent to the bills of the consumers.

It would appear, however, that the full use of the water board's capacity cannot be expected until such time as the supply pipes to the big outlying districts are completely brought into line with modern requirements.

And that will take both time and more money.

SNAGS IN STUMPAGE

The aim of the new British Columbia Social Credit government to extract more revenue from the natural resources of the province, has probably been responsible for a recent decline in the price of leading B.C. lumber companies.

During the past few days, the stocks of MacMillan & Bloedel and Canadian Western Lumber have lost most of the price advances they recorded following the settlement of the wood workers' strike.

Just how serious an upward revision of B.C. royalties and stumpage charges would be on the local forest industries would naturally depend upon the degree of the extraction demanded of the operators.

While the big companies with their extra profit-making ventures in pulp, paper, plywood and other by-products might be able to weather the storm, the government would have to consider the position of the smaller concerns before slapping on extra charges.

Most of the smaller outfits in the B.C. lumbering business are living a hand-to-mouth existence, and are ready to reel to the last straw that breaks the camel's back.

Trade May Go South

VANCOUVER, Aug 23 (CP) — The historic east west trade channels in Canada — now under a burden of increasing railway shipping costs — may be diverted to nearer markets.

Traders from the United States, especially California, are seeking Canadian outlets for their goods.

Freight rates will be boosted on 51 commodity rates on October 1, and some merchants here today said they were seeking "closer markets."

"I may have to look elsewhere than the east for my goods," said a Vancouver businessman.

J. Wade Dunaway, trade commissioner for the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, is here today after a visit to Alberta.

"Your merchants," he said, "are telling me they are interested in shipping in from California wearing apparel, dry goods lines, plastics and automotive parts and accessories."

Copper Allocation Increased

NEW YORK, Aug 24 (AP) — Labor peace came last week to an important segment of the copper industry, and users were allocated more metal for September.

The price and demand picture in the non-ferrous metal field took this form:

Zinc: Better consumer demand steadied prices.

Lead: Moderate buying kept prices firm.

Phelps Dodge became the first of the "big four" copper producers to sign a new wage agreement with the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers. Pay goes up 10 cents an hour for 10,000 employees.

Negotiations continued with other mine and smelter operators.

The government allocated 141,000 tons of refined copper to fabricators during September. This was 15,000 tons better than the August quota.

The zinc trade felt better last week. A fair amount of buying kept the price steady at 14 cents a pound. The previous week it dropped as low as 13½ cents, only to recover ½ cent following government stockpile buying.

Major metals prices:

Copper—24.5 cents a pound, delivered (ceiling on domestic production).

Lead—16 cents a pound, New York, 15.8 cents, St. Louis.

Zinc—14 cents a pound, East St. Louis; 14.83 cents, New York.

Aluminum—20 cents a pound, ingots, shipping point. (Pigs, 19 cents).

Nickel—56.5 cents a pound, electrolytic cathodes, Port Colborne, Ontario, U.S. duty included.

Silver—83.25 cents an ounce, New York, 73 pence, London.

Tin—$1.21 a pound, New York.

EDMONTON, Aug 23 (CP) — Production potential of 1,000 barrels daily has been established in tests on Gulf-C.P.R. Fiveland No. 4 discovery well in the Pigeon Lake area 45 miles southwest of Edmonton, it was reported Friday.

The well is owned by Canadian Gulf, California Standard, Husky Oil and Refining and Phillips Petroleum.

In a four-hour test at 7,153-7,155 feet the well gave up 40.2 gravity crude, well officials reported.

Market at Toronto 'Cat-and-Dog' Show

BY HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Toronto stock market was a "cat-and-dog" show this week.

"Cats and dogs" — market slang for low-priced mining issues — stole the show from more sober high-priced stocks and recorded individual turnovers up to 400,000.

Reasons for the sudden activity in various penny stocks ranged from rumors of new ore finds to the start of delivery on contracts.

Donalda, a junior gold producer, jumped into prominence Tuesday when it gained 18 cents on a turnover of more than 430,000 shares. The burst of activity appeared to be caused by rumors that Donalda was discussing joint drilling operations with the adjoining Quemont Mines.

Donalda had closed the previous Friday at 46 cents. After a second active day last Wednesday and some selling later, it closed this Friday at 51½ cents.

SALES BOOSTED

Reports of a uranium find on the property of Gunnar, a gold prospect, boosted its sales all week. From Friday to Friday, Gunnar rose from $1.16 to $1.20.

Kelore, another gold prospect, moved from 12 cents a share to 16½ cents in the same period under the stimulus of reports of favorable drill findings and rumors of favorable financial support. It traded between 100,000 and 200,000 shares daily.

East Rim, a base metal issue, became popular with reports that it was starting to ship nickel-copper ore on a contract with the United States. It jumped from $1.34 to $1.44 in heavy trading during the week.

Mayo, another base metal issue, and gold stocks like Heath, Halcrow Swayze, Hugh Pam, Chimo and Jackknife, traded actively enough to boost the weekly volume of shares moved to its highest point in months.

INDEX DECLINES

In spite of the activity, the Toronto Exchange's index for golds declined during the week. Western oils also slipped and in spite of a recovery Friday, remained lower for the week.

Industrials followed the pattern of western oils, and base metals dipped steadily throughout the week.

In Toronto Monday, industrials led a general decline and in Montreal, industrials also slipped while papers rose Tuesday, both centres reported generally lower prices.

Golds in Toronto and papers in Montreal resisted the downward trend Wednesday and on Thursday industrials improved in both markets. The beginning of a recovery appeared in Toronto Friday, led by western oils. On the Montreal market, industrials and papers gained.

Prices opened weakly in New York but on Tuesday rails led a mild recovery that improved further Wednesday. Prices weakened Thursday and remained fixed in light trading Friday.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto index showed industrials down 1.99 at 329.75, golds down 1.53 at 93.79, base metals down 2.39 at 196.61, and western oils down 2.59 at 139.53.

In the Montreal averages, banks were up .26 at 31.10, utilities down .5 at 37.2, industrials down 2.2 at 219.0, combined down 1.7 at 175.0, papers down 4.30 at 723.15 and golds up .45 at 69.72.

In New York the Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped $1.10 to 107.60.

New Uranium Strike In Saskatchewan

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. Aug 23 (BUP) — A uranium strike has been reported by two prospectors at Nunn Lake, about 50 miles south of La Ronge in northern Saskatchewan.

(La Ronge is about 185 miles north of Prince Albert.)

The area in question is some 300 miles south of the present site of uranium activity at Lake Athabaska.

Dear Slaves,

The G.F. thinks she has died and this is Heaven, as she doesn't have to think, "Now W H A T am I going to do about supper?" . . she just has to open the leather-bound menu, pause a moment, then sweetly say . . "I'll have the soup, the sirloin tips, and oh, let me see . . . yes . . . the apricot pie and coffee." Some of the other families here are not having such an easy time as we are, because they are not so far along on the road, and their children are at the spoon-banging age.

ONLY ONE MORE WEEK OF OUR AUGUST SALE

I'm writing this on my knee, in the car while the G.F. is "shopping" here in the Village for some "pedal pushers." I thot we'd brot all the stuff in Victoria with us, but . . NO . . . she forgot the "pedal pushers" and they are so much better for sitting on the beach "as you don't have to worry about your skirt all the time." It's O.K. with me as long as she doesn't come back with slacks . . . IS THERE ANY THING WORSE than a dame in slacks?

THIS WAREHOUSE OPEN ALL DAY SATURDAY

Went out fishing last nite with Jack (Oak Bay Councillor) Ruttan. What a cinch to tie into me up here. We got a sturdy in-board at Frenchman's Creek (that's where the Queen and the Duke of E. had their pictures taken). Jack had just thrown the Tom Mac in the water, when Z-I-N-G and away went the Nylon. He's just as good with the rod as he is with the "habeas corpus" and pretty soon that streak of flashing silver (like that?) was close beside. I grabbed the big net, but was so excited I missed in the first try, and the fish ran away again. I got him the next time tho' and because I don't like to be in on the kill, I politely handed Jack the club. It was a Cohoe and as big as th . . st?

I just saw the G.F. across the street coming out of one store and going in another. So far there is nothing under her arm. She bot a book yesterday, "50 Short Stories" and because of not having to worry about meals she read 49 of them already.

Trudie has gone to ride on a horse and Sammy has gone with some friends on a picnic.

WATCH FOR THE BARGAINS IN THE FINAL WEEK OF OUR SALE

I'm going to slice-off at golf tomorrow; no Ted Barley to send me a couple-a-dozen more balls I got to get over that gulley somehow.

Bye for now. Here "she" comes back. "There was a lovely pair in lemon yellow but not my size . . . oh, well . . . I'll just put a rock in my skirt."

ME.
Maurice.

Canada's New All-Weather Night Fighter Undergoing Tests, May Become Standard

MILITARY ACTIVITIES

BY ROY FARRETT

Canada's new all-weather night fighter is undergoing tests at the R.C.A.F. station at Uplands, Ont. The crack long-range interceptor may become standard equipment in the air forces of Canada and some of the other N.A.T.O. countries.

The CF-100 Canuck was designed specifically for Canada by A. V. Roe Ltd. of Toronto. Besides its normal fighting equipment, the CF-100 carries radar and electronic equipment designed to seek out enemy aircraft, regardless of weather and visibility conditions.

In addition to its two Orenda jet engines, the Canuck fighter can be equipped for jet assisted takeoff. In a recent test with J.A.T.O. at Uplands, the CF-100 leaped into the air carrying a full load of armament and bombs, no less than half the normal take-off run.

It is no easy task to produce a modern fighter as complex as the Canuck. Several years of design and preparation already have gone into the project which has cost millions. The CF-100 has had its birth pangs and production has been delayed. But the recent tests indicate that the new fighter soon will be seen streaking through our Canadian skies.

It will be an important milestone in our aviation history when the CF-100 finally is rolling off the production lines. It will be the first time that Canada has designed, tested and produced a fighter aircraft. Besides producing a first line night interceptor, our aircraft industry has gained valuable experience which will maintain for Canada, a place in the skies of tomorrow.

Flying Officer Pete Rogers of 630 Island Road has completed a course on twin-engine aircraft at Trenton, Ont., and has been posted as an instructor to the advanced flying school at Saskatoon. Training on the twin-engine craft is a preliminary to flying training on the new Canuck night fighter, which will be issued to R.C.A.F. squadrons soon.

Lieut. J. E. Downey, a naval reserve officer of H.M.C.S. Malahat has joined the air force as an aeronautical engineer officer. He has been granted a permanent commission and posted to London, Ont. for preliminary training.

Another ex-naval officer, Flying Officer N. L. Vanvre, East Saanich Road, has completed air force training at London, and has been granted a permanent commission in the security branch of the R.C.A.F.

Flight Cadets R. F. Hodgson, Qualicum Beach, and A. J. McColl of Alberni have now been selected for pilot training at London. The young men enlisted here in May.

R. Wand, 3473 Albert Head Road, has completed his initial air force training and has been granted the rank of Pilot Officer. P/O. Wand is now taking a course in air force administration in Eastern Canada.

Published by authority of the Minister of National Defence, and called "The Canadian Army at War," the series deals with the activity of its troops in the various theatres of World War II.

Volume one is entitled "The Canadians in Britain 1939-1944." Volume two, "From Pachino to Ortona," deals with the Italian front. The third book, called "Canada's Battle in Normandy," covers operations in northwest Europe.

The books contain many interesting photographs and maps and a number of paintings by war artists. They are available from the Queen's Printer at 25 cents per copy.

Iran Retires 15 Generals In Shake-Up

TEHRAN, Iran, Aug. 23 (AP) — The ousted military governor of Tehran and 14 other generals were retired today in what appeared to be the first step in a government shake-up of the armed forces.

Officially, an army spokesman said, the men, ranking from brigadier to lieutenant-general, were retired because they had served beyond the legal 30-year limit.

Among those retired was General Asavi Moghadam, who was fired from his post as military governor of Tehran following the bloody riots July 21 which brought Premier Mohammed Mossadegh back to power. Some Nationalist supporters of Mossadegh have charged that Moghadam was responsible for ordering troops to fire on rioters, resulting in the reported death of 30 persons.

One source said more than 50 officers would be out when Mossadegh's shake-up was finished, at least 11 more.

Society Leader Reported Dead

GENEVA, Switzerland, Aug. 23 (Reuters) — One of the great leaders of Paris society before the Second World War, Countess Elisabeth Greffulhe, 92, has died, it was learned today. Her salon in Paris was one of the most glittering in Europe and to her inspired one of its most regular visitors, the novelist Marcel Proust.

Stamp Packet

By R. M. ANGUS

A FRIEND kindly lent me a copy of an old stamp catalogue dated 1894 and issued by The Standard Stamp Co. of St. Louis, Mo., priced at the modest sum of 50c. As far as we can see it is a replica of a Stanley Gibbons catalogue of that date in almost all particulars, as that was the first year the writer was the proud owner of a Gibbons. Of course the pence and shillings are converted to dollars and cents, but the cover is identical with the Gibbons of that date. This catalogue takes the entire stamp issues of the whole world into 541 pages and includes not only the stamps themselves but also the entire postal stationery of the world. Compare it with a modern Gibbons and you will find that it takes 644 pages of the 1950 Gibbons to list the stamps of the British Empire alone, without any mention of the postal stationery or foreign. The only astounding thing, apart from the then prices of the stamps, is the fact that the stamps issued by Barnard's Caribou Express are listed as "United States locals"; As any British Columbian knows, they were entirely a B.C. issue used from and to the gold fields of the Fraser for the most part.

* * *

As to the prices, that is where one is astonished at the changes that time has wrought. How would you like to pick up the five 3d beaver stamps at the modest sum of $1, or 20c each? The present price for a single copy on the wove paper is $10 and up. Unused, it is priced at $2 against its present price of $45. The 12d black is unpriced in either mint or used condition but the 7½ green is priced at $15 and $10 mint and used against its present price of $400 and $100 respectively. The 10d at $15 and $6 against the 1951 price of $400 and $70.

* * *

The large head Queen Victoria issue of 1868 is priced so that not one of the stamps of this popular issue rates as high as 50c, either used or mint, whereas all of them except the 3c red are listed today at over the dollar mark either mint or used. They range today at from $20 to $12.50 mint and from $1.50 to as much as $5 used, with the 3c red excepted. The watermarked are listed ungraded, and the 6c blue registration stamp at $1.50 either way against its present price of $17.50 either way.

* * *

No distinction whatever is made between the very popular triangular printings made by Perkins, Bacon and, later, by De La Rue; they are merely treated as shades. So instance, the 1/- green and 1/- emerald at $3.50 and $4.50 against today's $30 and $50 used copies. By the way do not be misled by an entirely enormous impression conveyed by many catalogues that the Perkins, Bacon printings are of sharper detail than the De La Rue printings; the reverse is the case.

* * *

When it comes to the Colony of Victoria, Australia, we note the 1894 catalogue lists countless high-value stamps that are barely omitted, and rightly so, as they were most certainly used almost entirely for revenue purposes, though the postal use of some of them actually did occur. It just shows what a wonderful increase of the capital value of a stamp collection may be if kept over a period of years. But some will argue that a similar sum laid out at cumulative interest for a similar period will show somewhat similar increase, but few have the forethought to take advantage of such a method.

It's not too late to get some of the special cachets being used to celebrate the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver, Aug. 30-Sept. 1. Send your stamped addressed covers to the postmaster there; he will do the rest.

SPORTSMAN'S WORKSHOP

By Paul Johnson

Drinking Water Precautions

BECAUSE some sportsmen never have taken any precautions with their drinking water and have remained healthy, is no indication of the wisdom of this practice. There are many water-borne diseases, including tularemia, several types of salmonellosis, typhoid and para-typhoid infections and spirochetal jaundice. Every year many people contract these diseases through carelessness. Typhoid is a deadly disease, but if modern treatment is given in time, it doesn't always prove fatal. However, it will leave a person in a very weakened condition for a considerable time. Also there is a danger of becoming a typhoid carrier.

FIG. 1

Typhoid carriers are people whose system builds up a resistance to the typhoid bacteria in their bodies and consequently they may never know of any symptoms that they have become carriers. These people, who are sometimes outward pictures of health, may be capable of starting a major typhoid epidemic through carelessness. A blood test is the only way to detect a typhoid carrier, and only blood-tested persons are allowed to enter a well-regulated municipal watershed area.

SIMPLE TEST

Quite often a person reads of some simple field test for water purity. One test frequently recommended is to place a few drops of permanganate of potash in the water and if the pink color remains, it is supposed to indicate no excess of organic matter and is therefore said to be safe for drinking purposes. This is unreliable.

It is not the amount of organic matter present that determines the purity of water for drinking purposes, but the absence of pathogenic organisms. Only a bacteriological analysis, made in a laboratory by standard methods such as those published by the U.S. Public Health Service, which is the standard used in Canada, will show the presence of coliform bacteria. Water that contains coliform organisms is not necessarily harmful, but the possible presence of typhoid bacteria is assumed if coliform are present.

SAFEST WAY

Therefore, as it is impossible for you to determine the purity of streams when in the field, the only safe thing to do is boil your drinking water thoroughly when in doubt. Usually a rapid mountain stream that is away from human habitation, as shown in Figure 1, is reasonably safe. Millions drink from these streams regularly with no large percentage of infection. However, the fact that the water is running over sand and gravel does not prove its purity, as is often erroneously stated. Typhoid bacteria will travel miles down a cool, rapid stream, enter a city water system, travel many more miles in the pipes and then be capable of causing an epidemic.

SLUGGISH POOL

The slow, sluggish stream shown in Figure 2 may be perfectly safe, but is very much more likely to be impure. It is, therefore, wise to avoid using water from this type of stream for drinking purposes.

It is a good habit to study a map, showing the course of streams in the vicinity of your travel. This will serve the double purpose of preventing you from becoming lost and careful study will indicate where settlements may be in the proximity of a stream.

Any stream flowing by camps or settlements should be treated as unsafe and the water boiled before drinking. You can take your reasonable chances on the others if you are a lucky gambler.

Posthole Diggers Ease Strenuous Work

By DOUGLAS TUOMEY

PRACTICALLY everyone living in the country or suburbs has occasion to dig holes now and then for gate posts, lamp posts, fences or shrubbery. There are two ways of doing this—one is the old spade-work which is more or less back-breaking, and the other is to use a posthole digger. Not many people own one of these tools, but practically every farmer or professional gardener owns one which they are usually glad to lend to a neighbor, or you can rent one for about 25 cents a day. Actually, it's a splendid investment if you have much work to do.

A posthole digger is quite like a large-sized scissors, having two long handles so that it will reach down into the average hole. It is used by spreading the handles so that the cups open, dropping it into the hole and then bringing the handles together so that they clamp on a good shovelful of the earth. This is then dumped and the operation repeated. You do not have to bend over when using this tool, so you can dig 50 holes with the same amount of effort you would require to dig 15 with a spade or a shovel.

One of the principal advantages of a posthole digger is this. When you are digging with a shovel you always have to make the hole about four times the size you really require, for the simple reason that you dig a cone-shaped hole that is wider at the top than at the bottom. This is necessary because you cannot make the earth stay on a shovel-blade which is in a vertical position. You have to dig so that the shovel is at an angle which will hold the earth without having it slide off. A posthole digger is used in a vertical position and the sides of the hole are straight up and down.

FIRST CROSSER

The Savannah, a vessel of about 350 tons' burden, measuring 100 feet in length, was the first steamship to cross the Atlantic Ocean. She finally was wrecked off the south coast of Long Island.

South Dakota's Black Hills area is said to be the oldest mountain area on the North American continent.

Geographic Oddities

In the closing months of the Second World War, an American soldier wandered into one night into a shell-smashed house in Bonn, Germany, found a piano and began idly playing "Moonlight Sonata." In the darkness Nat until next day did he learn he had been in the birthplace of Ludwig van Beethoven, playing Beethoven's great work on the composer's own piano.

Today's Great Lakes were born with the melting of the last huge ice sheet over North America. As the mile's warmth pushed the boundary northward, the glacial waters were trapped between the ice front and highlands which now hold the headwaters of the Mississippi, Ohio, Susquehanna and Hudson Rivers.

Everest's Exact Height Unknown

Fame and Glory Will Come to the First Man to Stand on Its Summit. Fourteen Have Died in Attempts to Scale the Peak

MIGHTY and mysterious Mount Everest, unconquered by man, towers highest of all earthly objects, yet no one knows for sure how tall it is.

The Survey of India computation of 29,002 feet based on a long series of observations from the distant Indian plains is the accepted one, says the National Geographic Society. But the Survey itself admits its figure almost certainly is in unavoidable error.

Furthermore, the leader of a Swiss expedition which this year nearly attained the top announced that the queen of the snowy Himalayas is measurably growing, standing now at 29,610 feet.

DEDICATED TO GLORY

The exact figure means little to mountaineers, most dedicated of men. Knowledge that Everest is the highest peak keeps these gallant sportsmen ever returning to the cruel heights, risking life itself for the blazing moment of glory that will come to the first mortal to stand at the summit.

Fourteen thus far have died on the windswept heights, many others on the hard trails leading to the places from which Everest can be directly attacked. George Leigh Mallory and Andrew Irvine, young Englishmen, toiled into a swirl of mist only 800 feet from the goal in 1924 and were never seen again.

Everest's secrets were long guarded by two of earth's most mysterious lands, Tibet and Nepal. Ascetic Buddhist lamas who rule Tibet refused permission to climb their Chomo Lungma until 1920. The enlightened Nepal government granted permission in 1951 for Westerners to have their first look at the south face from the ground.

Despite its late start, Everest exploration, in which the British have played the major role, has been intensive. Much has been learned. Some of the knowledge acquired points only to further mystery. For example, science does not know what sort of reported creature makes great bearlike tracks in the 19,000-foot-high snows on Everest's waist. Tibetans help not at all with their explanation that the "abominable snowman" is a half-human thing that eats yaks and men.

MAN SUFFERS

It has been proved that man can survive and work without oxygen equipment above 25,000 feet. But this close to the heavens he suffers from migraine, heart dilation, sore throat and lassitude.

British aviators flew over Everest in 1933, marking the first time that men ever looked down on the summit. An American military flier duplicated the feat in 1942.

Poised for another assault upon their fearsome adversary are the Swiss who failed in the spring. They will renew their crusade in the fall by special permission of Nepal. A British expedition is to go out next spring.

No mountaineer doubts that Everest will be conquered one day. Powerful telescopes and aerial photography disclose no insurmountable obstacles. All that is necessary is the one moment when the icy goddess' willingness to grant the perfect combination of snow, ice and weather conditions is matched by the ultimate in human physical and spiritual capability.

RAPID REVOLVER

Mercury is the fastest of all the planets in the solar system and revolves about the sun at approximately 30 miles a second. The earth travels 18 miles a second in its journey around the sun.

World Echoes

The lighter side of the news from the world press:

SHOPPERS

Bargain hunters are braving the dangers of war which beset Hong Kong in order to stock up on Chinese wares and European soft currencies which sell dirt cheap in the British-held island off the south coast of China.

Judge for yourself: Beautiful silken kimonos can be bought for only $1.50; magnificent hand-embroidered blouses sell for $1.20 and $1 buys a wonderful hand-embroidered North China tablecloth. U.S. dollars can be exchanged for European money at 50 per cent discount and more.

That is why travelers in the Far East insist on routes via Hong Kong and airlines arrange for stopovers on the scenic isle where Yellow Sea typhoons make flying especially perilous.

CLIENT

A French convict is conducting "business" from his prison cell.

Recently he asked a famous Parisian lawyer to visit him to discuss undertaking his defense. He begged the barrister to bring along his secretary because he, the convict, had many things to tell him.

The lawyer saw no reason not to accede to the request, unaware that during his absence his safe was going to be broken and robbed by accomplices of his new "client."

SMUGGLER

Would you like a job where you would work six months in a sunny climate, then spend the other six months of the year relaxing in Paris? If so, then parrot smuggling may be your ticket. Robert Lasaure, of Martinique, was apprehended by the French authorities after complaints from Venezuela and Colombia.

Lasaure operated on the border between the two countries, dedicating himself to passing in contraband — bright-featured cockatoos. That gave him enough funds to finance a yearly six-month trip to the French capital.

HUSHED

The city hall of Rome has issued stringent regulations that neither Mussolini, nor Hitler, nor the allied occupation authorities ever dared to impose on the citizens of the eternal city; Romans must, from now on, keep quiet at night.

At 10 p.m. they must turn off their radio sets, discontinue using the horns of their automobiles, persuade their children not to cry—and things must remain in that mute order until 7 a.m.

SITTING ON THE FENCE

By NATHANIAL GUBBINS

IN response to a reader's request for a half-yearly prophecy from Old Moore Gubbins, the imbecile sage offers the following

AUGUST: As the full moon falls in the Eleventh House and many people on August Bank Holiday will be falling out of the public house, there will be increased police activity at the beginning of the month.

Eggs will be in short supply, particularly in seaside guest houses, where egg allocations, if any, will be eaten by the proprietors and their relatives.

Middle-aged pessimists will cause great depression among holidaymakers in hotels by pointing out that the fine summer of 1952 reminds them of the fine summers and harvests of 1914 and 1939, both of which ended in world wars.

Further misery will be caused by warnings of impending national bankruptcy made by politicians on the eve of their expensive holidays abroad.

SEPTEMBER: Autumn manoeuvres in Eastern Germany will give military experts a chance to tell us once more how many divisions we need to stop the Russians. They will then frighten everybody by pointing out that we shall never have enough divisions to stop them, except on paper

* * *

Eggs will still be in short supply, and bronzed and fit politicians, full of foreign eggs, will return from their holidays abroad to predict national bankruptcy if we don't work harder.

OCTOBER: Politicians will still be telling people to work harder, but as people will know harder work means more income tax, with one egg a week, they won't.

NOVEMBER: Ruin still just round the corner. Fogs for all. Influenza for most. Eggs for nobody DECEMBER: Ruin, and us, just about to meet at the corner. Happiest Christmas will be enjoyed by turkeys, who won't have to face the New Year.

DREAM ENCOUNTER

The cricket match between England and The Rest was being played at Helsinki.

The Red Dean was batting at one end, the Bishop of Narking Creek at the other.

Dr. Mossadeg, fielding at silly mid-off, was crying because he had just stopped a hot one with his stomach. The fast bowler was Joe Stalin, smoking a pipe, the wicket keeper ex-King Farouk, who had two black eyes from a couple of bumpers, and the square leg umpire was a bear in Russian uniform.

Despite his age, Stalin took a run of four miles before he delivered the ball. This meant running round the boundary several times, and made an over last about an hour.

As he approached the wicket from the nursery end, tshu-tshu-tshuing like a train and puffing clouds of smoke from his pipe, a piece of paper 34 feet long blew across the pitch.

"Somebody's had a good feed of sandwiches," observed a witty radio commentator.

* * *

The Red Dean picked up the piece of paper.

"It's a Chinese scroll," shouted the excited dean.

"Get back to your crease, you clot," yelled the bishop.

"They're not grease spots," the dean shouted back. "They're Chinese characters."

When Stalin arrived at the wicket, he collided with the dean and knocked him flat on his face without delivering the ball.

"How's zat?" asked a Chinese grocer, who was fielding at first slip.

"Out," said the umpire

"I'm not out," roared the bishop

"No, but the dean is," said the umpire.

"That's not cricket," said the bishop.

"Don't argue with the umpire," said the bear

* * *

At that moment an aircraft flew overhead. The Red Dean made a speech about germ warfare. Farouk shouted: "Down with England," and hit the bishop on the head with a stump. Stalin started his run round the boundary to deliver the next ball. Mossadeg handed in his resignation to the umpire and fainted

"Tea interval," said the umpire

"It's not tea time yet, you stupid bear," said the bishop.

"Any time is tea time," said the bear, who was fond of buns

GLORIOUS TWELFTH

Keen disappointment will be felt among their many friends at the news that Lord and Lady Gubbins will not be in Scotland for grouse shooting.

As the winged insect season reaches its peak at about the same time, this popular pair will be enjoying a Glorious Twelfth of their own, shooting down wasps and moths with their insecticide guns while Lottie the Devil Cat plays the dual role of beater and retriever

* * *

Lord and Lady Gubbins will not wear anything special for the occasion, though Lord Gubbins may wear his famous tweed jacket Moth's Relish, if the weather is not too hot. Nor will they open picnic hampers full of cold chicken, duck, ham and caviare, which appears to be the normal fare on the Scottish moors.

Income tax being what it is, Lady Gubbins will spare ten minutes out of an exciting day to bring in fish and chips from a local restaurant

Last year Lord Gubbins, who is one of the finest shots in the country with a spray gun, brought down a record bag of 18 wasps during the morning's shoot. Later in the day he bagged seven large moths which he laughingly called "four engine jobs."

* * *

Lady Gubbins, though not quite so successful with the gun, wrought havoc with a fish slice in the garden and while washing up at the sink. At tea time she was able to point proudly to a pile of victims which included two butterflies which had been laying their eggs on the curly kale

Although enthusiastic and agile, Lottie's chief fault as a retriever is that she is inclined to eat the game instead of bringing it back to the butts.

She caused consternation on one occasion when it was thought she had swallowed a wasp. But as she came to no harm, it is believed that the buzzing in her stomach, heard by an anxious Lord Gubbins, must have been the last convulsions of a dying bluebottle

Old Homes and Families

By JIM NESBITT

THERE'S no place like Sooke, a lot of people are sure; Sooke—down in the southwest corner of this wondrous Island; Sooke where Pacific rollers pound on lovely beaches and picturesque rocks; Sooke—with its views of snow-capped mountains; Sooke with its mellow fields and its fine harbor and so much sunshine, and wisps of fog that create mystery and fresh ocean breezes that pinken the oldest cheeks. And, besides all this, Sooke has history—plenty of romantic history.

Once it appeared that Sooke was to be an important port. In the 50's and 60's the harbor was busy with sailing vessels loading lumber. Let's look into The Victoria Gazette—July 5, 1859: "Gone—the ship Thames City, Glover, master, has gone to Sooke about 20 miles to the southwest of here to load spars for England."

July 23, 1859: "For England—the British bark Euphrates has cleared for Sooke to load with spars for England."

FIRST SETTLERS

There were settlers in Sooke in the early 50's. They felt safe there; it was far enough away from the autocratic rule of the Hudson's Bay Company in Fort Victoria. At Sooke the settlers were free to make their own lives. Soon they tired of being isolated; they wanted a road to Victoria.

The Colonist of June 5, 1859, said: "A good wagon road is very much needed from here to Sooke. The settlers in that district were promised it some years ago.

"The residents of Sooke, when they went to visit Victoria for supplies, are compelled to come by canoe. We are informed that the distance between here and Sooke can be materially shortened some 10 miles by making a road across to Sooke from Mr. Langford's farm. In that case the journey there and back can be made in a day.

"With a fine harbor, plenty of timber for lumber and spars, good fisheries, salmon in particular, and with its agriculture and pastoral lands, and the prospect of coal mines, it has ample resources for a flourishing settlement."

C. H. HUGHES

EXPLORING AREA

However, Sooke remained in the wilds. No one knew very much about Sooke. It was so isolated that brave souls actually went exploring there, as reported in The Colonist of Sept. 6, 1861: "Exploring party to Sooke—A party started for Sooke on Thursday on an exploring expedition. The intention of the party is to make as thorough an examination of the country as the means at hand will permit. Coal and rich sections of farming land are known to exist there and possibly some valuable mineral wealth may be developed by the explorers."

By 1864 Sooke was in the public eye of Victoria. Gold had been discovered in the Leech River. It seemed all Victoria was going to Sooke. Indeed, Victoria shook in its shoes—would Sooke put Victoria out of business? One Victoria businessman was so worried he advertised as follows: "Re-opening of the Fashion Music Hall—the proprietor begs leave to inform his patrons and the public that at considerable expense he has engaged artists from San Francisco. The proprietor hopes that everyone who has not concluded to visit Sooke will patronize the only place of amusement in the city."

WENT BY SHIP

And here are other advertisements of the day: "Sooke gold mines—the steamer Enterprise, Capt. Mouat will leave the H.B. Co.'s wharf at noon this day for Sooke Harbor."

"Sooke diggings—Miners on their way to the diggings will find a carefully assorted store of ales, wines, liquors, etc., at Thompson's Landing, Sooke Inlet, which will be supplied to their customers at a slight advance on Victoria prices. Elliott, Stuart and Co."

"First in the Field' Miners' Store' George S. Gladwin has now on hand at Steamboat Landing at the mouth of the Sooke River, being the nearest point to the mines, flour, bacon, lard, butter, cheese, hams, beans and all kinds of groceries and provisions, picks, shovels, axes, rockers and all kinds of mining tools."

"Bayley's pack train of 18 horses—for the Leech River. They take about 4,000 pounds of goods."

"Four horse coach—Messrs. Bowman and Halsey have put on a daily four horse coach to the junction of the Sooke Trail

LAW AND ORDER

Soon it was necessary to have law and order in the booming mining settlement, and The Colonist of August 8, 1864, noted: "Magistrates for Sooke—His Excellency has appointed C. J. Hughes, a gentleman whose initials are well known by all readers of the Victoria papers, to be a Justice of the Peace and acting resident magistrate for Sooke mining district."

Mr Hughes went to Sooke, and no sooner was he there than he shot himself. Miners removed him to the steamer Alexandra, and he was brought to Victoria. The Colonist told the townsfolk: "A large crowd had assembled at Pickett's Wharf when the Alexandra arrived and the sad tidings of which she was the bearer spread like wildfire over the city, the steamer and wharf being, in a short space of time, thronged with anxious friends of the unhappy man. A messenger was at once despatched for a medical man and in a few moments, Dr. Trimble, followed by Dr. Powell, was in attendance. On examining the wounded man they pronounced their patient beyond human aid. Mr. Hughes was conveyed to Eberhardt's Hotel on Langley Street, where he shortly afterwards breathed his last, attended by a few of his most intimate friends. He was a native of Wales, and spent several years in California. We understand that he was a single man, about 44 years of age."

GOVERNMENT SHIP

Here's another item of interest regarding old days at Sooke: August 7, 1870: "The steamer Sir James Douglas made her monthly trip to Sooke yesterday, calling at Race Rocks lighthouse with supplies. Mr Eddy, who has taken the contract for erecting the fog bell, went down to Sooke for the purpose of purchasing lumber for the structure. The following passengers from Sooke came by the Douglas: Mrs. Nesbitt, Mrs. Clarke, Mr Bell, Mr. Cowan and three sons of Mr Rhodes, who have been down at Sooke spending the holiday in fishing and shooting. Some produce came up to market. The crops were found good and grain was being harvested in excellent condition. The settlement appears to be in prosperous condition, but the settlers need more frequent communication. Although only some 12 miles in length, the trail which connects Sooke with this, its sole market, is practically blocked by fallen trees."

No story on Sooke could be complete without mention of the Muir family. John Muir, with his wife, sons and daughters, reached here in 1849 in the Harpooner. Soon they were living at Sooke, farming, saw milling, building ships, trading. The Colonist best tells of the shipbuilding activities. March 28, 1863—"Launch of a schooner at Sooke. On Monday last a new fore and aft schooner of 115 tons burthen was launched at Sooke Harbor. She glided down the way swiftly and rode the water like a duck. Just as she commenced moving Miss Isabella Muir broke a bottle of champagne over the receding bows, and christened her the Ann Taylor. The vessel was built by the Messrs. Muir and is intended to be used in the lumber trade between Sooke and San Francisco, or the Sandwich Islands. She is a clipper model and is the largest sail vessel ever constructed on Vancouver Island. After the launch the whole settlement took a holiday and horse racing, boat racing, wrestling bouts, etc., were indulged in till a late hour of the night."

JOHN MUIR
patriarch of Woodside

CORONATION DAY

June 30, 1878: "Steamboat launch at Sooke. The 41st anniversary of the Coronation of Queen Victoria was commemorated in a lively way at Sooke by the successful launch of a beautiful steam propeller built for the enterprising firm of Muir Brothers, whose venerable ancestor has laid the foundation of the houses of many a happy family in that thriving district.

"The important ceremony of christening was performed by Mrs. Michael Muir amid cheers, a handsome burgee of blue and white fluttering in the breeze and disclosing in good Roman letters the name Woodside in honor of one whose patriarchal residence is so well known by that name. We might give a description of this yacht-like craft, which was said to be as beautiful as a peacock when on the stocks and to float with all the majesty of the swan when in the water, but it may be more interesting to the public to be informed she was drafted by Mr Samuel Sea of Victoria, who was the builder. The Woodside is admirably adapted to the carrying trade and all the requirements of Sooke and can tow a frigate if required to do so in an emergency."

ABOUT MR. MUIR

Mrs. John Muir died in 1875, and for a brief glimpse of John Muir's life we look to The Colonist when he died in 1883: "Yesterday at Sooke, Mr. John Muir died at his house, at Woodside Farm. Mr Muir came to the country in 1849 to develop certain coal measures at Fort Rupert. After working there awhile, a discovery of coal was made at Nanaimo, and Mr Muir opened the first coal mine thus laying the foundations of one of the chief sources of British Columbia's importance and wealth. Subsequently Mr Muir retired to Sooke in 1851 where he bought a beautiful tract of land which has since been successfully farmed by himself and his sons.

"In 1854 Mr Muir was appointed to the first assembly representing Sooke. Previous to that he was appointed by Her Majesty a magistrate of the Colony of Vancouver Island.

"For many years, surrounded by his sons and daughters, his grandchildren and his great-grandchildren, Mr. Muir had lived in retirement. Although in the 84th year the deceased enjoyed excellent health until two days before his death, when, having contracted a severe cold, he suddenly succumbed."

EXPERIMENTAL FARM NOTES

Blossom End Rot Is Due To Soil and Climate

FROM now on one hears many complaints about a rot which affects the end of tomatoes, usually as they are starting to ripen, and which makes them unfit for consumption. The trouble extends throughout the ripening season and in extreme cases may cause the loss of most of the crop. This "disease" is commonly known as blossom end rot. It usually starts as a small water-soaked area at the blossom end of the fruit, and may affect half or even more of the tomato. Soon the area becomes sunken, brown to black, dry and leathery. Severely affected fruits will be quite flat at the blossom end, and may be half or less the weight of a normal fruit.

All the causes for this condition are not well known, but it has been well established that it is not a disease in the sense that we usually think of a disease, that is, there is no casual organism. It is, rather, due to a combination of soil and climatic factors.

FRUIT TESTING

Several good raspberry varieties have been fruiting in the station plots this season. The fruit of many of these is very large and especially under irrigation. Besides size and quality of fruit, vigor and yield are of great importance to the gardener and when all are considered the Washington variety meets these requirements a little closer than most others and for these reasons it is highly recommended for planting. The Taylor is a strong grower with large fine appearing berries but it lacks the quality of the Washington as do the Milton, Newburgh, Williamette, Tahoma and Viking. Four varieties under test from Eastern Canada do not promise to be equal to the Washington. Sugar content in 11 varieties grown is shown as follows: Washington (13%), Ottawa 382 (13%), Viking (12%), Newburgh (11%), Ottawa 384 (11%), Williamette (11%), Tahoma (10%), Ottawa 381 (10%) Taylor (9%), Ottawa 383 (9%) and Milton (9%). It is interesting to note that the sugar content in 11 raspberry varieties averaged 10.7% and in 11 bramble varieties 12%.

Leaf Rollers Are Trouble Makers

LEAF rollers are small in size, only about one-half inch long, but they can cause lots of trouble. They roll up inside a single leaf or fasten several leaves together with fine silken threads thus forming a tent for themselves. Here, protected by the leaves, they feed in snug comfort.

Leaf rollers attack shade trees, fruit trees, shrubs, vegetables and strawberries. They also enjoy feeding on the foliage of asters, carnations, roses, geraniums, sunflowers, verbenas and hollyhocks.

If you find leaves that have been rolled up by this pest, remove them at once. Wrap them in newspaper and burn them in order to destroy the caterpillars or pupae inside

For control, dust flowers and ornamentals with a mixture of 85 per cent sulphur and 15 per cent arsenate of lead. One can only spray with arsenate of lead, using three teaspoonfuls of the arsenate compound mixed in one gallon of water. D.D.T. can also be used, as well as any of the rotenone and pyrethrum compounds.

Watch your strawberry bed. If leaf rollers infest it spray with arsenate of lead. Then spray again a week later. If the rollers are present after the fruit has formed spray only with rotenone. If the pests still persist after the berries have been harvested, mow the plants close to the ground and burn over the bed.

Hints for the Gardener

Nepeta mussini, a member of the catnip family, is easily propagated by cuttings made in July. The new, soft growth should be pinched off and placed in sand in a shaded cold-frame.

* * *

Now is the time to plant pansy seeds for next year's bloom. Sow the seeds in a raised bed of good soil. The seedlings should be transplanted when about one inch in size into a permanent place in the garden.

* * *

A cool, cloudy day is best for lifting and dividing pyrethrum plants that have finished blooming. The divisions will develop into strong plants by fall.

* * *

If you are planning a rose garden, you can start the necessary construction on cool evenings at this time. In clay soil a tile drain is necessary to encourage deep rooting, and to prevent winter injury.

* * *

All weedings and trimmings as well as leaves, etc., should be placed on the compost pile. Large compost piles should be turned and wet down with water when dry.

Mint plants are aggressive to the point of being weedy. To keep them in check, dig out all the shoots showing up beyond the assigned area.

* * *

It is not difficult to detect a stringy beet from one that is palatable and tender. When a beet has light green, glossy centre leaves, it is still growing and will be excellent for table use

* * *

Violas, including pansies, usually produce better flowers if cut back severely at this season. Fertilize them and water thoroughly and a fine new crop of flowers will result

* * *

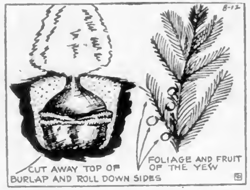
Cut roses with stems as long as possible for indoor use. Make sure that at least two leaf buds are left on the cut stem to develop into future blooms.

* * *

In the vegetable gardens, try a late planting of bush beans and green peas for fall use

* * *

Pick pansy blossoms every day for continued flowering. Their chances are better if seedlings were transplanted into a partly shaded place.



When and How to Plant Evergreens

EVERGREENS planted immediately after either spring or autumn rains have thoroughly soaked the soil have the best chance of surviving. In most sections these planting periods are March-April and August-September. Evergreens should never be planted in dry soil, or during a drought.

The prime rule for planting an evergreen is, dig the hole big enough. The hole must be wide enough and deep enough to allow for loosened soil about the "ball" into which new roots can easily grow.

When planting place the evergreen correctly as to depth and orientation, as shown in the accompanying gardeo-graph. Next untie the burlap. Cut it away from the top of the ball. The remaining burlap can be rolled down into the hole as illustrated. It will rot into the soil in a few months.

Next step: Backfill the space about the ball until two-thirds full, tamping well. Add water and after it has seeped into the soil finish filling the hole. Leave a saucer-shaped depression around the plant and under it to retain water. The top two inches of soil should be left loose

Of all available evergreens for the garden, the yews are without doubt the most striking. The darkest of all evergreen shrubs, they thrive in various kinds of soil. Their bright red, fleshy fruits, illustrated, are conspicuously unique all fall and even part of the winter.

Yews can be transplanted now and in September with entire safety if there has been lots of rain. Their fibrous root system makes it easy to dig them with a ball of soil.

African Violet Not Problem Child

THE popular African violet is often considered a "problem child" by those who almost kill it with kindness. Once this attractive plant is really understood it is no problem

Many "house plant" gardeners wonder why they cannot keep African violets living indefinitely. The reason is that the plant itself lives only one year. However, by taking leaf cuttings from a plant you can keep your African violets going from year to year.

Select only mature and healthy leaves. Pick the leaves from the base of the plant.

Experiment, if you wish, with a leaf or two rooted in water. Here's how to do it: fit a piece of wax paper over a glass of water. Secure it in place with a rubber band. Slit two, three or four holes in the wax paper, according to the number of leaves you want to "plant." Insert the stems of the leaves through the holes so that the stem is immersed in water. Maintain the water level until the roots are formed. Keep the glass in a warm, light spot.

Still another method of propagating leaf cuttings calls for placing the leaf stem in a pot of sand, soil or vermiculite. Insert each stem into whatever rooting medium is used almost to the base of the leaf. A jelly jar placed over the top will keep the humidity constant and thus hasten the rooting process.

In several weeks tiny leaves will appear beside the large leaf. Each leaf can produce from three to six plantlets which are transplanted in separate small pots when they are large enough to handle

It's Time to Take Geranium Cuttings

GERANIUMS are such generous plants that new ones can be had from old ones by taking cuttings and rooting them in sand. And the best months to take cuttings are August and September. This will give you new plants which will bloom indoors during the winter

Until the middle of September the sun is high enough so that the soil retains its warmth at night. Later in September the sun sets earlier and by midnight the soil has lost most of its heat. Then there is danger of the young rootlets becoming chilled, thus retarding their growth.

Make each cutting at the node just below the leaf. Roots start easier at this point. A cutting can be four or five inches in length. Remove the leaves from that part of the stem that is going into the soil.

Do not plant the cuttings immediately. Leave them in the shade for a day. This will help to keep them from "damping off" when planted.

Plant by inserting the lower end of the stem in clean, sharp sand or a mixture of half peat and half sand. Water carefully and place in a cold frame. Keep the cuttings shaded for about two weeks until roots begin to grow

After roots are well developed on each cutting the new plants can be potted. Be sure to take them indoors before there is danger of frost. Indoors, keep the new plants in a cool room until they become acclimated and during this period do not give them too much water to drink.

HARBOR LIGHTS

By RAY WORMALD

J. Charles Ash looks after an important harbor job at this port, but few people know anything about it. He is in charge of a 30-foot launch which meets practically every deep sea vessel reaching this port for the purpose of assisting in the mooring of the incoming vessel.

The linesboat is the property of McKay, Cormack Ltd., 130 Kingston Street, where Charlie has been employed for the past nine years. The widely known boatbuilding and repair plant was known as Armstrong Bros. shipyard when Charlie started there, and later as Falconer Marine Industries. New owners took over several years ago.

* * *

Charlie is a native of Neepawa, Manitoba—about 125 miles west of Winnipeg. He took his schooling there later "knocking around various parts of Manitoba" and engaged in a variety of jobs. He farmed for a while in the Ochre River area, and later did a bit of commercial fishing on Lake Dauphin.

J. CHARLES ASH

* * *

The way he fished will be of interest to many persons here. It was a wintertime operation, and fishing was done through thick ice with gill nets. Instead of a boat Charlie used a dog team and a sled to handle his finny harvest. Pickerel and tullibee were caught commercially. His biggest day's catch totaled approximately 600 pickerels—each of about two pounds.

* * *

Later, Charlie went to Winnipeg where he worked with a large trucking firm, then he spent about a year in a huge cordite plant at Transcona, Man. "The plant was working day and night in the war program . . . there were very strict security regulations . . . it took a man almost a week to get into the place!"

* * *

Early in 1943 Charlie came to Victoria, and shortly after he joined his present firm. He's not sorry he came to the west coast. At the McKay, Cormack yard Charlie handles a wide variety of work.

He's on hand when vessels are hauled onto the marine slipway for repairs, does considerable work about the welding shop; and is responsible for the linesboat. It is aboard that launch that Charlie has had some interesting experiences. "Usually I'm out with Pete Gregory, of the stores shop. We meet the incoming ships off the breakwater, take their headlines first, then their sternlines, and accompany the ship to the docks where the lines are passed up for mooring."

Some time ago Charlie's launch was caught between two freighters. The great propeller of one caught the small linesboat, cutting it almost in half amidship. The launch all but submerged, with Charlie and his companion having to swim a considerable distance to the docks. It was a bad night and the water was icy. Another time the great anchor of a freighter was dropped seconds too soon. It smashed one side of the launch, almost demolishing the vessel. It was an uncomfortable brush with death for the linesmen

* * *

Charlie is married to the former Agnes Paterson of Winnipeg. Their home is at 466 Superior Street, where both the linesman and his wife keep busy with a combination of flower and vegetable gardening.

From My Organ Loft

—BY—GRAHAM—STEED

A REVIEW of a recently published book entitled "Musical Trends in the Twentieth Century" by Norman Demuth contained this interesting comment: "The author deplores what he feels to be the timidity of much modern criticism, and the passive acquiescence of audiences to much contemporary work. New music, he says, is often played in radio studios, either with no audience, or in front of one specially invited and sufficiently cowed into expressing nothing more than respectful approval." This is an indictment, not only of professional critics but also of the critical powers of amateur listeners, and in this writer's opinion such criticism is very apposite at the present time.

* * *

Now read some remarks recently made by Sir Ernest Bullock, the President of the Royal College of Organists and the Director-designate of the Royal College of Music. "Young composers get their works performed more easily now than 30 or 40 years ago. These opportunities are all to the good and everyone is delighted that encouragement is being given this way, but it is also good for composers to strive for a true sense of proportion and preserve a real and sincere humility. Every artist tends to think too much of himself and his works and certain members of the public encourage this weakness and vanity. To bolster up promising youngsters by fulsome articles is, in the long run, doing them great disservice. The more laudatory the notices in youth, the worse will be their disillusionment in middle or old age." Sir Ernest concluded by advising young musicians to develop a more sensitive attitude to music, to show more integrity and unselfishness, and build stronger characters to withstand both the glamour of success and the disappointment of failure.

* * *

From these two quotations you will readily perceive the great dangers to artistic progress, not only in the ordinary day to day business of recitals and concerts but more important still in the long-term development of the art of music itself from the present-day lack of sound cultural and critical standards. The timidity of criticism bemoaned by Mr. Demuth is the immediate outcome of two very bad features of contemporary life, one, the present crazy system of boosting talent before it is ripe, and two, the prevalent aversion of all people to any type of critical argument, to anything in fact which gives them cause to think deeply at all. So long as they skid along on the surface without their failures being too obvious most people are content with themselves, for they have lost the greatest gift of all, self-criticism, and it is for this reason that men who reach the top of their professions, if they are any good at all, have to be continually busy drumming away the demons of complacency wherever they rear their ugly heads.

* * *

I know very well, since I have been contributing this column, that all manner of people would have me soft pedal some of my own critical utterances. This generally takes the form of exhortations to be more objective, or less subjective, two terms taken from the studies of philosophy and logic which have lost their original significance and now-a-days are used to imply that one should no longer hold strong convictions upon any subject under the sun. In their former connotations these words described two very distinct and separate approaches to any problem being studied, the subjective approach being through the medium of one's own feelings and the objective method presupposing a complete detachment from such personal partialities. Now-a-days the tendency is to avoid becoming involved in any kind of critical argument and to accept instead the criteria of values proclaimed by the publicity agency, and while no one can blame publishers, concert promoters and particularly broadcasting corporations for using a certain amount of window dressing to enable them to market their wares, one must defend to the last ditch the sincere listener's inalienable right to be dissatisfied and to say so, if what he hears does not come up to standard

* * *

No self-respecting critic would claim omniscience, even on his own stamping ground, but he does hope to find a similar response from his fellow listeners, if they have not allowed their own critical apparatus to fall into disuse. The very essence of all good musical activity is that critical judgment should be displayed all along the line. This postulates in the first place composers who are under a sense of the tremendous responsibility they owe to those who have preceded them and those for whom they are writing; secondly, authoritative interpreters who have made it their life's work to understand not just the handful of pieces that they play publicly from time to time, but the whole range of musical literature, and finally, a well-informed and discriminating body of professionals and amateurs who have taken some trouble to find out what music is about, how and why it works, and by what criterions one judges the difference between good and bad.

* * *

The most understanding critics will never quite agree on the last question, but they do agree on three points, one, that it never spoiled anyone with the slightest love of music to find out more about it; two, that people who perform make better listeners than those who don't, and, lastly, that every player can, by devoting the requisite amount of time to it, become a better player, in the process becoming both a better listener and a better critic.

The Mouth Harmonica Has Many Cousins

THE harmonica, usually associated with the ear-assaulting first musical attempts of children, is an honored instrument this summer as the south German town of Trossingen celebrates its 500th anniversary

The honor comes naturally, because Trossingen, in the French-zone province of Wurttemberg Hohenzollern, owes much to the harmonica. One of the world's largest and best known makers of mouth organs is located there, and the factory provides much of the town's employment, says the National Geographical Society.

The harmonica, or, more correctly, the mouth harmonica, is much younger than Trossingen itself. It was invented by Friedrich Buschmann in Berlin in 1821 and employs an originally oriental system of producing music by passing air over "free" reeds vibrating metal reeds that fit exactly the wind aperture

SOME 14 FEET LONG

There were oriental mouth organs long before Buschmann produced his Mundharmonika. The Chinese and Japanese models were made with a gourd, or a gourd-shaped piece of carved wood, as an air reservoir. Thirteen or more slender canes were inserted into this wind chest, each cane producing a note from a different free reed. Some Chinese mouth organs use bamboo pipes, or canes, 14 feet long.

While all oriental mouth organs can be carried by one man, they can scarcely be slipped into the pocket, as can the German and American models. These vary from small toys capable of playing in only one key to large chromatic harmonicas capable of varying keys.

Musical dictionaries differentiate between the mouth harmonica and the harmonica. Technically the instrument generally known as a harmonica is a mouth harmonica or mouth organ.

INVENTED BY FRANKLIN

The other harmonica is an instrument invented by Benjamin Franklin and in no way resembles a mouth organ. The Franklin instrument possessed such musical merit that distinguished composers wrote tunes specifically for it. The mouth organ has not enjoyed any great distinction in this respect, although some of the chromatic harmonica renditions at Trossingen were composed by Bach for other instruments.

The Franklin harmonica consisted of a series of graduated glass bells, or bowls, nested into one another and mounted on a central spindle, or shaft. The shaft and the bowls were turned by means of a foot pedal with the spindle in a horizontal position and the lower edges of the bowls immersed in a reservoir of water.

The Man of the Week

By G. E. MORTIMORE

Dr. Peter Mar: A Seeker of Hidden Cures

"GO back and help China," the Rev. Seung Mar told his Canadian-born sons. "The time may come when Canada will recognize you as citizens. You should be loyal to your native country, and thankful for the education you can get here. There are 400,000,000 people in China. You are the lucky ones."

"But you should also remember the country of your forefathers, and go back to help with the knowledge you are gaining."

Peter Mar took his father's good advice. He has spent the best part of his 50 years as a research physician and teacher in two countries, saving thousands of lives through the devious ways of science, and enriching thousands more.

His father would be proud of him today. The late Mr. Mar, senior, whose faith in the power of science was subordinate only to his faith in God, would be happy to see his brilliant son at work in the laboratory of St. Joseph's Hospital.

HONORABLE FATHER

Mr. Mar, senior, came to Canada as a laborer. A Presbyterian minister, Mr. Hall, finding that he had a good education in the Chinese classics, induced him to go back to China and train for the ministry at a mission school in Canton.

After his return to Canada, and ordination, the Rev. Seung Mar served for 34 years as a pioneer Chinese Christian minister to the Chinese of his adopted country, winning high regard and respect in Victoria, Cumberland and Winnipeg. He raised four sons who prospered in the professions—two doctors of medicine, one doctor of pharmacy and an engineer.

Dr. Peter Gee-pan Mar, the eldest, was born in Victoria on July 3, 1902, two years after his father arrived back here to take up a Presbyterian ministry to Chinese residents.

When Peter Mar was six, the family moved up-Island to Cumberland, where the Rev. Mr. Mar was Presbyterian minister among 1,200 Chinese working in the mines. (Peter Mar paid a return visit to Cumberland two years ago, and found only 36 Chinese-Canadians living there. Part of the church his father built was still standing).

SCHOOL DAYS

Going to school was not as easy for a Chinese lad then as in these more enlightened days. Race snobbery existed. Peter Mar remembers (without anger) that the only non-Chinese home he entered during his 10 years in Cumberland was that of the Rev. James Hood.

At church union, Mr. Mar senior joined the United Church and took a post at Winnipeg. Because of the more varied mixture of nationalities, and the harsher climate which drove people together, the atmosphere of the prairie city was more friendly than that of the coast towns.

While at the University of Manitoba, Peter Mar was in constant demand as a special speaker at church gatherings. In his freshman year he represented his university at the World Student Volunteer Convention at Des Moines, Iowa. Then he toured and lectured through the prairies. He won the university gold medal for oratory.

STUDY OF DRUGS

Peter's father had always been intensely interested in ancient Chinese drugs. In the vast storehouse of Chinese materia medica, he believed, were many items which would be of healing benefit, if their wrappings of superstition and unscientific vagueness could be removed.

To investigate the Chinese drugs was an ambition of Peter Mar's. Peter wanted to be a pharmacist. But no pharmacists in the west would take a Chinese apprentice just then, so he gave up the idea, and decided to take some chemistry courses. This was the time of the gold rush to The Pas, and he acquired an interest in geology.

In his third year the explosion of a bottle of magnesium powder in his hand robbed him of his right thumb. At first he seemed likely to lose the whole hand, but a surgeon saved it. During his six-week stay in hospital his mind turned toward medicine.

He took his bachelor of science degree in chemistry and geology, 1922; master of arts, organic chemistry, 1923; master of science, organic and alkaloidal chemistry, 1924.

BACK TO CHINA

At the age of 21 he went back to China and taught science at the school from which his father had graduated—Union Middle School, Canton. Some of his students were older than he was, and had families. Nevertheless they looked up to him, for teachers are accorded great respect in China. (They were, at least, under the old regime). When Peter Mar paid his second visit to China only a few years later, some of his former students brought their grandchildren to see him.

During the three years he taught in Canton, several classes turned out a record number of ministers of the gospel. Some of his ex-students now hold church posts in China, San Francisco, Los Angeles and New York, to name of few places.

Then he went to Peking under a China Medical Board fellowship in the Peking Union Medical College, working under Professor Bernard E. Read in the department of pharmacology. Peter Mar had been thinking about the things his father had told him of old Chinese medicines, and he chose to work under Professor Read because the latter was doing a lot of work in that field.

Dr. Read was following in the footsteps of others who had first brought Chinese medicines to general notice: Dr. F. Porter Smith, Rev Dr. G. A. Stuart. The Chinese materia medica, dating back many centuries, occupied 52 volumes. It was a huge job to identify the medicines from crude descriptions in the old books, identify and analyse them, and sift the truth from the rubbish.

AS AN INSTRUCTOR

After a year in that work, Peter Mar went to Lingham University, Canton, for a year as instructor in physics. Then, in 1926, he returned to Canada to enter the medical school of the University of Manitoba. After gaining his doctorate, he worked on an assortment of projects—joined the staff of the medical college as sessional demonstrator of biochemistry, and at the same time worked under the National Research Council of Canada on a study of glucosidic plants in Central Canada; was demonstrator of histology at the medical college, 1930-31; worked under the Banting Research Foundation on some dermatalogical problems, 1930-33.

In 1934 he returned to China to work once more under Professor Read, this time on the research staff of the division of physiological sciences, Henry Lester Institute of Medical Research, Shanghai. How to assure China's millions enough food and the right kind of food was then, as now, a pressing problem. Dr. Mar worked on nutritional problems.

THEN WAR CAME

The Sino-Japanese war came and the Japanese took over the Institute. At first a learned and bold Japanese scientist was placed in charge and the staff was treated well. Then came Pearl Harbor. The Japanese tried to force Dr. Mar and others to join the Japanese medical military service. British and American-born resigned. Dr. Mar took over directorship of the Great Eastern Biochemical Laboratories, a private firm.

In 1935 Dr. Mar had married a fellow teacher and university graduate, Kathryn Chi-Fang Liang, whose family had been of the high official or Mandarin class before the Chinese revolution. Dr. and Mrs. Mar had a lean time under the Japanese. They were forbidden to travel beyond the International settlement. They lived on meagre rations. One of the things Dr. Mar had studied at the Henry Lester Institute was the use of certain weeds as vegetables in time of famine. This knowledge came in handy. Even today Dr. and Mrs. Mar use several wild plants, including "lambs' quarters," for greens.

His father had always cautioned him to keep away from government jobs. Immediately after V-J Day he went against his better judgment and joined the Shanghai municipal government as director of the food and drug laboratories of the bureau of health. After setting the department in order he went to United Nations' Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, and was assigned in an advisory capacity to the food and drug bureau of the ministry of health. He helped U.N.R.R.A. build a laboratory in Shanghai for checking food and drugs.

ACCEPTS CHAIR

Meanwhile he had been lecturing at two universities, editing several medical journals, originating health services. In 1946 he accepted the chair of chemistry at St. John's University, Shanghai.

For some time he had thought of returning to Canada, but existing immigration laws allowed only Dr. Mar and his children, not his wife to enter this country. Then the laws were changed.

STUDY CONTINUES

He returned to Victoria in September, 1948, to join Dr. I. C. C. Tchaperoff in important research on radiation chemistry at St. Joseph's Hospital, where he is now research biochemist.

This member of a dozen learned societies is a humble man with a quiet, cultured voice and a round, plump countenance. Outside the field of science, he belongs to the Rotary Club and the United Nations Association, among other bodies. With his wife and family, he attends the Chinese United Church on Fisgard Street.

He collects stamps and used to collect books, but having twice left his library behind and lost it without trace, he feels discouraged.

In Canton, he left behind 2,000 volumes and in Shaghai, 5,000 scientific books and translations of the old Chinese classics.

Dr. and Mrs. Mar have two children, David, 14; and Maryette, 11. After going to an unheated school in Shanghai, where their fingers and ears were pinched by the cold, they are having "the time of their lives," at S. J. Willis School.

In addition to English, the youngsters can speak Mandarin, Shanghai and Cantonese—although their classmates probably don't know it.

FAMOUS WOMEN SPIES

By Kurt Singer

Mada Fontanges Mussolini's Girl—Kim Suim Traded Love for Secrets

They Were Beautiful Women and One Was an Oriental. Fontanges Was Bought Off by Il Duce, but Kim Went to Her Death When the South Koreans Found Her in Seoul

This is the 11th in a series of articles on "The World's 30 Greatest Women Spies."

THERE was something almost pathetic about Magda Fontagnes, whose trial I watched in Bordeaux, France, in 1937. She was haggard, old, shabby. Her long hair was neither attractive nor overclean. No one would have guessed what she had been.

She was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment as German spy No. 8006, and prohibited French territory for 20 years. Watching her in the courtroom, it was hard to realize how swiftly and completely disaster had overtaken her. For this woman, who worked for the German Gestapo from 1940 to 1943 for exactly $42.50 a month plus expenses, was once the admired and influential mistress of the man who tried to conquer half the world. Those in the court could hardly believe this was the end of the well-known Magda Fontanges, celebrated mistress of the Duce, the woman to whom Mussolini had said: "One hour of love with you, and Ethiopia means nothing to me."

Nothing was now left of her old glory. Her beauty had withered, her once famous wit had departed.

BEAUTIFUL MAGDA

It was back in April, 1931, that the beautiful young Magda settled in Rome as a reporter for a chain of French newspapers. She had introductions to ambassadors and officials, recommendations from editors and from French deputies and cabinet ministers. She stayed at the best hotels, was seen in the most fashionable bars. Soon after her arrival she achieved a notable scoop. She had an interview with the great dictator himself. Mussolini entertained her and gave her material for a front-page story. After this meeting followed their romance. Magda Fontanges became unofficially the most important woman in Italy.

But even the most dramatic publicity story could not prevent Mussolini tiring of Magda after a few years of love making. The gossip during her short reign was spicy and permanent, but her glamorous pugnacity retained her grip on Rome. And Magda took care of her own publicity. When the French Ambassador to Italy became too nosy about her relations with Mussolini, she shot him. Fortunately the two bullets only wounded Count Charles de Chambrun slightly. Magda made the front pages again. Mussolini laughed, and her fine was $25.

MUSSOLINI RANTS

Still, Mussolini was weary of her. Satiety changed to fury when he discovered she had sold their intimate story to the American Press under the title "I Was Mussolini's Mistress." Resolved to be rid of her for good, he bought her off with a job on the Gestapo staff in France where she spied on the Allies and especially on the French underground in Marseilles and Brussels.

Magda's father was a well-known French painter. The girl early exercised her seductive charms to gain attention and success. An art student in Paris, she sat as a model for other students. She was pretty and witty in her younger days.

Somehow her detailed account of her affairs with one deputy after another, one leader after another, seemed bizarre, as she stood before the court dressed in an old tweed jacket and shabby divided skirt.

BEAUTY FADING

In a last bid to exploit a sex approach she hired the lawyer who had defended Dr. Marcel Petoit, the "Bluebeard" murderer. But nothing could avail her. She was doomed, and all she could say at her final exit was: "My only regret is that I wasn't hanged with the Duce, instead of his last mistress, Clara Petacci."

* * *

Magda was a failure because it takes much more than sex to be a good spy. Another failure was Kim Suim. But her Oriental mind made her more cautious, more subtle. Her end was less dramatic, but her work was more efficient. She was shot in Seoul a few hours before the Communists moved in during the United Nations intervention in Korea.

ORIENTAL GIRL

They called her "the doctor of lovemaking." She was a beautiful Oriental girl. Until 1942 politics meant little to her. But in that year she heard a Communist for the first time, speaking at some "patriotic" meeting. He was a handsome Korean, Lee Kung Kook, a Communist leader.

She was infatuated with him, and he, lacking much time for lovemaking, took what came along. But Lee also saw other possibilities. She would make a fine Comintern spy.

"You are an orphan," he told her, "educated by American Methodists. They will never suspect you of being a Communist agent." She then worked at the dental school at Severance College.

KIM IN KOREA

At the end of the Second World War, when the Americans moved into Korea to free the country from the Japanese, Kim Suim was there to welcome the liberators. Missionary trained, speaking English, pleasand and handsome, she attracted many a lonely soldier. She was in sufficiently good standing to be employed as receptionist at the United States Military Headquarters in Korea, located at the famous Banto Hotel. She was happy to get such a fine job. She met every visitor. She could overhear every phone call. Her Communist lover knew within a few hours much that went on inside headquarters.

It was Kim who informed spy chief Laurenti Beria and Joseph Stalin in Moscow that the Americans were ready to withdraw from South Korea and that General MacArthur had opposed this move but had been outvoted by the politicians. She stayed in Seoul headquarters for about a year—the best spy the Russians could ask for.

Then she was promoted. Her new job was in the United States Provost Marshal's office, inside the Counter-Intelligence Division. This post enabled her to copy and to steal top-secret American documents. Few spies have achieved such a position.

Kim Suim moved into fashionable quarters, lavishly entertained Americans, Koreans, Japanese and Chinese. Her amorous activities and social brilliance disguised the fact that her fashionable house was the centre of a Communist underground which brought Russian and other Communist spies into Seoul and the Allied zones of South Korea. American dollars needed for the Communist network were in her cellar, together with printed Communist propaganda. Parts of secret short-wave sets, codes and a photographic laboratory, were stored in this magnificent house in King Jade Street in Seoul.

When the Americans left South Korea she was heartbroken. Still, she was the best informed woman in Seoul, so she was ordered to spy on the Syngman Rhee government.

UNDER ARREST

Shortly after the Americans left she was arrested. "I'm innocent," she said, but the South Koreans told her rather brutally:

"We have known of you for years, but some of your high-ranking American lovers protected you to avoid scandals. Now the Americans have left, and we are free to act."

In June, 1950 she faced trial. The major charges were spying, stealing, conspiracy and treason, with 26 lesser crimes against the State of Korea.

On June 28, 1950, the Communists were moving toward the outskirts of Seoul. Kim Suim was removed from her prison to the Kimpo airport. Her last hour had come. She died courageously. On this final day she wore no American hair-do, no American clothes. She was in her native Korean garb, her hair tightly bound about her head.

Unique Collection of Bibles at the Cathedral

By MAURRY GYNNE

IN the cool quiet surroundings of the south west tower of Christ Church Cathedral stands a tall glass case containing a most unique collection of Bibles and books of the Bible.

The collection, ranging from a 1599 edition of the Geneva Bible to the New Testament in Chinese, dated 1929, was presented to the cathedral by the British Foreign Bible Society in Canada and Newfoundland.

This society is an auxiliary of the British Foreign Bible Society of London, Eng., founded on March 7, 1804, the aim of the society being to "give every man the Bible without note or comment, in his own tongue."

The cathedral collection bears out this desire where 17 languages are represented in only 22 books.

The translations, many in the syllable symbols of fierce tribes were done by courageous missionaries who risked their lives to bring Christianity to the savages.

OLD BIBLES

Largest and oldest Bibles of the collection are a pair of Geneva, or "breeches" Bibles, dated 1599 and 1615.

The "breeches" Bible is so called because the word "breeches" is used in reference to the aprons of fig leaves used by Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden.

Printed in the heavy, hard to read old English script, the two books are still in a good state of preservation and could be used today despite slight discoloration and brittleness of the pages.

Copies of the New Testament appear most frequently in the collection, having been translated into many languages and dialects over the years.

The earliest translation in the collection was done by the United Brethren in 1822 for the use of the people of Greenland. The next is dated 1871 and was done for the Micmac Indians by Silas Tertius Rand. It was printed in Chedoioktook, Nova Scotia.

In 1881, Archdeacon Kirkby of the Coast Mission Service, using the syllable symbols of the tribe, worked out a translation in Chipewyan. These symbols are not unlike shorthand but with not as much variety nor the easy flowing continuity of that business code.

CREE DIALECT

Rev. J. A. Mackay, Archdeacon of Saskatchewan, translated the New Testament into Western Cree in the winter of 1903-04. He did the initial work on a Yost typewriter fitted with tribal symbol and saw the printing of the book in London, England.

A translation into Lau, Mala, of the Solomon Islands was undertaken by Dr. W. G. Ivens of the Mellanesian Mission in 1929 and is among the collection.

With these are copies of the New Testament translated into Yiddish, Chinese and Hindi (India).

Three copies of the Gospel according to St. John, translated into native languages grace the collection.

One in Kwese (Belgian Congo) by Rev. A. A. Janzen on the Mennonite Mission in 1929; another into Coastal Cree by Rev. W. G. Walton on the Coast Mission Service in 1921 and a copy in Zimshian translated by Rev. William Ridley, Bishop of Caledonia, in 1889.

There is a copy of the Book of Common Prayer, printed in 1757 that contains additions not found in later copies.

Two translated copies of the Gospel according to St. Matthew are there. One in Blackfoot Indian by Archdeacon John William Tinms of the Coast Mission Service in 1890 and one in Cree by Ven. James Hunter Archdeacon of Cumberland (Rupert's Land) in 1877.

Translated into the syllable symbols of Beaver Indian is a copy of the Gospel according to St. Mark by Rev. A. C. Garrioch done in 1886.

A translation of Genesis and Exodus by Bishop Albert Martin and Rev. W. W. Perrett of the Moravian Mission is amongst the group. This was for the people of Labrador and done in their dialect in 1925. Bishop W. C. Bompass of the Mackenzie River translated the Acts of the Apostles into Slave or Teni Indian in 1890.

There is a Book of Isaiah in Mohawk by William Hess and William Case that was printed for the American Bible Society in 1839.

BOOKS

It always comes as a bit of a shock to start reading about Canadian literature and run smack into the name of Thomas Chandler Haliburton as one of the giants of Canadian letters.

If you're like this writer you'll stare at the name for a moment, then mutter to yourself, "oh, yes, Sam Slick."

It seems that there's no keeping Sam Slick down.

If you look up Canadian literature in the Encyclopedia Americana you'll read: "Haliburton stands, in some respects, head and shoulders above any other writer that Canada has produced up to the present time. He approached more nearly to the rank of true genius than any other Canadian."

Haliburton, born in Nova Scotia in 1796, was a Tory and an aristocrat, his hatred of America was surpassed only by his hatred of republican democracy in general.

But, ironically enough, his humor is nowadays labeled "typically American" and he has been called "the father of American humor."

The Encyclopedia Americana goes so far as to say that "It is hardly too much to say that he was the greatest humorist North America has ever produced."

And that same authority describes his chief character, Sam Slick, as "among the best imaginative creations of modern times."

Desmond Pacey, the New Brunswick professor who recently wrote "Creative Writing in Canada," is not quite so enthusiastic about Haliburton, but he still has to turn over to Sam Slick a full half-dozen pages in a small book that seeks to tell the whole story of Canadian letters.

Pacey says of Haliburton's best work, "The Clockmaker, or the Sayings and Doings of Sam Slick of Slickville" that it is "not, perhaps, a great book, but it is an astonishingly good book to have come from a small provincial society in the throes of a depression."

Another recently-published book where Sam Slick proved to be still a bright Candian light is "Canadian Quotations and Phrases," compiled by Robert M. Hamilton.

In this book of quotations Sam is quoted on almost every subject in the index and must outquote every other Canadian mentioned by at least two to one.

And if Haliburton was really the originator of all the phrases attributed to him in the book of quotations, he must have almost as much influence on the language as it is spoken today as Shakespeare has had.

Here are some of the phrases attributed to Haliburton, who was writing most of them between 1830 and 1860.

"Seein' is believin'."

"He put his foot in it."

"Pretty is as pretty does."

"Every dog has his day."

"He drank like a fish."

"I guess I warn't born yesterday."

"You can't get blood out of a stone."

"A miss is as good as a mile."

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

"The houses hope builds are castles in the air."

"This life ain't all beer and skittles."

"Patriotism is the trump card of a scoundrel."

"Sleep on it."

"There's nothing like leaving all's well alone."

"The early bird gets the worm."

Terrifying Book Describes Strange, Lonely Journeys

"Journey With Strangers," by R. C. Hutchinson (Clark, Irwin).

The strange and lonely spiritual journeys traveled by Europe's displaced persons through a war which imposed at times unsurvivable physical hardships upon them, are convincingly imagined in this truly distinguished novel.

TRAVELS WITH HATE

One of the weak-spirited who under duress finally proves herself invincible was Stephanie, a Ruthenian girl who traveled her own journey inextricably allied with a family and set of standards she had made herself hate for years.

The family were the Kolbecks, proud, overbearing Polish aristocrats who had dutifully adopted her because they had been responsible for the death of her parents

MARRIES

Stephanie, however, marries the only living Kolbeck son, Victor, and although she loves him, is determined that their unborn child will be a Kolbeck in name but not in spirit

To this end she gives false evidence against Col. Kolbeck, her despised father-in-law, during the Russian occupation upon being promised escape with her unborn child to a neutral zone.

The promise never materializes, nor does the colonel's trial, for he escapes and miraculously rejoins his family in a Siberian work camp where, in spite of her perfidy, the Kolbecks spare Stephanie all possible hardship for, as she thinks, the sake of the child which they intend to claim as their own

BABY DIES

Her baby dies, however, and upon hearing evidence that her husband is also dead, she loses all feeling except hope that the colonel's trial will take place and scorn of the Kolbeck's fierce pride which refuses them compromise of any description.

An uneventful month during which conditions deteriorate unbearably wears on with Stephanie still joined to her personal enemies through weakness of will and body until war strategy transforms Russians into allies and she learns her husband is still alive. Incredibly she finds him in a prison hospital gruesomely maimed, a pitiful quarter of a man.

TRULY HAPPY

During this pitiless migration with Victor and other thousands of barely alive displaced persons to Iran Stephanie is truly happy, believing herself to have taken her husband from the Kolbecks. But the transformation which takes place in Stephanie when her indomitable husband wills himself to sacrifice what little is left of his life for the sake of his values sums up the whole theme of "Journey With Strangers."

TERRIFYING

It's not a pleasant book. It is moving and at times terrifying, but is written with such dignity and taste as to avoid all suggestion of melodrama.

"Elephant and Castle," "Testament" and "The Fire in the Wood" are among previous novels by this distinguished author —M.D.G.

Bright Novel Takes Sides With Charles

"Crown Without Sceptre," by Vaughan Wilkins (Clark, Irwin).

The tragi-comic twilight years of Prince Charles, the unacknowledged King Charles III, are woven together with some fascinating fictional character to make this book a well-paced, intrigue-laced historical novel.

Told with wit and spice, this tale makes no bones about being on the side of the Young Pretender against those enemies who would label him as nothing but a sot and against his shrewish and unfaithful wife Louise, the lovely violet-eyed princess whom Rome knew as the "Queen of Hearts."

In fact, Mr. Wilkins advances the thesis, and with some justification, that one of Prince Charles' main reasons for constantly seeking the crown he believed to be his by right was to supply the calculating Louise with the title of queen.

The story of Charles' latter-day intrigues, including a spot of negotiating to become King of America is told as part of the story of the fictitious Lord Deverly and his green-eyed adopted Gypsy daughter Shurensi.

Lord Deverly, author of "Old Age a Mere Illusion," is forcefully and humorously portrayed as an eccentric man of science and principle who is the staunchest supporter of Prince Charles and the secretary of state of the Prince's shadow cabinet

Shurensi has verve and fire enough to enable her to stand in the company of all spirited heroines of historical novels, with an exciting dose of mysterious inscrutability to boot.

Of course the affair between the "Queen of Hearts" and Count Vittorio Alfieri, comes in for a good play here, with the author dealing as savagely as the reader will hope fate actually dealt with the snobbish ambitious Alfieri.

Mr. Wilkins has assembled a fascinating collection of characters, good and evil, in this book and kept them boiling in a plot that will make good reading for all lovers of historical fiction.

A professor at the Sorbonne Charles Marrignac, is preparing to write a learned treaties on American humor. Readers of The Colonist's comic pages will be delighted to know that "Petit Abner" is among his subjects.

British Coats and Suits Are Tailored for Export

FASHION is international. Ideas, fabrics and trimmings are collected from the far corners of the earth or they are under your nose. Today, Europeans compete with each other for North American trade, and with manufacturers, too. The picture changes each year with boundaries of no consequence, but fashion is more important than ever.

The business of importing European costumes and accessories for copying is as popular as ever, and in addition we have entire collections designed by French, Italian or British creators for manufacture in America. Now the British tailors are sending us suits and coats made in Great Britain.

British woolens and worsteds are traditional for fine quality and styling. The tailoring is as famous and although the fashion influence of Great Britain has never been as strong as that of the continent in the softer type of costume, buyers have always sought out and treasured coats and suits of good British tweeds and similar fabrics.

One of the largest garment manufacturers in London is now cutting tweeds and woolens to foreign standards and sizes, making them into smart coats and suits which can be sold here for about the same prices as garments of similar quality made in this country. The fabrics are superlative, the styling is good and the tailoring, of course, is expert. The majority of the costumes are the simple, classic types that we look to England for, but there are also some lovely dressmaker suits and coats of a softer nature that will fit perfectly into any scene.

Such new details as the martingale belt, swung low in the back or run through slits in the fabric to hold the flare loosely, are found in the coats. Fitted and straight or loose styles are both well represented in coats, while the fitted middy and the all-pleated skirt are new notes among the suits, most of which are fairly classic. The colors and textures are wonderful, and many new fabrics are included.

Sealskin Popular

Never has there been more variety in fur coats, nor more reason for buying one. Pelts, worked to be thinner and more supple than ever, are draped like fabric, coats are warm but light in weight, and a basic style that will be in fashion for some time.

One of the leading furs is Alaska sealskin. Soft, silky and beautiful, it is also practical because it is one of the sturdiest, and an Alaska sealskin coat will give you many more years of excellent service. The seal herd, which is under the protection of the United States government, provides us with enough pelts to keep the price well within reason, and the fur has steadily climbed in fashion favor through the past several seasons.

There are as many as seven popular silhouettes, all found in Alaska sealskin. The big "basic" of the season is the soft coat with easy back fullness. Tapered and balanced to give good lines, the shoulders are easy, and the back flare of last year seems to have moved outward slightly but it is not exaggerated.

Top fashion this year in both fur and fabric is the tulip silhouette slim through the body with fullness placed low through pleats, inserted gores or through the body cut. It is not to be confused with the Empire coat, which has fullness emanating from below the shoulder blades, with fluid folds spreading at the hem from a smooth and slim top.

New looking is the princess silhouette with the waistline the focal point. The skirt section, usually flared full, stems from the slimmest waistline you can wear. Another silhouette is the panel back, which is seen in every length. Flat and smooth in the back, the flares are quite definitely designed to drape to the sides in folds or pleats.

Sew Your Own School Dress

By MARIAN KAHL

As summer reaches a midway point you teens put up one long, loud cry what to wear back to school? There's plenty of fashion available in ready-to-wear clothes, but the hitch there is usually an economic one. You can, if you are the smart teen who knows the ways of a needle, get around this by sewing your own.

Before you answer that first school bell, do something constructive about making some of your own clothes. Take a trip through one of the fabric departments to see if the materials do not inspire you and give you all sorts of ideas on how you would like to dress. You'll find easy-to-work-on fabrics for beginners. Winter cottons, for example, have been coming to the fashion fore the last few years and this season they have won an important place for they tell a new texture and color story that makes them particularly right for cooler weather. Because cotton fabrics are easy for the home sewer to handle this advance of "yearable" cottons should make your work easier to do. Cottons are comfortable to wear and since they are washable you can care for them yourself.

These are not the summer cottons merely dyed darker tones—the new cottons simulate tweeds, ribbed stripes and other interesting weaves. (Cotton tweed is particularly good) There are wonderful stripes, too These are perfect for the trim one-piece dress and for separates as well. Cottons also include the corduroys and velveteens which are soft and pretty as anything you could desire for date wear.

New Stylings . . .

—the short evening dress in a new silhouette that rounds out the skirt at the sides but flattens it at the front and back. One of the handsomest has the entire bodice and low curving hipline of black bogle beads and several-layer net skirt graduating from black on top to peach

* * *

—the pleated skirt which does not have its hemline pressed flat. The effect is a modified harem line that adds a nice fillip to the silhouette. It is in red wool

* * *

—colorful low-heeled shoes and sandals to echo the color in your summer fashions. One of the attractive sandal fashions comes in yellow leather with a decorative piece of the leather held in place over the toes by the leather thongs that tie about the foot

Furs often hide inside woolens for fall and winter, but not from modesty, for many of the coats and suit jackets are reversible. Wear the fabric outside through the day and turn the fur out for afternoon. This is a wonderful idea if you're traveling, or want to make one coat serve for many occasions. Sketched is a suit, composed of an English angora short coat with nutria lining, the coat completely reversible. The slim skirt is of the same fabric. The color is "arrowroot," which blends beautifully with the nutria.

Furs Take Cover in Suit Jackets Worn Both Ways

By ANNE YATES CLARKE

NOW that furs are more than ever a badge of elegance, they frequently take cover inside fabrics, or they are made into reversibles—coats or jackets that can play a double role. If you feel modest, you can wear the cloth side outside. If the occasion demands it, you turn the coat and flaunt your fur side.

This new modesty is found in both coats and jackets. Some are the ultimate in contradiction, with luxury pelts such as mink or ermine hiding inside daytime woolens, sometimes even in tweeds. The majority, however, are planned for wearability, with sturdy furs, Alaska sealskin, nutria or beaver teamed to worsteds or tweeds that are akin in color and degree of formality. For dressier occasions, there are velvets or rich, elegant woolens with fur lining or fur which may be turned outside.

The reversible fur and fabric coat is usually made by a coat and suit manufacturer, and is sold alone or with a skirt of the fabric, sometimes with a dress of the fabric. Long coats in natural colors can be teamed to many costumes in your wardrobe, especially as the "fur" colors are being featured for fall in everything from hats to stockings, even sometimes in shoes The three-quarter and seven-eights lengths are equally practical.

If you're planning to buy a suit of great beauty and elegance, consider one lined with fur. It need not be an extravagance, for it can be worn for a wide range of needs according to which side is out, and it will always make you look and feel like a queen.

The Fashion Beam

Disc Fashion takes a flyer this season by introducing the "disc" hat. It is small, flat and round as its name implies. You wear it straight on the head and a few have tapered wing-like projections to give you height and a certain silhouette dash One of the prettiest by a French designer is of white satin draped and trimmed with embroidered insets.

They Came From Czechoslovakia More Than a Decade Ago To Escape the Nazi. They Are Now Canadians and Are Proud of Their New Country

By W. N. CAMPBELL

DURING the year 1938 the late Adolph Hitler, with tears in his eyes, viewed the sad fate of some thousands of people originally of German descent, but for generations settled in territory held by the then democratic Czechoslovakia. The following year — 1939 — he invaded this portion of that country known as Sudatenland to "free" these enslaved people under a foreign yoke, as he expressed it, so precipitating World War II.

However, many thousands of these people, rather than live under the laws of this dictator, left their homes and emigrated. Many hundreds formed a settlement in the Peace River Block of British Columbia a few miles south of the village of Pouce Coupe, in a wooded district hard by Swan Lake and Tupper Creek. Here, by hard work and the added application of their native intelligence and culture, they have carved out of the wilderness a farming community complete with prosperous farms, aswmills, schools and halls.

These sturdy people of German stock who refused to be pushed around by the Nazis under Herr Hitler are raising their children in loyalty to Canada and the British Commonwealth and have built and maintained rural schools of a very high type. Some of the teachers are from their own folk, others hired from the outside. During the past winter I had occasion to visit some of the schools attended by the children of these Sudaten people in our far north. At Tom's Lake School the children sang "O Canada" and "The King" for me lustily and with a noticeable lack of the usual "la, la, da." They knew the words and sang exceedingly well.

When leaving I prevailed upon some of the children to pose for their picture in the snow-covered yard, in order, as I informed the bright-eyed youngsters, that I may show my friends the fine children they raise in the Peace River country. Incidentally, my diary says it was 32 degrees below zero when the children stood for their picture, but such weather does not faze these hardy and cheery young Canadians of British Columbia's hinterlands on the other side of the Rockies.

WHO IS THE CHAMP OF HISTORY?

By IVAN T. SANDERSON

Mr. Giraffe's One-Two Will Kayo a Lion

With Ten-Foot Forelegs the Tallest of Beasts Can Rock an Opponent Back on His Heels With Pistons of Steel-Hard Bone

Despite its enormous size, the giraffe is usually regarded as the mildest of beasts. But it can and will stand and fight if defending its young or if cornered. Then there is nothing that can stand against its punching forefeet or the backward swing of its hind hooves.

This is the first in a series of 10 articles on champions of the forests and jungles written by Mr. Sanderson, world famous explorer and naturalist for The Daily Colonist.

FOR centuries the lion has been known as the king of beasts. If you are speaking of his appearance this may be fair enough, otherwise it's pure hokum. Not only is this great cat a lazy beast that can be approached and even touched by an unharmed man in the daytime, he is scared of almost everything, especially felt hats, small children, and his mate's shadow.

The giraffe, on the other hand, despite its enormous size, is usually regarded as the mildest of beasts. It has kind eyes with long, black lashes like a movie starlet, is alleged to flee on sight, and is believed to be unable to make a sound even when alarmed. Some of this is true; some is not. Mother giraffes make a loud gurgling rumble in their throats when they want to call their young to their sides, and giraffes fight among themselves with terrible stubbornness. Sometimes they do the very opposite to fleeing from danger. Nature has thrown these two animals into the ring together throughout the great plains and tree-dotted savannahs of Africa.

THE LION'S STRENGTH

Given the right setup, only a few animals are swift enough to get away from the lion's first rush, and even fewer are too big or too strong for him to pull down. Among the latter are full-grown elephants, rhinos and giraffes, and sometimes a big bull buffalo. But the lion cannot resist the young of these animals. And that's where he often gets a surprise.

A tourist in South Africa was recently amazed to see a lion lying under a faucet at the side of a highway and, trying to catch the animal, he saw that it was badly wounded with its muzzle smashed in and its lips split. He reported this strange sight to the police in the next town, and a game warden went to investigate.

The lion was easily tracked and killed, for it was almost at the end of its tether. The warden then backtracked to try to find out what had happened. And quite soon he came upon a female giraffe walking round and round her calf that lay very still in the long grass. As soon as the man approached, the giraffe took up a position facing him and in front of her fallen child. Moreover, as the warden drew nearer, she threw up her head and adopted a threatening attitude. Then the man saw that the young one had been mauled and killed by the lion.

PISTONS OF BONE

What had happened would be immediately obvious to anyone who knows the game animals of Africa. When the lion had attacked the baby giraffe, the mother had flown to its defense and, rocking back on her short hind legs, had started delivering the most terrific lefts and rights known to this planet, with her 10-foot forelegs. These towering pistons of solid bone and muscle have a girth of some five feet at the upper arm, a five-foot shaft of steel-hard bone in place of a forearm, and hunks of horn seven inches wide, for fists. With these the giraffe delivers the old one two, straight forward.

This lion had obviously taken one on the chin and cried "uncle." And in a way he had been lucky because an infuriated female giraffe has been known to kick a lion's head right off its shoulders with a well-directed blow of its smaller hind hoof.

The giraffe is basically a mild-mannered animal that prefers to at least move out of the path of danger, even if it does not immediately flee with a sort of cumbersome gallop. But it can and will stand and fight if defending its young or if cornered. Then there is nothing that can stand against its punching forefeet or the backward swing of its hind hooves.

What is more, giraffes will fight among themselves with dreadful tenacity and sometimes fatal results. They do not use their mighty hooves, however, but slash and bang at each other with their heads and necks. Full-grown male giraffes stand over 18 feet in height, and half of this is a towering column of muscular neck. When they strike with their heads, the neck forms a terrible weapon and these neck-breaking contests can be heard for upward of a mile.

King of the Counterfeiters

TRIESTE (NANA Kemnewai — A convict's petition to be released from prison and given employment with the Italian treasury has been warmly recommended by the governor of the Bank of Italy.

The central figure behind this queer paradox is 60-year-old Attilio Pollastri, serving a long term of penal servitude in Rome prison. To the Italian police and to the Italian treasury, Pollastri is known as the "king of counterfeiters."

Pollastri has successfully counterfeited every known currency, and made fabulous sums of money before being brought to book. He still has eight years to serve, but has offered to make a deal with the governor of the Bank of Italy. If he is released, he will reveal to the bank a secret method of making impossible the counterfeiting of currency notes, shares and dividend coupons.

Since the end of the war, the counterfeiting of currency in Italy has dropped considerably, but the number of fake dividend coupons has risen to enormous proportions costing the Italian banks huge sums of money.

Pollastri claims that he knows the way to stop these losses, and the governor of the Bank of Italy who has every reason to have a high opinion of Pollastri's achievements —is ready to try the experiment. The final say is with the president of the Italian Republic, Luigi Einaudi, to whom Pollastri's petition and the governor's recommendation have been forwarded.

Koryaks of Siberia formerly killed their old people to relieve them of their misery, as proof of affection.

TALES OF THE YUKON

By FRANK KELLEY

At Summit of Chilkoot Pass

Hundreds of Men Made the Perilous Journey Across the Boundary Line on Their Way to the Gold Fields. It Was a Tough Road That Tested the Best in Man

SHEEP Camp, town of tents, was 14 miles from Dyea and some four miles from the "Summit." Scattered tents made up what accommodation facilities there were. These were mainly situated in a grove of trees near the river shore. It was the only convenient stopping-place before the final assault on the Summit began where firewood was available. Two pack trains were regularly employed between Sheep Camp and Dyea. It was sometimes called the "place of wavering," as well as some other things, not complimentary to those who lived there, principally packers. It boasted a hotel, too, at least a cloth sign announced that fact. That hotel was built of rough lumber, its dimensions being 30 x 40 feet. A portion was partitioned off with calico cloth, in which the proprietor, his wife and family lived. Meals were served there during the day to trail-hungry men in all manner of garb. The price was fair enough 75 cents. After supper blankets could be spread on the floor, space being available for guests with own bedding, no charge made for sleeping privileges.

TRAIL WAS HARD

Leaving Sheep Creek, one immediately became conscious of the physical resistance provided by great mountains rising abruptly and bold, barring the gates to the land of promise. The environment was truly gorge-like on a grand scale and the trail was tough. One of the sights, a mile beyond Sheep Camp, was a great glacier, apparently resting on the hillside and seemingly about to topple over and come crashing down. Another mile farther along appeared Stone House. This, a large square rock, stood on the brink of the stream and crudely resembled a house. All about was a mess of slide rock and many large boulders, water and ice worn. Stone House was dislodged in the spring avalance, 1898, some months later.

CHILKOOT PASS

At Stone House the valley, or gorge, made a sudden turn to the right and the trail became steeper. There was no vegetation, except some alder of the scrub variety here and there. Even that ceased soon after Stone House was left behind and the way seemed to head into a cul-de-sac, with a high wall of white snow-covered rock in front, high as the sky. It was the great barrier, uncompromising, forbidding — the Chilkoot Pass.

Below this sharp rise were scores or more tents, held down with stones on the guy ropes. There numbers of men were busy making up packs, unloading pack horses, while in all directions were blankets spread out to dry. With packs shouldered, a line of men were making their way, with the aid of alpenstocks in many instances, heading ever upward. Looking at the climb closely the sight presented a continuous moving string of men silhouetted against the lowering face of the barrier until they stood out sharply against the skyline on achieving the top.

UP THE SCALES

Whether traveling heavy or light, all had to hike the height. Some had packers to do their back packing, while others had their outfits lifted by means of a wire-rigged" lift stretching up the face of the 45 degree hill, called "The Scales," because its base was where all goods were weighed before the packer began his climb or the "hoist" operators undertook to deliver an outfit at the Summit.

Approaching this animated picture along the trail one couldn't help but imagine the efforts of those climbing men might have been worthy of any emprise, much greater than the striving was going to prove for all but the men hired to do the packing. From the distance the general picture hinged on the spectacular; but the actual climbing took away a lot of that feeling.

Looking almost as if it was hanging over as one approached on the trail from Sheep Camp, the face of the Pass was really a series of benches alternating with short stretches of abrupt climbs. On the exceptionally steep parts, hands and knees helped make the grade; but horses and oxen had not been educated in such practices. Here and there could be seen men ahead of horses and oxen with ropes on which they hauled hard, evidently to prevent the animals from toppling over backwards as well as taking, maybe, some of the weight they carried.

Men and equipment pause at the summit of Chilkoot Pass.

TESTING MEN

Not one who chanced to witness the daily striving at this particular spot during that migration into the Yukon, between those 1897 and 1898 days anyway, but would have to admit, if challenged, that in fighting their winning jousts against the obstacles Nature arrayed thereabouts to test their mettle, the men and women taking part in that race for gold over the summits of the northern mountain passes and along the waterways of the Yukon, maintained the best traditions of mankind.

Across the summit of the Pass runs the International Boundary Line. It was there that one left Uncle Sam's territory and entered the domain of Johnny Canuck, where Canadian Custom's officers were busy advancing the eager argonauts. It was not the most pleasant billet imaginable, stationed on that bleak stretch of ice and snow, from where the way led down several hundred feet of easy grade to a steep ice-field, below which lay mile-long Crater Lake, lying in a trough-like basin of rock. Going down the glacier presented no difficulties, was the report, from the bottom of which one could travel over the ice, hire a boat or pack along the lakeshore to its foot on the way to Lakes Lindeman and Bennet, where the main occupation of all had to do with the building of boats, using whip-sawn lumber.

Macao Is the Oldest Western Outpost in the Far East

MACAO, tiny hut teeming port on the South China coast where fatal skirmishing between Chinese Communist troops and the Portuguese colony's small garrison has occurred, is the oldest European outpost in the Far East. It was the first haven in all the China seas for western mariners trading with the hostile Orient.

In their golden era of glory as discoverers of exotic lands, Portuguese navigators extended the Cape of Good Hope passage blazed to India by Vasco da Gama, and came upon Macao, a peninsula at the mouth of the Canton River. The place where they landed is some 35 miles from the more recent British colony of Hong Kong.

SINCE 1557

They settled upon approximately three square miles of the peninsula about 1557. The red, green and gold banner of Portugal has waved from its heights ever since. Sometimes the Portuguese have had to fight to hold their rich China trading post, as when the Dutch five times attacked it in the 17th century, but more often they have persevered through strict neutrality.

Present population of the colony is something over 300,000 people, the great majority of them Chinese. Thousands of picturesque junks, many now equipped with auxiliary engines, use the harbor of this second largest fishing port of China. In addition to fish, major exports are firecrackers and incense, beloved of the Chinese.

As good sailors, and as trustees for the west, the Portuguese in 1864 built the Guia beacon on Macao, first to light the China Sea. Even while sending their own Jesuit missionaries into the Orient, they gave haven to the Protestant missionary Robert Morrison, who translated the New Testament into Chinese and whose six-volume Chinese-English dictionary unlocked the treasures of Chinese literature for western scholars.

They allowed the English to build a cemetery, "God's Acre," on Macao. Here Morrison lies buried, and also American clipper ship crewmen and British "hearts of oak" seafarers who died in the hard China trade.

Victoria College Enrollment Usual

AROUND TOWN

Registrations at Victoria College are proceeding at about the same rate as last year and about the same total enrollment is expected this year as in 1951-52, the registrar said yesterday.

Figure of 54 registrations in the first week this year exactly matched last year's first week quota. Total is expected to reach about 300—close to last year's 316.

No changes in fees or courses have occurred this term, officials said.

Registrations are continuing until Monday, Sept. 18. Hours are 10 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 4 p.m.; Saturdays, 10 to 12 a.m. only.

Lectures will commence September 22.

An elderly woman, known to have lived at two different Victoria addresses in recent years, is being sought by a friend in England.

The missing woman's name is Mrs. Alice Bruck, and she lived at one time at the Stadacona Guest House and near the beginning of the war at 106 South Turner Street.

Victoria police have been asked to try and locate the woman in a letter from Mrs. R. Watkins, Brownhill Road, Chandlersford, Eastleigh, Hants, England.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of Mrs. Bruck, who last was heard from by Mrs. Watkins a number of years ago, is asked to get in touch with Detective Inspector Charles Webb of the city police department.

The meeting was originally announced for Wednesday.

All members are urged to attend the meeting.

New Traffic Lights Installed

Installation of new four-corner traffic lights along Government Street is nearly completed by city workmen shown putting finishing touches on northeast corner of Government and Johnson. Lights, to be located also at Yates and Government, will be in operation within next two weeks. Old-style centre lights will continue operating until switchover is made. New three-color lights, similar to those along Douglas Street, will be synchronized.—(Colonist photo by Bud Kinsman.)

Living Theatre at Popular Prices To Be Permanent Victoria Feature

Live theatre at popular prices soon will be a permanent feature of the Victoria entertainment scene.

The York Theatre—earlier known as the Empire and the Coliseum, a member of the old Pantages vaudeville circut, then a moving picture house, and of recent days the scene of religious meetings—has been leased for the purpose.

The players—to be known as the York Theatre Company—will play for one or two weeks each month and will tour the Island and B.C. Mainland for the remainder of each month.

Suitable plays will be presented to school audiences at nominal prices in co-operation with the provincial school and community drama department.

PROFESSIONALS

The permanent company will number about 12, the directors said yesterday. Ten of these have already been drawn from professional British, Western Canadian and Northwestern United States acting ranks.

First production will go on the boards at the York about the middle of October. Rehearsals will start the last week in September.

Best of London and Broadway hits will be presented by the group with occasional revivals of such old favorites as "Charley's Aunt" and rare productions of classics.

A special Christmas performance is being planned which will require the services of extra players and next summer during the coronation period a Shakespearean festival will be staged—similar to the one originally scheduled for Beacon Hill Park this year.

CIVIC AUDITORIUM

The York Company plans to operate the theatre as a civic auditorium also for use by any musical, dramatic or other company that needs the stage.

Directors of the new concern are B. B. Milnes, president and managing director; G. I. Edgelow, vice-president; A. de B. McPhillips, secretary; Walter S. Miles, Mrs. C. Mitchell, Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C.; I. T. A. Thorne, L.R.A.M., L.G.S.M., stage director.

Excellent stage and auditorium and first-class acoustics make the York Theatre ideal for the kind of program planned, the directors said yesterday.

Built on the old Pantages style for stage, rather than screen shows, its slightly dated design will be accentuated rather than modernized.

Schedule for the company's own production lists a price range from 40 cents in the upper gallery to $2 in the boxes.

The directors said no vaudeville or burlesque was being contemplated "at the present time."

And a clause in the company's certificate of incorporation—modeled on that of London theatres—specifying one of its objects was to carry on the business of "wine and spirit merchants" was termed of no significance right now.

Auditions Scheduled For Stage Hopefuls

Auditions for jobs with the newly-formed York Theatre Company which plans to bring live theatre to Victoria on a regular one-week-a-month basis will be held at the Sirocco Club this week.

Hours for stage hopefuls are 2 to 5 p.m., Wednesday, August 27, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, August 30.

The company is seeking at least two members to round out the permanent stage company and a larger cast for a forthcoming major Christmas production.

The directors emphasized it is not necessary to have had professional experience to qualify for an audition.

They are especially seeking teen-age talent, and are in fact seeking one teen-age girl for the permanent company. A few younger children may be needed also for the Christmas show, they said.

Not only players, but also musicians, dancers, singers, and other entertainers are being sought for the talent hearings.

Light Showers, Rain Forecast; To Aid Firefighters on Island

Vancouver Island firefighters will be given some relief over the week end with light showers and rain predicted for today.

Victoria's weather for the day will bring joy to some for part of the day, but make no one happy all day.

It's going to rain in the morning and shine in the afternoon.

Light winds have been predicted for the morning, increasing to southwest 20 by noon with a high of 65 expected.

Provincial Forest Service officials have said a day of rain is still needed before forest closures can be lifted, but a meeting has been arranged for Monday morning to discuss the lifting of the ban in the Vancouver forest district.

Throughout the province 1,000 men still are battling 140 fires. No new blazes have been reported for more than 24 hours and existing fires are said to be easier to handle.

In the Vancouver forest district there are only 25 fires still burning, all under control.

At Burns Lake a 60,000-acre blaze, described as the biggest in the province in 14 years, was still out of control in one corner last night.

It is the largest fire in the province still out of control.

At Quesnel, a 700-acre fire still is raging free, but week-end rains are expected to aid firefighters and hope for the control of the blaze by Monday is high.

Generous Citizens Fill Free Food Stall

Free food stall at the City Public Market looked like prize winners' booth at an agricultural fair yesterday.

RECORD STOCK

Kind-hearted citizens and operators of business firms here contributed a record stock of foodstuffs to be distributed to families on social assistance and other needy persons.

The goods didn't go begging. Mrs. Barbara Green, food stall angel, said the total of 76 families helped also set a new one-day record for the give-away stall's operation.

Contributions included 18 dozen eggs, bread, buns, 15 boxes of apples, 13 each of celery and cucumber, 30 marrow, 300 pounds of plums, sacks of potatoes, three crates of beets, cabbage, 400 pounds of beans, tomatoes, jams and other preserves.

An appeal for flowers to brighten the lives of persons living in straightened circumstances was also responded to generously. Bunches of gladioli, and bouquets of sweet peas and other flowers were brought in by generous donors. Mrs. Green paid tribute to volunteer helpers who took time out to assist in unpacking, packaging and distributing the bumper stock of contributions.

Members of the Cosmopolitan Club of Victoria assisted in delivering the goods to blind and bed-ridden recipients who could not call for goods at the stall.

It is hoped other organizations will help with this part of the food distribution in the future. A crew of six with cars is needed for the task, Mrs. Green said.

Donations to the stall came from Victoria gardens and firms, Sidney, the Dominion Experimental Station at Saanichton and other points.

Next date for the food distribution is Saturday, September 6. Twenty more cards have been given to welfare agencies for distribution to families needing assistance.

End of Ship's Run Draws More Fire

Esquimalt M.L.A. Frank Mitchell, C.C.F., is concerned about the removal of the Maquinna from the West Coast run and he is attempting to do something about it.

For a starter Mr. Mitchell has sent wires to the department of transport, the postmaster general of Canada and to officials of Union Steamships.

He asked the department of transport if it would consider putting on the survey ships Stewart and Estevan on the run at least until next spring.

The captain and crew of the two government vessels, Mr. Mitchell contends, know the run well and winter is their slack season anyway.

ONLY SUPPLY

"Water transport is the only means of supply for the coastal population," he stated in his wire. "It is imperative some arrangements be made immediately."

In his query to the postmaster-general, Mr. Mitchell asked if the postal department would consider increasing the subsidy on mail contracts if that step were necessary to encourage some other private firm to take on the run.

He asks in his message to Union Steamships if officials would consider putting a ship on should the government agree to boosting the mail subsidy.

One of the areas hardest hit will be Port Renfrew, which is in Mr. Mitchell's riding. He pointed out yesterday that the matter is of vital concern to the whole Island, however.

BACKS HIGHWAY

Federal Fisheries Minister Robert Mayhew says he believes the federal government should look into the possibility of financial support to a highway along the West Coast of Vancouver Island.

The federal minister said that "if thorough study shows that road connections are the best means of communications, the money would be better spent on permanent roads rather than on annual shipping subsidies."

In Port Alberni, the Sproat Lake Ratepayers' Association added to the growing list of protests against abandoning the steamship service to the west coast of the island.

The members urged that if the C.P.R. discontinues the service with the retirement of the Ss Maquinna, tenders should be called to provide a replacement service.

The meeting also called on the government to continue payment of a subsidy to keep the service alive. The Sproat Lake resolution will be presented to the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association.

Firemen Saved Man, Son

No Apology by C.P.R. For Dunking in Sea

The C.P.R. has not said "sorry," reports Robert Gregg, 3430 Bonair Place, who was dumped out of his rowboat by the wake of one of the Princess ships off Ten Mile Point on Tuesday.

Mr. Gregg and his nine-year-old son Bobbie were saved from drowning by city firemen Art Abbott and Al Curran, who were fishing nearby.

The C.P.R. ship failed to slow down, sound a warning or even toss him a lifebelt, Mr. Gregg said after his rescue.

"I was pulling for all I was worth when I saw the ship was going to pass nearby," he said. "But it was only about 100 yards from us when it passed."

LARGE WAVES

The sea had been calm until the ship's waves hit a rip tide and raised large waves, Mr. Gregg said, and his son Bobbie had been sitting on his lifebelt instead of wearing it.

They clung to the keel of their overturned boat until their shouts for help were heard by the firemen.

"I don't see how they were so lucky," said Art Abbott after the rescue. "Their fingers were white from holding on to that little keel."

"Sailboats and rowboats have the right-of-way over steamships," Mr. Gregg said. "Although it must have been obvious I was trying my hardest to pull out of his way.

"It was as though they were all asleep on the bridge and steering the ship by automatic compass."

The wave that overturned Mr. Gregg looked to be "12 feet high," he said. The two firemen, 200 feet away, said the wave was "at least eight feet high when it hit the rip."

"I feel C.P.R. boats should slow down in that channel in summertime," Mr. Gregg said. "The captain or whoever was on the bridge must have known he'd swamp me, passing that close."

The channel, between Smuggler's Cove and a group of islands, among them Discovery and Chatham, is a favorite fishing area for many owners of small boats, he said.

Mr. Gregg reports he lost about $30 of fishing gear and clothing when his rowboat was swamped.

"That captain didn't even sound his horn half a mile away to let me know he was coming through the channel," he said.

GUESSED WRONG

Until the C.P.R. ship was actually in the channel, Mr. Gregg didn't think it would pass on the west side of the group of islands.

"I thought it would pass on the outer side," he said. "But that's the outgoing C.P.R. boat. This was the incoming one.

He has been out fishing since the accident, he said, and has made several nice catches.

He was in the same channel yesterday, this time with a wary eye for large ships, and reported "the C.P.R. boat slowed down today, going through there.

"There was another boat ahead of it, and I couldn't tell whether it was slowing down because of the boat ahead, or because there were some small fishermen's boats out in the channel again like I was."

Tract of Lonely Wilderness Comes Alive

Aluminum Project at Kitimat Buzzing

A tract of lonely wilderness, approximately the size of Holland, is today alive with activity in the creative stage of British Columbia's new major industry, the smelting of aluminum.

A little over a year of intensive work on Alcan's vast B.C. project has seen great changes wrought in that area of Central British Columbia which runs roughly in an east-west line from the Kenney Damsite on the Nechako River to Kitimat, a distance of about 140 miles by air. It involves a chain of major lakes with their connecting rivers, a portion of the high and rugged Coastal Range and the upper reaches of the great fjords known as the Douglas Channel, the Gardiner Canal and Kildala Arm.

In brief the Project B.C. plan is this: By damming the Nechako River, the eastward flow of a double chain of lakes of which Whitesail, Eutsuk and Tetachuk are the major bodies in the southern chain, and Ootsa Lake and Tahtsa Lake the largest of the northern chain, would be reversed and the waters so impounded backed up against the Coastal Range. The waters of this big area, still contained within the steep banks of the existing lakes, will form a natural reservoir 350 square miles in area.

TEN-MILE TUNNEL

The ancient glacial plateau on which the lake chains are situated is 2,800 feet above sea level, and in order to utilize the potential power of the reservoir, a ten-mile tunnel (two ten-mile tunnels in the final stage of the development), driven through a mountain of the Coastal Range, will carry the waters from Tahtsa Lake, the westernmost point of the reservoir, to penstocks which will drop the water some 2,600 feet to the powerhouse at Kemano.

The powerhouse, situated in the precipitous valley of the Kemano River some ten miles from the salt water of the Gardiner Canal, is being built over a quarter of a mile inside the mountain which contains the ten-mile tunnel and penstocks. The man-made cavern, in the ultimate stage of development will be 1,100 feet long, 82 feet wide and as high as an eight-story building. It will eventually house 16 impulse turbines, each of 140,000 to 15000 horsepower, coupled to generators which will, of course, create the power to be used at the Kitimat smelter.

From Kemano, the power will flow along a 50-mile transmission line to Kitimat, traversing very rugged country in parts of the line, and crossing the Kildala Pass at an elevation of over 5,000 feet above sea level.

Kitimat at the head of the Douglas Channel was chosen as the location of the future smelter and townsite because it is the only open valley within a great distance connected with the hinterland, and offering a suitable area to accommodate the huge smelter, which in itself will be over two miles long and half a mile wide, and the city which is expected to reach a population of 50,000 persons when the project is fully developed.

Before construction at either of the, in themselves, major projects at Kemano and the Grand Canyon on the Nechako River could be started in the early months of 1951, access roads had to be pushed into what was then virtually virgin wilderness.

Those few people who knew the Kenney damsite in its original condition, and who have not seen it since, would find it difficult even to imagine the natural topography of the canyon from what is visible today.

The Nechako River, for example, no longer flows down its old stream bed at this point; but is diverted around it by a horseshoe-shaped tunnel, 32 feet in diameter and about 1,430 feet long. The bed is kept dry by cofferdams, one placed immediately downstream of the portal of the diversion tunnel, and the other just upstream from the exit portal. The dam itself, a rock-fill structure with an impervious clay core is rapidly rising above its base, eventually to reach a height of about 317 feet, with a crest length of approximately 1,500 feet.

This dam when completed, if weather permits, at the end of this year will be the third largest of its kind on earth.

PREPARATORY WORK

On the 10-mile tunnel through the Coastal Range between Tahtsa Lake and the penstocks which will drop the waters of the reservoir 2,600 feet at an angle of 48 degrees from the horizontal to the Kemano powerhouse, the work has largely been of a months. Tunnels, totaling thousands of feet, had to be constructed to the main tunnel line and penstock lines before work on the big waterways could start.

The hollowing out of the great powerhouse cavern also is well advanced, and three tunnels, at present, connect it with the outside world; an exploratory drift, the Access Tunnel and the Tailrace Tunnel, the latter two large horseshoe-shaped tunnels of 25-foot diameter and averaging about 1,400 feet in length. A fourth tunnel, the Cable Tunnel, is at present under construction.

On the spectacular power transmission line between the Kemano powerhouse site and Kitimat, also, the work, until recently, has been preparatory in that the right-of-way had to be cleared and an access road constructed to facilitate the building of the towers and the stringing of the steel and aluminum cables—the largest ever used. With the clearing close to completion, and the bulk of access road building very well advanced, however, transmission line towers have now made their appearance in the Kemano River Valley, approaching the heights of the Kildala Pass as their completed numbers increase daily.

The use of two large Sikorsky S-55 helicopters and four smaller types has greatly speeded up the construction of the transmission line in getting equipment and supplies to high camps and workings in the more difficult terrain with comparative ease and alacrity. Forty aluminum towers of new design, now in process of fabrication at Yarrows Limited in Victoria, also will save much time by cutting down material weight for towers in hard-to-reach locations.

The work at Kitimat is not particularly spectacular from the lay point of view so far. It is essentially a vast earth-moving process to prepare smelter and dock sites, and a clearing operation where the future ultra-modern city will grow. While this, in 1954, will be the busy hub of the B.C. Project, the limelight this year is bound to be focussed on the power end of the work as far as sheer spectacle is concerned.

The first stage of Alcan's Project B.C. is slated for completion during the first half of 1954. At that time the smelter will produce aluminum ingots at the rate of 83,000 metric tons per annum, powered by three generators with a total output of 450,000 horsepower. A population of between six and seven thousand persons will be supported at Kitimat during this phase.

Eventually, when the power potential of the project is fully developed, an output of 1,650,000 h.p. can be realized—to produce 500,000 metric tons of aluminum as well as provide a source of hydro-electric power to other industries which may be attracted to the new city. It is hoped that some 50,000 people will eventually call Kitimat home.

The numbers of construction workers, in all probability, reached the peak during this past summer. Approximately 6,000 men and women were directly employed on the project; about 1,200 at the Kenney Dam under Mannix Limited of Calgary, some 1,300 at Kitimat under the eight B.C. construction firms working together on this contract under the name of Kitimat Constructors; and the remainder in the Kemano-Horetsky Creek-Tahtsa Lake area and the transmission line, employed by the Morrison-Knudsen Company of Canada.

Honeymoon in Seaside, Oregon For Mr. and Mrs. John M. Smellie

Mr. and Mrs. John Murray Smellie are driving to Seaside, Oregon, for their honeymoon following their wedding Saturday evening at First United Church. Pink and white gladioli formed the setting when the Rev. Moir A. J. Waters officiated at the ceremony uniting Margaret Isobel, daughter of Lieut. F. Freeman, R.C.N., and Mrs. Freeman, 2425 Heron Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Smellie, 144 Wellington Avenue. Mrs. Roberta Wood presided at the organ and as the couple signed the register Mr. J. Fee sang "Because."

The pretty bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white ballerina-length gown fashioned with lace bodice, Peter Pan collar, and short sleeves with long petal-point mitts of lace. The skirt was of white nylon net with panels of lace over double layers of filmy net, the whole dress poised over white taffeta. Her chapel veil of nylon net edged with lace was caught to her head by a satin halo embroidered with pearl sequins. The groom's gift, a pearl necklet and earrings, were her only jewelry, and her crescent bouquet was of pink roses and white feathered carnations with stephanotis.

Matron of honor, Miss Leona Hulme, chose pink, while bridesmaids Miss Mary Putman and Miss Evelyn Slatar wore blue and mauve respectively. Their gowns were similarly styled in nylon net over taffeta with matching bolero and mitts. All had bandeaux of tinted starched lace trimmed with flowers to correspond with the gladioli, pastel sweet peas and blue scabiosa in their crescent bouquets.

Flower girls were Carole Ann Coxworth and Lynn Tupper, wearing toe-touching frocks of blue and mauve taffeta respectively. Their floral bandeaux matched the sweet peas and feathered carnations in their small crescent bouquets. The bridegroom had Mr. Leslie Aitken as best man, and ushers were Mr. Charles Callow and Mr. Reg Lewis.

The reception was held in the Flamingo Room of the Crystal Gardens where the parents of the couple received guests with them in a setting of pastel gladioli. Mrs. Freeman was attired in delphinium blue lace over crepe with amethyst feather hat and veil, and corsage of pale pink carnations; and Mrs. Smellie was gowned in cocoa crepe with brown hat and corsage of yellow gladioli.

Pastel sweet peas topped the three-tiered wedding cake and decorated the table which was lighted by pink candles. The health of the bride was proposed by Lieut. H. S. McDougall, R.C.N. (retired).

Going away the bride wore an apple green knitted suit with close-fitting hat of brown velvet, beige topcoat, and dark brown cobra shoes and purse, with corsage of yellow roses and gardenias.

Nancy Chater Exchanges Vows With D. H. Baylis at St. John's

In a setting of pale mauve, pale pink, and white gladioli, Miss Nancy Margaret Chater, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Ernest C. Chater, 3436 Maplewood Road, exchanged marriage vows with Denbigh Hoult Baylis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Baylis, 21 Midwood Road, yesterday evening. The bride is a granddaughter of the late Mr. L. D. Sprugett, well known artist, and Mrs. Sprugett of Maple Bay.

The Rev. Canon George Biddle officiated at the ceremony in St. John's Anglican Church. Organ music was played by Mr. Frederick Chubb.

The dark-haired bride was a charming picture in a gown of imported French Chantilly lace over rich satin. The fitted bodice scalloped into a net yoke, was buttoned with a row of tiny covered buttons, and the semi-slim skirt fell softly at the back into a sweeping train. Beads and seed pearls trimmed her satin Juliet cap, scalloped to match the gown, which held a circular veil of French illusion net embossed with lily-of-the-valley edging. Her bouquet was of white rose buds and swainsona, centred with a pale mauve orchid.

Miss Avery Chater was maid of honor for her sister in a gown of apple green net over taffeta, styled with sleeveless, low-necked bodice, and very full skirt. Her matching Juliet cap had clusters of daisies on each side, and she carried a muff topped with marguerites and Michaelmas daisies, trimmed with rainbow-toned ribbon to match the dresses of the other attendants.

Mrs. Patricia Burge of New Westminster and Miss Rosalind Wilkinson were in similar ensembles, the former in mauve with peach ribbons on her cap and bouquet and the latter in peach with mauve ribbons.

Best man was Mr. John Baylis, brother of the groom, while Mr. Garry Chater, brother of the bride, and Mr. George Simpson ushered.

Autumn blooms and leaves decorated the reception rooms of the Olde England Inn, where mothers of the young couple, Mrs. E. C. Chater and Mrs. E. S. Baylis, assisted them in receiving their guests. Mrs. Chater wore pale pink tissue faille with navy blue accessories and corsage of mauve gladioli and sweet peas, while Mrs. Baylis chose a two-piece dress of teal blue with navy blue accessories and gardenia corsage

White doves and rosebuds topped the three-tier wedding cake, which was surrounded with pink tulle and silver candelabra. Background music was played by Mr. Bernie Ryall at the Hammond organ. The bride's uncle, Capt. G. D. Sprot, proposed the toast.

After a honeymoon in Vancouver and the Interior, Mr. and Mrs. Baylis will reside in Victoria.

For going away, the bride wore an apple-green two-piece knitted dress with matching Milan straw hat, brown fur neckpiece, brown snakeskin shoes and bag, and cream gloves. Her corsage was of pale mauve orchids.

Victoria West United Church Scene of Colorful Ceremony

The marriage of Anita Marilyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Green, 646 Langford Street, to Emile William D'Argis, son of Mrs. Frank D'Argis, 909 Hudson Street, and the late Mr. D'Argis, took place Saturday evening at Victoria West United Church with Rev. S. V. H. Redman officiating. Mr. Donald Redman played the organ music and Miss Mairi Macdonald sang "Because" as the couple signed the register.

The pretty bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white Chantilly lace and nylon net over white taffeta, styled with strapless bodice complemented by a matching lace jacket with soft rolled collar, tiny lace-covered buttons and lily-point sleeves. Her veil of illusion net had a border of Chantilly lace and was held by a crown of silver and crystal bugle beads. For "something borrowed" the bride wore a pearl necklace and earrings, and she carried a crescent bouquet of pink roses and white gladioli with stephanotis.

Mrs. R. McClure, matron of honor for her cousin, wore pink taffeta with yoke of nylon net and matching mitts; Miss Sharon Green, her sister's bridesmaid, chose hydrangea blue taffeta in the same style with matching mitts. Both carried muffs composed of carnations and larkspur to tone and had bandeaux of the same blooms in their hair. Flower girl, Marina Fjarlie, young cousin of the bride, wore a long yellow taffeta frock with square neck and panel of frills down the side of the skirt. She had nylon net mitts and carried a small basket of white carnations and larkspur, and her hairband was of the same featured flowers.

Mr. George Norman was best man and ushers were Mr. Eddy D'Argis, brother of the groom, and Mr Ronald McClure

The reception was held at Lougheed's Banquet Club where Mrs. Green, Mrs. D'Argis and her daughter, Mrs G. G. Miller, welcomed guests with the couple. Pink and white asters with lighted candles decorated the lace-covered table which was centred with the three-tierd cake. The toast was given by Mr. J. W. Collins

Driving to Seaside, Oregon, the bride wore a grey worsted suit with plaid shortie coat in grey, black and white, white hat and white colored acressories and a corsage of gardenias surrounded by Talisman rose-petals.

Ceremony Held In Army Chapel

A quiet wedding was solemnized recently in the Esquimalt Army Chapel by Capt. J. Davidson, when Margaret Mina L. Creamer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Creamer, William Avenue, Winnipeg, Manitoba, and Merion Lewis Conrad, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Conrad, Cornwallis Street, Kentville, Nova Scotia, were united in marriage.

The bride wore a street-length frock of grey crepe, complemented with pink accessories and a corsage of orchids.

Matron of honor Mrs. Alice Purcell, of Victoria, chose a blue crepe street-length dress with white accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

Gnr Rick Purcell, Victoria, was best man.

After a honeymoon up-island, the couple will make their home here.

Trudie McGill and James Duxbury Exchange Vows at First Baptist

At a double-ring ceremony Saturday evening at First Baptist Church, Dr. T. G. Dunning of London, England, solemnized the marriage of Trudabeth Ann (Trudie), eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McGill, Tattersal Drive, and James Herbert Duxbury, only son of Mr A. Duxbury of Nanaimo, and the late Mrs. Duxbury. Mr. Oliver Stout was at the organ. As the guests assembled Mr. Donald Garrard of Vancouver, sang "A Wedding Prayer" [illegible] "The Lord's Prayer."

Tall standards of gladioli and trailing ivy decorated the church and guest pews were marked with same blooms.

The petite bride, gowned in exquisite Florentine lace over shimmering satin in a soft candlelight tint, entered the church on the arm of her father. The bodice was styled with off-the-shoulder effect, and the bouffant skirt slightly en train, billowed from a tiny fitted waistline. Her lace cap, Juliet style, held in place a finger-tip veil of illusion net. She wore the groom's gift of pearl necklace and earrings, and carried a shower bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and maidenhair fern.

The bride was attended by her two sisters, Mrs. Roger Galloway, the former Edith McGill, as matron of honor, gowned in nymph-green nylon net over a [illegible] shade and featuring a double bustle-effect. Miss Margaret McGill, bridesmaid, chose a similarly-styled frock of dusky rose nylon net over taffeta. They wore violet-trimmed halo hats of net, and carried nosegays of violets and sweetheart roses.

Mr. Albert Johnston of Nanaimo, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Roger Galloway, Seattle; Mr. Grant Hooper, Vancouver, Mr John Calhoun, New Westminster, and Mr. Dexter Stockdill.

About 150 guests attended a twilight reception in the spacious gardens of the McGill home on Tattersal Drive. Colored lights concealed among the oaks added to the beauty of the garden setting. Guests were welcomed by Mrs. McGill, assisted by Mrs. W. J. Calhoun, aunt of the groom. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Frank Hayward. [illegible] tiered wedding cake surrounded with Sweetheart roses and maidenhair fern, and flanked by candelabra with lighted mauve tapers.

The newlyweds left for a trip to the Olympic Peninsula to spend several days before returning to Montreal where the groom will complete his final year in medicine at McGill University. For traveling, the bride wore a smart suit of navy blue English worsted with navy and white accessories, and corsage of gardenias and stephanotis.

The Victoria Prayer Group will meet on Wednesday in the Cathedral Memorial Hall, at 3 p.m. Open to all.

Bride Bernie Chisholm Lovely in Ivory Satin

White gladioli decorated the altar and sanctuary of Our Lady of Lourdes Church Saturday morning when the Rev. Father M. J. McNamara solemnized the marriage of Bernice Clare "Bernie," only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Chisholm, 1256 Judge Place, to Thomas Hector Tighe, youngest son of Mrs. E. Tighe, 1710 Hollywood Crescent, and the late Mr. R. D. Tighe, at a nuptial mass when rings were enchanged. Mrs. Leslie Gill played the organ interludes.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of ivory brilliant bridal satin with lace inserts in the skirt harmonizing with the lace yoke and tulip-tip sleeves. Small buttons fastened the back of the fitted bodice from the neck to a point below the waistline and her finger tip veil of illusion net was held in place by a halo of white sequins and bugle beads. Her only ornament was the groom's gift, a gold and mother-of-pearl locket and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and swainsona.

Miss Sheila Colbert, bridesmaid, chose mauve taffeta fashioned with fitted bodice and full skirt. Her calot was of yellow and mauve pansies with tulle, and she wore mauve lace mitts. Her bouquet was composed of mauve sweet peas and yellow carnations.

The bridegroom had the bride's brother, Mr. Richard H. Chisholm, as best man, and ushers were Mr. Bill Fetherstonhaugh and Mr. George Curran.

The reception was held in the private dining room at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Mrs. Chisholm wearing a two-piece dress of hydrangea-blue faille with black velvet hat and corsage of Columbia roses, and Mrs. Tighe gowned in rose-beige fine wool with matching hat, and corsage of Ophelia roses, received guests with the young couple. Late summer blooms decorated the table which was centered with the two-tiered cake bedded in filmy tulle and flanked by lighted white candles. The toast was given by Father McNamara.

For a honeymoon motor trip on the Mainland, the bride wore a wing-blue gabardine suit with navy and white hat, navy accessories, and a corsage of Ophelia roses.

They will make their home on Tattersal Drive.

Today's Favorite Recipe

Mrs. E. Robinson, 1800 Townley Street, says her family finds this salad "very nice during these hot summer days."

YUM YUM SALAD

Heat 1 can crushed pineapple and ¾ cup granulated sugar and add juice of ½ lemon. Soak 1 large or 2 small envelopes gela[illegible] water. Have juice boiling, add gelatine and mix well. When cool, add ½ pint whipped cream and ¾ cup grated cheese. Let set. Slice and serve on chopped lettuce with a little salad dressing.

BACK GOES THE BERET!

Like shower caps worn far back on the head, berets crown the heads of half the school crowd. With them it's the polished head of hair, sleeked back, up off the ears, with ends tucked into the beret and only the smooth, true line of glistening hair showing in front. Shampoo your hair as often as it needs it to keep it lustrous and clean. But do defeat the hardness of the water or exposure to sun and wind with a creme rinse like Hudnut's creme rinse, a pretty pink one, so easy to use. Leaves a trail of faint, enticing perfume, too.

Skating in Summer Sunshine

At mile-high Sun Valley, Idaho, Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Glover, left, 808 Intervale Avenue, Victoria, and Mr. George Foxcroft, 3720 Carey Road, enjoy the novelty of skating on the outdoor artificial ice rink in the summer sunshine. They are spending the third week in August at the famous Union Pacific resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Mark Diamond Anniversary

Friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Henry George Allen, La Fortune Road, Cobble Hill, are this week end celebrating their diamond anniversary. It was on August 20, 1892 that Mr. Allen was married to Annie Mary Burton, at St. John's Church, Walworth, London.

Mr. Allen was employed in the London post office, and when the Boer War broke out he went to South Africa with the Post Office Rifles. Following the return of peace he was induced to remain in the Union to aid in establishing the reorganized postal service. Mrs. Allen and their three children joined him there.

Returning to England in 1907 they came to Canada in 1910, and after several years spent in Manitoba came on to British Columbia, taking up residence at Van[illegible]

Mr. Allen went overseas with the Original Seventh Battalion in 1914, and was taken prisoner at the battle of Ypres, when the Germans first used gas. He was held in captivity for two and one half years before being exchanged into Switzerland.

On returning to British Columbia he entered the postal service in Vancouver, retiring in 1937 to take up his residence at Cobble Hill. Mrs. Allen, who was very active in veterans' and charitable organizations in Vancouver, is associated with the Red Cross and St. John's Church auxiliary at Cobble Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen were assisted in entertaining today by their three children, Mrs. F. R. [illegible] B. A. McKelvie, Cobble Hill and Harry G. T. Allen, their ten grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren. Supper was served for nearly forty guests. This afternoon open house is being maintained at Kilmichael (the McKelvie Home, La Fortune Road) in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Allen.

Gifts Arranged In Watering Can

A shower honoring Miss Lorraine Mitchell, who is to be married in September, was held at the manse of the Victoria West United Church recently. Hostesses were Mrs. S. Redman, Mrs. J. W. Collins, Mrs. S. Emery, Mrs. W. E. Barrett, Miss V. Collins, and Miss A. Armstrong.

Corsages of gladioli and sweet peas were presented to the bride-elect and her mother, Mrs. G. Mitchell. The many lovely gifts were arranged in a pretty green watering can. Guests, who were neighbors and church friends, numbered 35.

Art Show To Be Held

SOOKE, B.C. Aug. 23 Sooke artists who work with oils, water colors or choose to do pastels, crayon creations, or have black and white as their medium, are invited to enter two of their subjects in the Sooke fall fair, September 10, 1 to 9 p.m. This entry is for display only and non-competitive.

P. W. Taylor is in charge of what promises to be an interesting art display, considering the number of artists now at work here.

For Miss Hartley

Miss Helen Hartley, September bride-elect, was honored at a miscellaneous shower given at the home of Mrs. D. M. Hoadley, 416 Dundas Street. A corsage of red and white gladioli was presented to Miss Hartley, while her mother, Mrs. T. Hartley, received white gladioli, and the mother of the groom-to-be received tea rose gladioli. Master Jon Hoadley presented the gifts in a decorated basket. There were 15 guests present.

GREEN WITH BLUE IS NEW

That wonderful soft, "expensive"-looking shade of pale blue accented with forest green, or vice versa. It's new for day and night, and makes beauties of every fresh young face. Try with it, one of the green eye shadows, muted jade, mysterious, subtle, softly dramatic!

Speaking of Fashions

By Viola Peterson

Many ladies prefer the "Profile Line" which is more fully described by experts as smoothly fitted, less flowing, and longer ... actually no superfluous yardage.

Coats selected for ALAN'S LADIES' WEAR, 725 Yates Street, to meet the demand of style-conscious Victoria ladies, are receiving most favorable comments due to a complete selection of the dramatically fitted coats with neat fur trim, or fitted styles in alpaca and wool, angora and wool or novelty wool tweeds. One fitted coat in particular is in tweed of outstanding black, white and grey mix, knubby textured with smart collar and cuffs, neat fitted waistline and semi-swing skirt ... Just a dream coat for that petite figure of from size nine up who does not care to be lost in yards and yards of material.

The buyer for ALAN'S, Victoria's Leading Style Centre, has made a study of figure types, and chooses coats, suits and dresses most suitable to the individual. Great care is also given to selecting coats, suits and dresses in quarter and half sizes for the young matron who usually feels neglected.

New style books for made-to-measure suits and coats, also some beautiful wool suit lengths of imported materials, have just been received at ALAN'S, 725 Yates Street.

Blouses Add Variety

BY DEE LAVOIE

Taking a top place in any wardrobe, whether workaday or playtime, are blouses—tailored ones, frilly ones, dressy ones.

Going along with skirts and suits to work are the tailored types, in gabardine, sharkskin and rayon.

The sharkskin classic with convertible collar and either short or long sleeves has long been a favorite, and it's definitely one of the most versatile items in your blouse collection.

Button the neck high and accent it with a gay flower, an eye-catching brooch, or a jaunty scarf.

Either way, it looks perfect under a cardigan or jacket.

Very tailored long-sleeved blouses of nylon have put in an appearance and their cost isn't too high, when you consider the advantages of their easy washability and the little bit of ironing they need to stay at their crispest.

Nylon is the ideal material if you like the wide-sleeved ruffly type of blouse that goes with a swishy skirt (probably black) to a dance or party, and with a suit for more casual occasions.

The blouse can be as elaborate as you wish, and still be easy to keep fresh.

Brilliant colors can be had in nylon now, and you can even take your pick of polka dots, stripes, and flowered designs in this wonder fabric.

For ultra dress-up wear, the dainty sheer nylons are lovely in white or pastels. Also on the list of party-time favorites are blouses of rich brocade, styled with high and handsome mandarin collars, and often sleeveless.

Call it a blouse or call it a sweater—the pert little topper of boucle will be going along on many a date this fall. Most of these feature a scooped neckline and almost all are decked out with sparkly sequins or metallic embroidery.

Wool jersey blouses in every color and style imaginable, will be leaders in the fall fashion parade and will go a long way towards adding interest to your present collection of separates.

Motor Trip to Prairies Following Wedding Here

A background of traditional organ music was played by Mrs M. Wilmshurst for the wedding of Anita Marie Carlos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Pyne, Warner, Alberta, and Ronald George Knox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Knox, 230 Stormont Road, Victoria.

The ceremony took place Saturday evening in Centennial United Church, Rev. T. G. Grif- [illegible]

White gladioli centered with pastel sweet peas marked the guest pews, and standard baskets of pastel gladioli decorated the church. Miss Ada Burt sang "O Promise Me" during the signing of the register.

The bride given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. D Sirianni of Vancouver, was lovely in a floor-length gown of gleaming satin, fashioned with Peter Pan collar, lily point sleeves, and caught at the hemline with a tiny rosette. Her full-length lace-edged vail cascaded from a coronet of seed pearls and rhinestones. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

Matron of honor Mrs. Margaret [illegible] Gobb wore gowns the same as the bride's, in pink and ice blue satin respectively. Bandeaus of flowers to match their arm bouquets of gladioli, and double strands of pearls, gifts of the bride, completed their costumes.

Mr. Ronald Richards was best man, and ushers were Mr. Lesley Crompton and Mr. Malcolm McGregor.

View Royal Community Hall was decorated with gladioli and greenery for the reception. Mr. Walter Mitchell proposed the toast to the bride. The three-tier wedding cake was encircled with white tulle and flanked by tall white tapers in silver holders.

[illegible] Warner, Alberta, and North [illegible]tleford, Saskatchewan, the bride wore an aqua blue wool boucle suit with a short fur jacket and brown accessories. Red roses made up her corsage

The couple will make their home in Victoria.

Beauty and You

By MARION MATTHEWS

Summer gives you teens a chance to preen and it is a good season to develop those special feminine qualities that make you prettier and more attractive

You've had plenty of vacation time to think of clothes and how you want to look for that return to school and, if you haven't done anything about it as yet, get busy now!

First of all, resolve that all your efforts will be for naught if you fail to keep your clothes up —clean and always in good repair. Sew on buttons and stitch up hems whenever these minor repairs are necessary. Show that you are truly adult by taking care of your own things.

Remember that accessories take to sprucing up also, you may realize now how important they can be in any wardrobe. A change of them makes that basic suit or dress lead a double life with such ease When you are correctly dressed with the right accessories you can't help but look prettier and well poised. There'll be no uncomfortable feeling that the shoes you are wearing are not quite right or that you should have worn that little clip headdress with its beguiling veiling instead of appearing hatless.

Clean out handbags periodically and review your beauty equipment. Don't give room to dirty powder puffs, rundown compacts, etc. Instead, you can let your audience know you are fastidious every time you powder your nose in public—don't let this be too frequent, however — by using a clean puff, fluff of cotton or cotton ball.

Spanking white gloves that reveal well groomed fingertips should be entered on the credit side also. (All touches of white on your dresses or suits should be spotless as well.)

When you buy your new clothes, consider their upkeep also and if you know that a lot of time must be spent pressing or expensive cleaning will be required frequently to have an outfit look its best, it would be smarter to forego its purchase for something easier to handle.

SWEATER TRICK

What goes on under the sweater is twice as important this year—when even dresses are sweaters. If you're a girl who wants to develop her own glamour and not depend on falsies, try this exercise Raise your arms shoulder high, bent elbows, fingertips touching Now push, push, push, fingertips of the right hand against fingertips of the left hand. Do it 25 times morning, noon and night. You'll feel the exercise. It gives bust-line muscles Maybe you'll see the difference soon!

YOUR TRADE-IN

WILL PROBABLY MAKE MORE THAN THE DOWN PAYMENT ON A LATE MODEL OR NEW CAR.

YOU CAN ESTIMATE ITS VALUE YOURSELF SIMPLY. CHECK THE AVERAGE ASKING PRICES OF CARS OF THE SAME AGE AND MODEL THAT YOU SEE IN THE PAPERS. THEN DEDUCT THE RECONDITIONING COSTS FROM THAT AMOUNT AND YOU WILL BE VERY CLOSE TO YOUR PRESENT CAR'S MARKET VALUE AS IT NOW STANDS.

OUR APPRAISERS WILL PROVIDE THE RECONDITIONING DATA FOR YOU FOR AN EXACT VALUATION.

THE WHOLE THING IS VERY SIMPLE AND TAKES BUT A FEW MINUTES OF YOUR TIME. LET US HELP YOU GET BEHIND THE WHEEL OF A CAR YOU CAN REALLY ENJOY. HERE ARE GOOD EXAMPLES:

WAS GAS FIRST USED TO PREPARE A BANQUET?

At one time in his career every chef—even the greatest—meets with a problem. One of the most notable of these cooking nightmares faced French chef Alexis Soyer in 1850. Known throughout Europe as the master of cooking, Soyer was hired to superintend a banquet given by the Royal Agricultural Society in Exeter, England. The main course? A 535-pound hunk of beef! The problem? How to roast it. Instead of building a roaring bonfire which would char the meat, Soyer pulled a switch. In Exeter's town square he erected a simple oven six feet, six inches by three feet, three inches, of brick and sheet iron. Into this he inserted half inch pipes containing 216 tiny jets through which he piped gas. The crowd jeered. Those little flames were going to cook that great piece of meat? Bah! Eight hours later Soyer had the last laugh. He served to the society the most perfectly roasted beef in Europe—done through and through. And the first gas-cooked meat made its debut hoisted on the shoulders of eight men and carried behind a band through Exeter's streets!

Donkeys Race, Have Own Paper

An article appearing in The Donkey Times recently stated that the big race of the day in Wivelsfield was won by a donkey named Methusela this year.

Believe it or not, there really is a publication called The Donkey Times, there is a donkey named Methusela and the town of Wivelsfield, in Sussex, England, really does have a big donkey race every year.

The whole thing started when a ... for slaughter somewhere in Europe, was passing through Wivelsfield en route from Ireland a few years ago.

FELT SORRY

Two young men of the village felt sorry for the animals, bought the lot and found homes for them in Wivelsfield.

This aroused local interest in the welfare of donkeys and shortly afterwards the Wivelsfield Donkey Racing Club was organized. Since that time many donkeys on their way to be slaughtered have been saved and brought to the town for the races.

Rules governing the racing of these animals have been drawn up by the club and are as strictly adhered to as those of horse racing tracks.

No jockey may weigh more than 126 pounds, no whips or other instruments designed to make them run faster may be used and anyone breaking these rules is heavily fined.

MUST REGISTER

To join the club, owners must have their donkeys registered at the Donkey Club Registry Office.

The club's paper The Donkey Times says that its objects are to prevent the import of donkeys for slaughter, regulate racing under humane conditions and recognized rules and to ensure that all donkeys are in good homes.

Interest throughout England in the doings of the Wivelsfield club is high, and this year more than 10,000 spectators were on hand to see the races and events.

One special prize given was for donkeys that had not won any races and who had jockeys under ten years of age.

The prize: A bale of hay, 100 pounds of oats, a rabbit and ten chocolate bars.
